House Votes $1,706,053,908 For Arms; Navy Starts 22 Ships

By John G. Norris.
Post Staff Writer

Quick approval was given by the House yesterday to the last major plank of President Roosevelt's extraordinary defense program—a $1,706,053,908 appropriation to expand the Army and Navy—as the Senate disapproved voluntary military training in the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The Senate action was taken as President Roosevelt's "aid the Allies" program was bitterly attacked on the floor, and charges were made that it is leading us "down the path to war." Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, one of the critics, threatened to bolt his party if it becomes "a war party."

Five Billion for Arms

Passage of the defense bill raises the total provided for arms next year to $5,021,619,622, only a billion less than what was spent in 1918. It would provide 3,000 Army planes, 65 warships, 95,000 additional soldiers, a chain of air bases in the Caribbean, Midpacific and Alaska, and other defense measures.

The proposal for voluntary military training in the CCC was voted down, 47 to 35, after many Senators declared they would support universal compulsory military service but would not single out "boys from poor families as the first to fight."

The Senators, however, approved an Administration plan incorporated in the relief bill to train CCC enrollees in noncombatant Army and Navy roles, such as mechanics, cooks and technicians of various sorts.

The vote on passage of the huge defense bill was 401 to 1, with Representative Marcantonio (American Labor) of New York, the sole dissenter.

Meanwhile, Army and Navy officials in close collaboration with Administration chiefs surveyed the Nation's military supplies to see what can be spared for transfer to manufacturers and immediate shipment to the Allies. Arthur B. Purvis, chief of the Anglo-French purchasing agency, said after a conference with Secretary Morgenthau that more Army and Navy equipment will be made available but did not specify what it might be

22 Warships Ordered

Other developments on the rapidly moving defense front were:

The Navy placed orders with navy yards and commercial yards for construction of two 45,000-ton battleships and 20 other warships, costing $327,000,000, the largest such order ever placed.

The White House, through Presidential Secretary Stephen Early, announced the Army was turning over reserve manufacturing equipment for production of smokeless powder, ammonia and small arms ammunition to private industry to obtain immediate orders for such munitions.

Eight members of the House Military Affairs Committee filed a minority report on legislation empowering the President to order out the National Guard for use in the United States and its possessions, urging that he be allowed to send the Guard anywhere in the Western Hemisphere. They charged that Con-

Reprimand Leads To Tragedy; Assailant In Critical Condition

A falsehood "to cover up a search for a missing bird dog" was blamed by police officials last night as the indirect cause of the act of a Metropolitan Police private who shot and killed his superior officer and critically wounded himself.

The private was enraged over a reprimand, declared police witnesses to the shooting at the Twelfth Precinct Station.

The dead man is Sergt. Charles F. Cummins, 43, of 216 Eleventh street northeast. He was shot in the jaw.

His assailant, Private Otho L. Blackwell, 39, of 3017 Central avenue northeast, lies in "extremely critical" condition at Casualty Hospital, a bullet lodged in his right temple.

A third policeman, a colleague of Blackwell, was suspended from the police force two hours after the tragedy for giving a false account of tardiness on Tuesday. He is Private A. K. Frank, 43, of 1508 Lawrence street northeast, who served as Blackwell's scout car mate at the Twelfth Precinct Station.

It wasn't until after the fatal shooting yesterday afternoon that

Ankara Clings To Peace Until Moscow Makes Attitude Clear

By the Associated Press

Ankara, June 12.—The Turkish government decided tonight to stay out of the war at present, but to redouble its defensive preparations.

This was the decision of the cabinet, official sources said. There was no formal statement, however.

The only communique said the "cabinet met under the Presidency of Inonu and discussed the situation."

Depends on Russia

Turkey is especially interested in the Russian attitude and certainly will not enter the conflict, despite her mutual assistance agreement with the Allies, until she is assured she will not have a hostile Russia at her back.

Her mutual assistance pact specifically excuses her from any obligation to fight Russia.

Today's decision, moreover, was based on the feeling that there is no reason for Turkey to abandon her non-belligerency now.

It was emphasized that this did not mean Turkey was retreating from her pledge to go to the aid of the Allies in the event of aggression leading to full war in the Mediterranean area.

Quarters close to the government said the British and French were not bringing pressure upon Turkey to enter the war.

Spain Now Nonbelligerent

Copyright by New York Times

Madrid (Thursday), June 13.—For the third time since the new World War began Gen. Franco today announced that Spain was remaining outside the conflict. A decree published this morning, however, differed from previous statements in proclaiming Spain's position as one of "nonbelligerency" instead of neutrality.

The text of the decree follows:

"With the struggle brought to the Mediterranean by the entrance of Italy into the war with France and England, the government has decided on the nonbelligerency of Spain in the conflict."

Spain thus closely follows the position of nonbelligerent occupied by Italy until its declaration of war this week. In September Generalissimo Franco announced that Spain was remaining neutral, and this position was reaffirmed last month when Germany invaded Holland and Belgium.

The statement today came as a surprise since it had been believed division of opinion in the country as a whole and in official circles, would not permit so prompt an announcement.

A cabinet meeting was held immediately after the new French

R. A. F. Attacks Italian Sea Base, Rains Missiles On Reich Lines

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), June 13. Great Britain poured men and guns across the English Channel to the aid of her hard-pressed French ally today, backing up far-ranging air raids pressed against the enemy from equatorial Africa to the Rhine Valley.

"Every gun that could shoot," every available soldier and tank headed for the Continental battlefield to fight the Germans, while Italy replied to British air forays with attacks on Malta, Britain's island fortress in the Mediterranean.

The British, counting their successes from tons of bombs aimed at the axis powers, also counted 30 civilians dead and 30 injured from the eighth Italian air raid on Malta. Seven soldiers were wounded. The Italians returned to the Mediterranean island early this morning and made two more raids—the ninth and tenth—and ran into a blaze of antiaircraft gunfire.

The Germans feinted at Britain with a series of flights over the southern coast during the night and early morning, but no bombs were dropped and ground defenses drove the raiders off.

Egypt Severs Relations

Egypt, ally of Britain, handed the Italian Minister to Cairo his passport after severing diplomatic relations with Italy. Reuters, British news agency, quoted a well-informed Egyptian source in Cairo as saying Egypt's entry into the war is "only a question of days."

"Every available man, rifle, gun and tank is being sent to the aid of France," the Daily Herald reported. "The war office is gathering every article of equipment to hasten their dispatch."

Among the reinforcements were British and Polish soldiers withdrawn from Narvik when the Allies abandoned the northern Norway ore port. They hardly had set foot on home soil before they were off again to battle the Germans.

The entire British press stressed the urgency of rushing all possible help to France, even untrained and incompletely equipped divisions.

The Times declared "the defense of Paris is the defense of England; it is the defense of civilization: it must not be allowed to fail . . . If the enemy is thrown back from the gates of Paris, he has lost the war. If he enters, we shall fight on . . .

Urges U. S. to Hasten

"We have to . . . appeal to our American friends for haste and yet more urgent haste," the paper said. ". . . It is essential to send, and send immediately, every available unit that can by any means be equipped. This is a necessity, by

The War Today

DOGGEDLY RESISTING French troops are fighting with their backs to Paris, while France's ally, Britain, is rushing all available troops and equipment into the desperate battle which has brought the Germans closer to the "City of Light" than they were in September, 1914.

GERMAN TROOPS YESTERDAY said that at Pont Oise they were 12½ miles from Paris' northwestern suburbs, and the French admitted Nazi legions had passed Senlis and Chantilly—Gen. Foch's World War headquarters—only 20 miles from the center of the city.

WEST OF PARIS, the Germans were across the Seine between Vernon and Rouen, and appeared to have stabbed 20 miles beyond the river at one point; Rouen had fallen, a German tank column was heading for Le Havre, the Germans claimed capture of 20,000 Allied troops at St. Valery, and said more were trapped at Dieppe.

EAST OF PARIS the Nazis had crossed the Marne between Chateau Thierry, which they took, and Meaux, 26 miles from the center of Paris. Farther north, the Germans claimed Rheims, but from there east to the Maginot Line, the front seemed unchanged. The Germans hinted, however, of a possible drive across the Rhine.

ITALY FELT WAR when British planes dropped bombs on Turin, Genoa and Milan; other British raiders swept again over Libya, claiming hits on three warships, and over Ethiopian airports; Italy announced a mine belt cutting the Mediterranean in two, but the only action of an estimated million Italian troops on the French border was the blowing up of one bridge—a defensive move.

Battle Rages In Gardens Of American Envoy's Villa

By the Associated Press

Tours, France, June 12.—German troops crossed the Marne at Chateau-Thierry in a storm of fire tonight, and other forces struck down from the north to within 20 miles of the heart of Paris.

They pushed forward on the capital in three main thrusts, and completed almost half of a ring about it, swinging from the Seine on the west to Persan-Beaumont and Senlis and then down to Chateau-Thierry—where American Marines helped break another German advance 22 years ago.

[A spokesman for the Japanese Consulate General in Shanghai said at 12:30 a. m. Thursday (1630 p. m. Wednesday E. S. T.) that he had been informed by the Italian Embassy that German forces had "entered" Paris, the United Press reported. Press wireless reported at 11 p. m. E. S. T. that its circuit with Paris still was working "at high speed." The New York overseas telephone operator said that "government calls" to Paris still were going through.]

In Chantilly, near Senlis and Persan-Beaumont in the region 20 miles north of the center of Paris, the fighting raged over the very gardens of United States Ambassador Bullitt's chateau.

(Bullitt is understood still to be in Paris.)

Army Corps Assails Rheims

Into a mighty battle to take Rheims, above the Marne, the Nazis threw a whole mechanized army corps numbering 80,000 men or more and about 3,000 tanks, armored cars and shielded machine-gun-bearing motorcycles.

The French did not acknowledge the loss of Rheims, which the Germans claim, but they did concede that some forces had swept past it and across the Marne at Chateau Thierry, 50 miles due east of Paris, and 35 miles southwest of Rheims.

South of the Marne, along the line between Meaux and Chateau-Thierry, the French ordered a withdrawal. Meaux is only 26 miles east of Paris.

German efforts along the Seine likewise were spectacular. They put on all possible pressure from Rouen to Vernon in an effort to enlarge a bridgehead they had established on the south side of the river.

Nazi Losses 'Enormous'

In that area, the French high command declared the invaders were being held in the region of Pacy Sur Eure and Evreux. (Evreux is 20 miles south of the river and 60 miles west of Paris, while Pacy Sur Eure is 15 miles nearer Paris).

German scouting parties, however, were acknowledged to have struck off from the main body northwest toward Caudebec, which is only about 30 miles from the vital French port of Le Havre.

Between the Oise and Oureq Rivers Nazi advance units attacked violently around Crepy-en-Valois and Betz—a town some 30 miles northeast of Paris, and east of Seulis and Chantilly.

The French declared their "numerous prisoners" reported enormous losses among the Germans northeast of Rheims.

French aviation was declared to have returned five times to the

Edsel Ford Returns To Detroit to Talk Terms With His Father

The Ford Motor Co., with the largest single production plant in the world, definitely will be offered a contract under the President's expanded aircraft program, it was learned yesterday.

Details of Ford participation in the 50,000-plane program remain to be worked out, it was said, but there is no doubt that the Government will rely in a large measure on the 1,200-acre Dearborn plant for achieving the goal for the defense program.

Edsel Ford said here Tuesday the company could turn out at least 1,000 planes a day if it gets the contracts.

Ford returned to Detroit yesterday for conferences with his father on contract terms, it was learned. Still to be decided is whether Ford would produce airplane bodies as well as engines, but use of Ford facilities for engines appeared yesterday to have been definitely decided on.

The contract that Ford will be offered, it was learned, may be of the "sky's the limit" variety. That is, the Government may set no limit on the number of engines or planes, but may simply agree to take all the company can produce.

Buyers Rule Market; Stocks Gain $1 to $9

(Market News, Pages 22, 23.)

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—Buyers swarmed the Stock Market today and bid up favorites $1 to $9 a share in the steepest advance since the buying wave of last September on the outbreak of the war.

Completely ignoring any warning signs contained in European news dispatches telling of the German advance almost to the gates of Paris, buying forces gained control at the opening gong, and pushed prices up swiftly. The pace slackened after midday, but transactions totaled 1,357,190 shares, the best in nearly two weeks, and compared with 769,890 on Tuesday when the current upswing first took root. The average of 60 stocks advanced $1.80 to $40.20, biggest rise since the 5,000,000-share day September 5.

Stocks out in front all day included Westinghouse, up $7 a share at $82.50; duPont, up $8.25 at $156; Eastman Kodak, up $5.12 at $125.62; American Telephone, up $6 at $136; U. S. Steel, up $3.62 at $51.62; Bethlehem, up $4 at $75; Inland Steel, up $4 at $77; General Motors, up $2.37 at $43.75; U. S. Rubber, preferred, up $8 at 80, and Douglas Aircraft, up $5.75 at $80.75.

Mexico Bans Nazi Press Chief, Who Is Brother of Hitler Aide

Mexico City, June 12 (AP).—A responsible government source reported tonight that the Mexican government has requested Arthur Dietrich, chief of the press bureau of the German legation and a director of German propaganda in Mexico, to leave the country as soon as possible.

The order was presented to the German minister, Rudt von Collemberg, by the foreign ministry, it was reported.

Dietrich is a brother of Otto Dietrich, Adolf Hitler's press chief.

"Stutzpunkts" Raided

Montevideo, June 12.—Nearly a dozen police squads swept over Uruguay in airplanes and automobiles today to search all Nazi "stutzpunkts," or support points, for arms following the discovery in the last few days of three German gliders, one parachute and one dismantled radio station in the possession of various Nazi agents in the neighborhood of Montevideo.

These search squads went as far as Rivera on the frontier with southern Brazil at Salto Paysandu where the Argentine police yesterday reported the discovery of a large cache of ammunition in the possession of a German citizen. Another squad went to Rocha near the Atlantic coast where there is a particularly strong German "stutzpunkt."

Both Argentina and Uruguay, in their dtermination to protect themselves from any possible Nazi uprising, are giving special attention

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday released a committee report recommending that special regulations be adopted to break the hold of the major networks on the broadcasting industry.

The result of an investigation of monopoly charges over a two-year period, the report attacks the contractual relationships between the networks and their affiliated stations and suggests the breaking up of the domination of clear channel and high-power stations by the chains.

The National Boadcasting System and the Columbia Broadcasting System are the objects of most of the criticism. More than half of the Nation's standard broadcast stations, the committee said, are on the major networks, which do the lion's share of the advertising business.

U. S. Citizenship Of Communist Officer Canceled

San Francisco, June 12 (AP).—The American citizenship of William Schneiderman, State secretary of the Communist Party, and a native of Russia, was canceled today by a Federal District Court ruling which held he belonged, during a probationary period, to organizations advocating violent overthrow of the Government.

Louis Mercado, assistant United States attorney, who conducted the Government's case, said the decision did not affect the question of membership in the Communist Party after an alien had become a citizen.

Annapolis, Md., June 12.—Maryland's income tax law, core of the State administration's budget-balancing program, is constitutional, the Court of Appeals held today.

The Court, however, held one minor subsection of the law dealing with the payment of taxes on ground rents invalid on grounds it violated Section 10, Article 1, of the Federal Constitution.

Italy to Lay Belt of Mines Around Malta

Zone Boxes Fortified British Isle, Cuts Mediterranean in Half

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 12.—Italy moved to cut the Mediterranean in half tonight with a wide new mine belt intended to box in completely the British fortified Island of Malta—Italy's first announced objective of the war.

Her other activity against the Allies in this third day of her participation on the side of Germany was largely an unknown quantity, however.

[It is 35 miles from Sicily across the Mediterranean to French African Tunisia. Roughly, half way lies the Italian island of Pantelleria. Apparently the mines are intended to keep Allied naval forces and sea borne supplies from the western Mediterranean from reaching the Allied land and sea forces now in the Middle East.]

Non-enemy ships passing from one end of the Mediterranean to the other now must go through the narrow Straits of Messina, between Sicily and the toe of Italy proper.

It was stated that "measures have been taken to hurry their passage."

The new mined zone, as described in a government communique, also appeared to throw a line of explosives across the sea routes between France's western Mediterranean naval bases and her base at Bizerte,

Paris Is All But Cut Off, Germans Say

Troops Some 12 Miles From Center Of City, Nazis Report

By C. Brooks Peters
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, June 12.—About midnight last night German troops were 12 and a half miles from Paris, the German high command said today, exactly one week after "the greatest offensive in all history" got under way in France.

In today's communique, moreover, general headquarters abandoned for the first time the almost complete secrecy which has shrouded the progress of its invading armies and declared that they have rapidly advanced and are advancing on all fronts and have crossed the lower Seine at several places, as well as reached the Marne with "strong" forces.

With this the predicament of Paris appears critical. For the French capital is now cut off from its main avenues of communication with the north, northwest and east. One German attacking force is northwest of Paris on the Oise, slightly east of Pont Oise, while another is before the Parisian fortifications on both sides of Senlis—which was the farthest point of the German advance on Paris in the World War.

To the east of the capital, the Germans have reached the Marne

23-Minute Raid

Japanese Bomb Chungking, Destroy Two-Thirds of City

By the Associated Press

Chungking, June 12.—In a 23-minute raid this afternoon 124 Japanese planes today destroyed two-thirds of old Chungking City, provisional capital of China, and caused casualties probably numbering 1,500. No foreigners were hurt.

American missionaries said the havoc was the worst single devastation caused by Japanese bombers since the start of hostilities nearly three years ago.

Between 800 and 900 demolition bombs were dropped.

The total area bombed probably was about a mile square but because of the density of population about 150,000 were left homeless.

It was emphasized that the old city housed no military objectives. Some expressed belief that Japan's sole aim was systematic destruction of the Chinese war-time capital.

Embassy officials and other Americans and foreigners expressed incredulity that such devastation could occur in such a short time.

Columns of black smoke poured from the stricken district after this second big raid in two days.

A raid yesterday by 117 planes caused at least 50 casualties. One bomb fell within 30 yards of the United States Embassy, two fell in the garden of the British Ambassador's home, and others partially demolished the Soviet Embassy.

The hospital was badly shaken, but remained open, and American property there was all

ELECTROCUTE INVADERS? Of all the suggestions which have poured into the Capital for defense of our shores, perhaps the broadest and most breath-takingly magnificent in conception comes from an old doughboy of the last war.

Harlan Miller

His idea would make defense so automatic that it could be operated by the President pushing a golden switch at the White House.

* * * *

"Electrical barriers could be placed over the entire Western Hemisphere," he writes, "which would stop and destroy all land troops wherever they tried to enter."

* * * *

"This sounds a bit fantastic," he adds, "but I firmly believe that electricity would be a real help." But what if the invaders perversely came in rubber boats, rubber boots and rubber gloves, well insulated against shock?

* * * *

COMPASSION: A European diplomat blocked traffic with his car near Dupont Circle, and a motorist was about to give him a piece of his mind.

"Let him be," said another motorist. "Probably he won't have any country left in a few days."

"—another crack at WPA"

WPA AGAIN: Even the promise that a large share of WPA will work on defense projects fails to assuage its more bitter critics.

"I suppose," said a Capitol Hill wit, "that now they'll rake cannonballs instead of leaves."

* * * *

FOND GRANDPAP: In floor debates and committee meetings Cong. Gene Cox, of Georgia, is about as tough and obstreperous a bundle of jangling egotism as any man on the hill. But you ought to see the beatific expression on his face when he holds his handsome red-haired grandson on his lap in the House on momentous days!

* * * *

CAT & MOUSE: One reason why you don't hear more of wholesale arrests of foreign agents in this country is that the FBI prefers to watch the fifth columnists and keep tab on their activities rather than to put them in jail.

* * * *

If they were arrested, they would simply be replaced by new men whose haunts and contacts might take some time to spot . . . The FBI knows who the chief Trojan Horse jockeys are and could seize several hundred in any 24 hours.

Defense is often served better by keeping them under surveillance than by trying to convict them in a difficult trial.

"—grandpap goes to war"

1,000 OVER 64: The feelings of American officers who have been retired in their forties aren't soothed by reports that there are over 1,000 officers in the German army past the age of 64, the compulsory American retirement age.

* * * *

Hitler, of course, needs every officer he can get who had World War experience, especially in the higher commands.

Meanwhile, our War Department is deluged with volunteers in their forties who think they're as good as they ever were.

"I'm 52," a World War vet told a high War Department official, "but I'm as fit as any man of 40 you ever saw."

LOOSE LEAF SPEECHES: In their final form, the President's speeches are usually typed on loose leaf paper and bound in a loose leaf notebook of black leather. From this notebook, about 9 inches by 12, he reads them, turning the leaves as he goes. Thus lost and misplaced pages are avoided.

Other high officials have adopted the loose leaf idea for their speeches, too. Sometimes these notebooks containing speeches are passed around for analysis and approval by other big shots.

Some of the orators have their speeches typed in letters three times the size of the standard letters, so they can be read without strain, almost as if they were being delivered by heart or extemporaneously . . .

No one has time to memorize speeches here nowadays.

Willkie 'Ahead of Trend' Strong As Roosevelt '32 Boom, He Says

Expects 70 Votes On 1st Ballot; Halleck Will Nominate Him

By Robert C. Albright,
Post Staff Writer

Wendell L. Willkie, late entry in the Republican Presidential sweepstakes, yesterday told reporters he was "ahead of a trend" as strong as the one that swept President Roosevelt into office in 1932.

The tousle-haired, 48-year-old utility executive who has jumped to second place among G. O. P. candidates in Gallup poll strength, announced his name will be presented to the Republican convention by Representative Halleck (Republican), of Indiana. He said he will "grow" from a first ballot nucleus of possibly 70 votes.

Interviewed by newsmen following an off-the-record National Press Club address, Willkie said he is in accord with the Administration on aid to the Allies and on foreign trade policy. But he called for more comprehensive defense planning and predicted the Republicans should win on the domestic and foreign issues of "competence" in Government.

Martin May Yield

"I symbolize a trend," Willkie told reporters. "The American people are weary of businessbaiting. They want more competence and unity in Government, and they are for the private enterprise system."

Meanwhile, at the Capitol House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., another dark horse, announced he will forego presiding at the Republican convention as permanent chairman and stick to his leadership post here if Congress remains in session for the June 24 convention week. He said "it is my duty to stay here" unless Congress takes a recess.

In the Senate, two Republican members of the G. O. P. resolutions committee likewise announced they will not attend next week's preconvention platform drafting sessions in Philadelphia if the Senate remains in session. They were Senator Townsend, of Delaware, and Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts.

Willkie, one-time itinerant farmhand who became president of Commonwealth & Southern, said that in a 27-State check he found "the people in this country generally are anxious to assist the democracies." He said he discovered no sectional isolationism in the Midwest.

Says Administration Erred

But he declared the Administration had erred in not making a comprehensive study of National defense and had moved instead by "jerks and starts."

Declaring if the totalitarian states win the war "the consequences for us will be very, grave," he said "America has a stake."

He favored aid to the Allies short of sending men. He said America lacks troops to send, equipment to send with them "and is resolved no boy shall go."

While generally favoring the Administration's foreign program, Willkie said it had been "somewhat secretive and too emotional." He said it should be the duty of the President to wield a restraining influence against going into war unless forced to do so by Congress and the people."

He replied "Certainly not!" when asked if a vigorous campaign in the present war crisis would be harmful to the country. He said democracy is being tested, and this country should go through with its normal democratic processes and make them work.

"The intensity of the war program has increased the possibility of defeating the New Deal, because the American people want to put competence in Government," he added.

Indorses Hull Objectives

Wilkie indorsed the objectives of the Hull trade program. He said that in increased trade and monetary stabilization and a rising standard of living, lies the chief hope of permanent peace.

Willkie praised the three industrial members of the President's defense commission and Sidney Hillman, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and said he did not know the other three. He said he had no quarrel with collective bargaining and thought the war emergency "should not be used as a means to break down social objectives."

Insofar as possible, he declared capital required for production of defense instruments should be private capital. He said only minor modifications in some existing statutes are needed to start capital flowing "but above all it requires a changed attitude."

Willkie said he had first ballot or latent strength in Indiana, New York, New Jersey, Missouri, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, North Carolina, Connecticut and possibly Colorado. A Democrat until "the party left me," he said he last contributed to the Democrats ($150) in 1932. He said he never belonged or contributed to the Liberty League.

Asked about his recent conference with Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, he said:

"Gov. Landon and myself find ourselves very much in accord in principle."

He voted for Landon in 1936.

Simpson Ousted

Albany, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Thomas E. Dewey triumphed in a showdown test of his home State strength today when New York's delegation to the Republican National Convention voted to oust National Committeeman Kenneth F. Simpson, hostile to Dewey's Presidential aspirations.

The delegates, by a count of 55 to 37, chose J. Russel Sprague, of Nassau County, to replace Simpson. New York City leader whose feud with Dewey has split the New York State organization for months.

gressional "bickering and quibbling" over the matter was like "Nero fiddling while Rome burned."

Secretary Woodring announced that next year's courses at the Army War College and command and general staff school would be called off to make 892 officers available for troop duty. Similar action affecting other Army schools was said to be under consideration.

Plan 24-Hour Schedule

Chairman Walsh and Vinson of the Senate and House Naval Affairs Committees said after a conference with President Roosevelt that navy yards and arsenals would soon go on a 24-hour-a-day basis. They said that three shifts rather than overtime would be used whenever possible.

The War Department ordered the First Battalion of the Fourth Infantry from Fort Missoula, Mont., to Anchorage, Alaska, to protect an air base now being established there. Supporting artillery, engineers, and other troops will be drawn from West Coast units to accompany it.

The House approved a conference report on legislation to consolidate the Navy's Bureau of Engineering and Bureau of Construction and Repair, and authorize an Undersecretary of the Navy during any emergency such as the present.

Lundeen Sees A Plot

During the Senate foreign policy debate, charges were made that British propaganda was behind much of the sentiment for aiding the Allies. Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, said "British propagandists have a fund of $165,000,000 for use in getting the United States into war."

Senator Wheeler referred to the full page advertisements which have appeared in many papers urging "Stop Hitler Now," and said the Nation should know who was paying for it. He asked what had become of the resolution of Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, to investigate propaganda activities here.

"I don't think it has the approval of Lord Lothian (British Ambassador to the United States) yet," Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, put in.

Urging an investigation of "British as well as Nazi and Communist propaganda," Holt attacked the sponsors of the "Stop Hitler Now" campaign and the group who last week urged American entrance into the war. He said William Allen White and "18 bankers" had started the advertising campaign after being called together by Frederick R. Coudert, whom he described as the "legal advisor of the British Embassy, who helped lead us into the last World War."

The Senator said that President Conant of Harvard University, "which has heavy investments in British bonds," Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., "who has always been interested in the involvement of the United States in Europe," also were behind the advertising campaign.

Senator Wheeler said that Great Britain had interpreted the American policy of sending arms to the Allies as meaning we eventually will go into the war, and added that we ought not "fool them" this way. He said the Senate ought to "serve notice it isn't going to vote for war."

"America ought to wake up," Wheeler declared.

Senator Clark, of Missouri, called attention to an article in the London Daily Express stating that Senators Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and Johnson (Republican), of California, were the only "isolationists" left. He declared there will be many other members of Congress who will oppose American entrance into the war "to the last ditch."

In placing the huge warship order, the Navy acted with unprecedented speed. Acting Secretary Lewis Compton sent telegrams to shipyards within 45 minutes after President Roosevelt signed the naval supply bill making available the funds.

And as the action raised to ten the number of battleships officially listed as "building," the Navy prepared to launch a dreadnaught started in 1937. The North Carolina will slide down the ways at the New York Navy Yard today, the second battleship to be launched this month.

The last of the defense appropriation bills, carrying funds for the Army, Navy, FBI and other agencies, now goes to the Senate. It provides $1,031,678,808 in cash and contractual authority for the Army to provide large numbers of tanks and munitions and new munitions factories as well as planes and additional troops.

The Navy would receive a total of $568,523,170 for speeding up shipbuilding and equipping vessels with antiaircraft protection among other defense needs. Funds for launching the expanded CAA civil air training program and for employing 500 additional FBI agents for protection against "fifth column" activities are also provided.

Theater of War Likely to Spread, Lothian Declares

Copyright by New York Times

New York, June 12.—The entry of Italy into the European war on the side of Germany has opened the door for the spread of the conflagration throughout the world. Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, said today at nited Kingdom Day ceremonies at the World's Fair.

He said the theater of the war almost certainly would fan out now toward Asia, Africa and the sea lanes of the South Atlantic, and that "history and the Almighty will hold Mussolini responsible for a world war.

The belligerent action of Premier Mussolini also was denounced by Mayor LaGuardia, who emphasized that we cannot "enjoy freedom without peace but we refuse peace without freedom." The mayor deploed the fact that "one man can lead the destiny of a people," and he classified nazism with "bubonic plague, cholera and other sources throughout the world."

Morgenthau Indorses Cut In Expenses

Approves Measure To Raise New Income And Lift Debt Limit

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Approving the tax bill to raise new income and lift the debt limit, Secretary Morgenthau yesterday indorsed a slash in Federal expenditures as a third step in meeting the increased financial burden of the national defense program.

At the same time, the Secretary opposed achieving economies by reducing the salaries of Federal employes. Such a move, he said, would place "'a disproportionate part" of the cost of rearmament on their shoulders, since, like everyone else, they will be liable for higher taxes "in accordance with their ability to pay." Many Federal employes, he said, are already working extra hours without recompense.

Testifying at the Senate Finance Committee's opening hearing on the tax bill, Secretary Morgenthau also opposed "random" cuts requiring "premature curtailment" of relief rolls, retardation of "necessary" public works, or impairment of "essential administrative expenditures."

The Secretary said the $4,000,000,000 of national defense securities, which the pending bill authorizes above the present $45,000,000,000 debt limit, will be subject to Federal income taxation.

Urges Taxes on Bonds

Urging that Congress permit taxation of all future issues of Federal, State and local securities, Secretary Morgenthau said that in any case he had authority under existing law to make the proposed defense obligations taxable.

To the suggestion of Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, that the anticipated $1,000,000,000 annual yield of the present bill is mere "chicken feed" and that much more income should be raised, Secretary Morgenthau replied: "I'll stay in the game as long as you will."

The Secretary asserted that the Treasury has data already prepared for general revision of the tax structure—a move that is considered a virtual certainty not later than the next session of Congress.

Asked by Senator Byrd if this is not an "opportune time" for revision, the Secretary replied: "It is if you gentlement are willing to stay here."

But even if there is no rewriting of the tax law at this session, the present bill is expected to be amended in at least one important respect; Senator Byrd's proposal for an average 10 per cent cut in Federal expenditures (except for national defense and fixed charges), saving $300,000,000.

Hearings Close Tomorrow

The Finance Committee agreed yesterday to conclude hearings on the tax measure by tomorrow noon and to vote on the bill Saturday so that it can reach the Senate floor Monday.

The tax measure was attacked yesterday by Lee Pressman, general counsel of the C. I. O., who in a letter to Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee charged that "nearly one-half" of the expected yield would be paid by "workers and low-income groups."

Asserting that he "strongly favors" passage of the proposed bill Secretary Morgenthau told the committee yesterday that "the public is willing and ready to accept the additional burden necessary to support adequate National defense."

By the end of this month, warned the Secretary, the unused borrowing power of the Treasury will have shrunk to $1,700,000,000—while expenditures for the fiscal year beginning July 1 are expected to "exceed by $4,350,000,000 the revenues so far provided."

Capitol May Get Washington Statue

A statue of George Washington may be placed on the west terrace of the Capitol at a site which was found unsuited for the figure of John Marshall because it is not where it can be seen by the thousands of tourists who flock to Capitol Hill.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed a bill authorizing the purchase of a bronze replica of the George Washington statue executed by J. Q. A. Ward and now on the steps of the subtreasury building in New York City. The purchase price is $15,000.

Wallace Calls For Emergency Farm Program

Urges Congress Act This Session Because Of War Situation

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace called yesterday for a reexamination of the farm problem by Congress before adjournment "because of the war situation."

"If the appropriate committees look another look at the farm situation now," said Wallace at a press conference, "they would probably find a need for action."

The Secretary refused to say whether he would ask Congress at this session to enact an emergency farm program. But some Agriculture Department officials said it was not unlikely that the President may ask Congress for emergency measures to help farmers meet the shock of spreading war abroad.

Explains Meaning of "Action"

What Wallace meant by "action" was revealed in a formal statement he made to the press asking:

Expanded shipments of food to Europe to feed refugees. Wallace said "the opinion seems to be widespread in the United States that Europe in the coming months will see the most serious famine in the world's history."

Increased support for domestic programs to boost consumption of food products, such as the Triple-A program, Food Stamp plan and removal of surpluses for direct distribution to the needy.

Wallace, without asking that Johnson Act bans on loans to defaulting European nations be removed, said, in response to a question, that if credits were made available to the British "they could take about $100,000,000 of our food products."

The farm task of the future, Wallace said, is to cope with surpluses of foods that will be backed up in the United States owing to the spread of war. Markets are "for all practical purposes eliminated," he said, in the Mediterranean area, central Europe, Scandinavia, Holland, Belgium and the Balkans.

Plans for Emergency

But while considering reduction of surpluses as the immediate problem, Wallace revealed that his department had made preparations to begin "to the limit" farm production in case of a food emergency.

Machinery for unlimited farm production is at hand, Wallace said, through the county-by-county organizations of the AAA and the Extension Service.

'Dust Bowler' Blows Into Bethesda On Way to N. Y. Fair—in Ox Cart

TWO MORE MONTHS AND NEW YORK—Orville Ewing, 52, of Pritchett, Colo., rolled into Bethesda, Md., with his ox-cart yesterday and estimated that in two months he would reach his destination—the New York World's Fair. Ewing is shown milking his goat, Elizabeth. His other traveling companions are Edith and Bessie, month-old goats, and the "Little Red Hen," that lays an egg a day

A wiry, sun-tanned Westerner, who left Pritchett, Col., in an ox-cart last Labor Day, rolled into Bethesda, Md., yesterday and calculated that in two months he would reach his destination—the New York World's Fair.

He is Orville Ewing, 52, who used to be a "chalk-talk" artist before he took to the open road in pioneer fashion to earn a living selling postcards and displaying advertising placards on his covered cart.

Producing a whole stack of postcards of his wife and two children back home in the Colorado "Dust Bowl," Ewing observed:

"If you ever need money, just take pictures of your family and sell them."

Ewing is accompanied by a veritable menagerie—Elizabeth, a nanny goat; her three kids, Friday, Edith and Bessie; San Dimas, a pet dog and "the little red hen." The ox's name is "Old Jerrry" alias "Sonny Boy."

"I eat an egg a day and drink goat's milk direct from the factory," Ewing said.

This is Ewing's second ox-cart trek. In 1938 he visited San Francisco.

X-Ray Test of Army Recruits Urged to Save U. S. Millions

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, June 12.—Test X-ray of all members of the American military forces was urged today by Dr. J. Arthur Myers, veteran tuberculosis expert, before the American Medical Association convention here.

Dr. Myers, of Minneapolis, former president of the National Tuberculosis Association, told 2,000 physicians assembled in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel that veterans afflicted with tuberculosis have cost the United States Government more than $1,000,000,000 since the World War. He added:

"Quite apart from the saving of a large part of these enormous expenditures, we have no right to expose our soldiers to so easily communicable and wholly preventable a disease."

Dr. Myers declared that present-day, rapid-film methods make possible the X-raying of masses of individuals economically.

Tuberculosis costs to the Federal Government since the World War, he said, have been $1,000,000,000 in veterans' compensation, while hospitalization costs for 1939 alone were $6,400,000. In 1938, he added, 10,989 new cases were admitted to veterans hospitals, with the load still increasing year by year.

A. M. A. Hears D. C. Doctor

New York, June 12 (AP).—Poisoning with the rare element, selenium, was suggested today as a human hazard by Dr. M. I. Smith, of Washington, D. C. before the American Medical Association's annual meeting.

The disease is common among livestock in some parts of the Midwest and in some mountain States, owing to large percentages of selenium in the soil. It was first described as the "hoof rot" disease in the horses of Marco Polo on his trek to China.

Czechs in U. S. To Be Registered In Loyalty Test

The Czecho-Slovak Legation disclosed yesterday that its diplomatic and consular offices in the United States are seeking to determine "who is loyal to the republic" by registering all Czecho-Slovak nationals in the United States.

The only reason given for the registration, described as routine, was to obtain a record for use when Czecho-Slovaks in this country seek influence and protection of their consular service.

"Persons failing to register forfeit thereby their right to consular protection," said an announcement from the legation.

Picture Story of Capitol's Ideal Father to Be Told Tomorrow

They got in under the wire yesterday, a father who recently taught himself to crochet and a father, 68, who goes to work at 5:30 a. m. every day and a number of other nominees in The Post's Father's Day contest whose backers waited until the last day to file their claims.

Last midnight was the deadline for mailing letters to the Father's Day editor, who by this time has stacks of "ideal father" nominations. An eleventh hour candidate is just as eligible as one who was advanced early in the competition, which opened June 2, and all entries received today will be carefully considered—provided the letter bears a June 12 postmark.

A full page of pictures of the winner and his child, or children, showing the daddy in some of the activities that played a part in his selection will be published in The Post tomorrow.

"Speaking of daddies, there is only one best, and I have him," according to Miss E. Laurine Bradley, of Arlington, Va., whose nomination was received yeste day. "With very little help at the beginning, he has learned to crochet and has made two beautiful yarn afghans, as well as several crocheted rugs."

Another late nominee, also elderly, was John B. Crawford, entered by Mrs. Ethel Payne, his daughter, of 629 Park road northwest. At 68, he works daily from 5:30 a. m. to 6 p. m., has reared seven children and is now helping to bring up three grandchildren, said Mrs. Payne.

Then there was the letter that came from a woman who, at her request, will be identified by her initials, M. B. H. It is reproduced here in full because its simple message has captured the spirit of Father's Day.

"This offering is not in the contest," she wrote. "It is merely a tribute to a father over whose grave the green grass has waved in the summer and the snow has spread a soft, white blanket in the winter for many a year.

"After my mother's death it was necessary to employ a housekeeper, and he secured an old lady whom we called 'Granny Knight,' who retired to her room with her pipe and knitting each evening when her duties were done, and my father remained with us in the big living room, seated around the table with newspapers, books and toys, or scrambling about the floor.

"Until the fullness of years came to us, I suppose it never occurred to any of us that our father lavished upon us anything more than our due, or that he made any sacrifices for us. He was just our father."

Duce's Failure to Close Suez Called First Mistake of War; Italy Also Disappointed as Bulgaria Declines to Join Axis

Allied Diplomacy Blamed for Lifting Of Oil Rationing

By Augur

Copyright by New York Times

London, June 12.—One day of warfare does not suffice to form a judgment of Premier Mussolini's generalship, although allowing the British Royal Air Force to take the initiative in bombing Italian bases in Libya may turn out to have been a mistake not only in the military but also in the psychological domain.

Yet it is impossible not to see that the Italian plan has miscarried already in one of the most important details.

Mussolini has not succeded in bottling up the Suez Canal. Yet that bottling-up is the most essential detail in the carefully nursed scheme of action against the British forces in the Near East. It was confidently expected that the Italian navy, as the first thing, would attempt to make the canal unusable for a long time, thus depriving the Allied fleets of a means of receiving bulky supplies except by the safe route around South Africa.

Disappointed By Bulgaria

Another disappointment suffered by Mussolini undoubtedly is the attitude of Bulgaria. Contrary to expectations the latter country rejected the Italian offer to join the cause of the Axis powers. The Germans have been steadily spending in Sofia an annual sum exceeding the yearly budget of the kingdom. Those bribes, however, were not successful in bringing Bulgaria out at the decisive moment openly on the side of the dictators.

The government of King Boris replied that Bulgaria's intention was to join the other Balkan powers in resisting any attempt to carry the war to that part of Europe. The fact is that Bulgaria has thrown in her lot with Turkey and Yugoslavia. Probably influence from Moscow was thrown in to support the policy adopted by the Bulgarians.

Worth placing on record is that Mussolini, in spite of his servile relationship to Adolf Hitler, even today would have remained neutral had the Allies stuck to their original decision to ration his oil supplies. At the outset of the war Italian stocks were sufficient for a fortnight at the most.

Diplomats to Blame

The original decision was to ration the oil, never allowing Italy more than a month's supply. Later, unfortunately, meddling diplomacy interfered, in the belief that economic concessions would gradually win over Mussolini to the side of the Allies. Against the advice of experts, Mussolini was allowed to accumulate stocks of nigh-grade oil sufficient for many months. The reward for this sloppiness is the present extension of the theater of war.

Mussolini relied on blocking the Suez Canal to intimidate King Farouk of Egypt as a demonstration of the weakness of British forces. He relied on Bulgaria to upset the balance in the Balkans to his favor. Netither hope was fulfilled.

common consent, that takes absolute precedence to the defense of these islands."

A military spokesman here yesterday declared "it seems impossible that 30 divisions can be sent to France, but it must be done and if it is done we have won."

Prime Minister Churchill, who conferred yesterday with French officials in France, is expected to make a statement today on the war situation.

There has been "no slackening" of the German attack, it was said.

"The situation remains one of extreme difficulty," one commentator said. "The Germans are staking everything on this battle."

Italy's Ship Losses Rise

Italy's merchant marine losses rose to 70,000 tons as the 9,515-ton Calabria was seized at Calcutta, and the crew of the 9,700-ton Romolo set her afire when overtaken by an armed Australian merchant ship in mid-Pacific.

The Suez Canal was closed to Italian shipping, cutting off Italian East Africa from supplies and reinforcements.

Outnumbered but game, the British air force carried the war to Italy and Germany yesterday.

Heavy bombers operating from the British Isles have attacked military objectives at Turin and Genoa, Italy, the air ministry announced. One of the British bombers was said to be missing following this action.

The assaults on objectives at Turin and Genoa were but part of far flung operation by the Royal Air Force in the past 36 hours, raids also extended over western Germany and the front in France.

The Air Ministry told of a 10-minute action by the R. A. F. in support of Allied armies resisting the right wing of the German offensive aimed at encirclement of Paris. These airmen dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs at the rate of more than 100 a minute, it was said.

The raid was one of a series against German concentrations southeast of Rouen. The Air Ministry said convoys were wrecked, mechanized columns scattered and road junctions blocked.

The announcement said 20 German armored vehicles received a full salvo of bombs and that 10 big tanks were enveloped in smoke and debris when heavy bombs fell around them.

Objectives at Cologne and other points in western Germany also became targets for the British bomb loads.

Libya Base Raided

Royal Air Force bombers of the middle east command again raided Libya yesterday, directing their principal attack on the naval air base at Tobruk.

The attack on the base, which was also raided Tuesday, was described as "successful." Tobruk is on the coast of Libya, about 100 miles west of the Egyptian border.

Wave after wave of Blenheims, the British announcement in Cairo said, swept over the Italian harbor.

The bombers scored one direct hit on a large warship apparently used as a supply vessel, the British said.

The ship began to burn fiercely, the airmen reported, and the crew apparently were trying to beach it. Two submarines also were reported to have been hit. No British casualties were reported.

One Italian fighter was shot down in flames and another was crippled.

A lone British plane carried out a raid of its own on an Italian airdrome, sweeping over three times before meeting resistance. Subsequently one of his engines was damagd, his undercarriage wrecked and his fuel tank punctured but he managed to land over the Egyptian border.

One of the three planes missing in yesterday's raids was forced down on Italian territory. The pilot was believed taken prisoner—the first to fall into Italian hands.

In a raid into Italian East Africa Tuesday night the R. A. F. reported bombing a gasoline supply at Massawa, capital of Eritrea. The fliers said the flaming fuel could be seen for many miles.

Bag 8 Nazi Planes

At least eight German planes were said to have been destroyed by the British over France. Besides the heavy bomber missing in the foray over Italy one British fighting plane has not returned, the air ministry reported.

The ministry covered the attack on the Italian cities in these words:

"In the course of reconnaissance over northern Italy heavy bombers operating from Great Britain attacked military objectives at Turin while others bombed targets at Genoa. One of our heavy bombers is missing."

England dug in even deeper at home. Splinter-proof air raid shelters for 20,000,000 Britons were completed.

From Gibraltar and the Island of Malta 1,000 women and children reached England.

A 20-mile wide strip along the entire southern coast of England was barried to aliens. A similar restricted area on the east coast was extended north to within 100 miles of the Scottish border.

Polish Sub Lost

The Polish submarine Orzel has been lost, it was announced yesterday.

The Orzel escaped internment at Talinn, Estonia, last September 16 by sailing suddenly without authorization. Shore batteries fired upon her without success. The Orzel had gone to Estonia when German armies occupied Polish ports.

On April 19 the British admiralty said that the Orzel had sunk the German transport Rio de Janiero on April 8, sending 300 German troops to their deaths.

Italian Mines To Box Malta

Tunisia.

The mine zone extends on the western side from the French Tunisian coast north to a point off the Sardinian coast, thence southeast to the Sicilian coast.

On the other side, the mines were laid from the Sicilian coast to a point southeast of Malta, Britain's island fortress, thence to Anglo, southwest of Rasagedir.

[First victim of an Italian mine was the 2,947-ton Greek steamer Zinavia, which struck a mine and sank near the island of Pantelleria. Two of the crew of 30 are missing.]

The Allies brought the war to Italy earlier in the day with raids on the great industrial cities of Milan and Turin and other points in the north.

Other enemy action of unspecified nature burst along the Ligurian coast, on which Genoa is located. (The British reported air raids on Turin and Genoa, but did not mention Milan.)

The first war communique reported belatedly only yesterday's air bombardment of Malta "with apparent results" and a fight with British planes which bombed Libya. All Italian planes returned safely. (Malta dispatches claimed two were shot down.)

Details of the raids on Italy were withheld. Newspapers reported merely that antiaircraft guns were in action and that the firing was particularly heavy around Milan.

Army on Frontier

It was known that Italy had massed a great army on the French frontier, apparently for a drive through the maritime Alps where the French are strongly entrenched.

(At Tours, new seat of the French government, a military commentator declared the only action of 60 to 70 Italian divisions, completely mobilized on the frontier, had been to blow up a bridge at Vinti Mille on the French border in the Alps.)

The report of action on the Ligurian coast, which lies between Leghorn and the French-Italian frontier, south of Turin and Milan, did not explain whether it was naval or aerial and details were withheld pending official announcement.

"Previously arranged deployment of land, sea and air forces," said the communique, was carried out in orderly fashion at midnight, June 10, Italy's zero hour.

Claim Planes Downed

The communique said two enemy planes were brought down "when an attempted incursion on the part of British aviation on the Cyranaican frontier was repelled," and told of reconnaissance flights over "North African territory and its ports."

Crown Prince Umberto, inspector of infantry, sent a message of encouragement to his troops.

"March with unshakable faith and heroic vision of past triumphs toward new and certain destinies of imperial Italy," Umberto said.

"The fatherland is expecteing still more splendid glories from you who are as brave and tenacious as ever."

Marne Crossed, Battle Raging In Paris Suburbs

The region between the Aisne and Meuse rvers was reported quiet.

The Germans had taken Rouen, the port of Paris on the Seine, and by their own claims had cut off and captured some 20,000 French troops at St. Valery, 20 miles down the Channel coast from Dieppe. They had captured Senlis, historic World War town, only 26 miles north of Paris, apparently crossing the Oise from the west.

From the lower Seine to the Argonne Forest the battle raged. As the guns roared along the whole irregular front, word came up from the south that the Italians, with 60 or 70 divisions (perhaps 900,000 or 1,000,000 men) mobilized, had blown up a bridge at Vinti Mille on the French border in the Alps.

As the German army advanced, trying to complete a vast circling movement around Paris, the military governor ordered all employes of the public services in the Seine-et-Oise and Seine-et-Marne departments to remain at their posts. These are areas immediately west and east of Paris.

Stores Requisitioned

The prefecture of the Seine department, which includes Paris, requisitioned all bakeries, pharmacies and groceries.

When the armies of Von Kluck and Von Bulow reached the Marne in the Indian summer of 1914, the French turned them back with a swift flanking attack.

Now, in the Vic-Sur-Aisne, about midway between Soissons and Compiegne, the Germans crossed to the south bank of the river and from a high plateau opened another offensive to bring them closer to Senlis, already in their hands, and the road to Paris down the Oise Valley.

Czechs Enter Fight

The French cabinet in a 2½-hour session tonight heard Premier Reynaud, back from a tour of thefront, explain the military situation. President Lebrun presided.

The Czecho-Slovak national committee informed Reynaud and British Prime Minister Churchill that the Czech people would "fight to the end" with the Allies.

The telegrams added that Czech airmen and first units of the reconstructed Czech army were joining the Allied forces.

somewhere west of Chateau Thierry with "strong" forces.

Other historic World War cities claimed to be in German hands today were Rheims, Compiegne—"scene of the disgraceful armistice of 1918" according to the communique—and Villers-Cotterets, between Soissons and Chateau Thierry.

Face a Sack

It would thus appear that Paris and the French forces fighting in its defense in the north and east may be exposed now to the familiar encircling tactics of the German motorized forces assisted by planes and be caught in one of those sacks which proved so disastrous for the Poles.

The Germans declare that the city of Paris cannot be expected to resist modern weapons and therefore it would be regrettable were the French command to barricade it and endeavor to make a stand there. They leave no doubt that should such an attempt be made the lesson of Warsaw will have been in vain.

[The possibility that Germany might be pointing up another spear to thrust into France arose with the report that German artillery was active on the upper Rhine front, a quiet area up to now, the Associated Press said.

A German spokesman cautiously commented that a new front might be in the process of "being brought into motion."

Nazis Quiet on Rhine

[The French shelled German forts on the Rhine north of Basel through the night at half-hour intervals, but the German forts remained silent, a Basel dispatch said.

[The reduction in manpower on both sides of the Rhine during the last 24 hours indicated to military observers, that neither planned to launch an offensive across the Rhine, Basel reported.]

The greatest advance, meanwhile, has been made by the German right wing, along the French Channel coast. The advance of this wing as well as the German center is declared by general headquarters "to have led to complete success." For it was announced today that the Germans had captured Rouen several days ago, while the lower Seine had been crossed at several places. This right wing, moreover, has advanced more than 60 miles in the past week and has cut Paris off from France's second largest port, Le Havre.

Allied Force Trapped

The high command this afternoon said an Allied force was encircled at St. Valery-en-Caux, on the French Channel coast, between Dieppe and Le Harve.

The situation of this beleaguered force, the Germans said, resembled that of the French and British troops trapped around Dunkerque. At St. Valery, too, the Germans declared, the Allies tried to evacuate France and get as many men and as much material as possible to England, employing any kind of craft they could lay hands on.

The attempt was not very successful, however, for yesterday the German air force, in addition to bombing the harbor appointments at Le Havre again, sank seven transports endeavoring to evacuate troops, one of 5,000 tons, as well as damaging ten othe. transports, three of which were between 10,000 and 15,000 tons. Fire, the Germans report, broke out on some of the latter vessels after they had been struck by bombs.

Late this afternoon, however, a special communique announced that St. Valery-en-Caux had capitulated after further attempts to escape by sea had failed. Therewith the Germans declared an Allied force of more than 20,000 men, including one French army corps general and one British and four French divisional generals and "vast quantities" of war materials had fallen into their hands, releasing the German force there to reinforce the push toward Le Havre.

There is still an Allied forced encircled at Dieppe, it is said.

Allied losses in this extreme northern sector, the Germans assert, are extremely heavy. Remnants of divisions that faced them there, the Germans add, have been thrown back across the Lower Seine. It is believed in neutral military circles in Berlin, moreover, that the defeat at St. Valery-en-Caux means the imminent capture of Le Havre and therewith control by the Germans of the continental Atlantic coast from North Cape, Norway, to the bay of the Seine.

On its extreme right wing, moreover, the German air force, which, it is constantly repeated here, rules the French air, did more than sink transports, for, probably at Le Havre, it managed to land a bomb of the heaviest caliber on either a battleship or a heavy cruiser. The warship was "seriously damaged."

Argentina's fleet of efficient river gunboats has been hurriedly dispatched to patrol the frontiers of Uruguay, Paraguay and Brazil. Simultaneously, Argentine army units and gendarmerie along the frontiers have been reinforced. Uruguay has not only increased her frontier forces but has taken unusual military measures throughout the country.

Secretary of State Hull yesterday said relations between the United States and Brazil "ow are more intimate, whole-hearted, friendly and cooperative than at any time he could recall.

The statement followed a much-discussed address by the Brazilian President, Getulio Vargas, in which he criticized the "sterile demagogy of political democracy" and appeared to be defending totalitarianism. Hull's comment added to the general belief, reported from various Latin American points, that the Brazilian chief executive had been speaking largely for home consumption, where there are large German and Italian minorities.

The Secretary of State gave assurance, in effect, that the Vargas speech did not mark any departure from the close Pan American cooperation that has been manifested in matters of hemisphere concern.

Hull said, in reply to questions, that Mexico also has been similarly cooperating before the war, during the war and especially in the most recent acute period.

Cruiser Arrives at Rio

Rio de Janeiro, June 12 (AP).—The United States cruiser Quincy, dispatched to South America on a "good will cruise," arrived at Rio de Janeiro today.

President Vargas' speech praising "vigorous new regimes"—ostensibly Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy—was interpreted by informed quarters today as an attempt to propitiate both democratic Pan Americanism and the absolutist Brazilian army.

"Vargas, dictator of Brazil for ten years, is playing the role of a man walking a tight rope with democracy on one end and dictatorship as a vague promise on the other," said one well informed observer.

"In his decade in office Vargas has been led to temporize now one faction, now another to insure continuity of his regime," this commentator went on. "He is the only man in Brazil's republican history to hold office longer than four years.

Two South American countries meanwhile took precautions against possible fifth columnists.

Guatemala strengthened an existing ban on political activities and propaganda among foreigners by prohibiting naturalized Guatemalans from maintaining foreign political affiliations.

Naturalized Guatemalans who have failed to renounce allegiance to the countries of their origin were ordered to do so in two months. Guatemala has one of the largest German colonies in Central America.

Authorities at Parana, capital of Entrerios province in Argentina, began registration and identification of all Germans.

U. S. Cooperation Invited in Nazi News Article

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, June 12.—An invitation to join "the new, strong powers" and to cooperate with Germany is extended to the United States by Das Schwarze Korps, organ of the National Socialist elite guard.

Declaring that never in 165 years of American history has there been any real cause for bad blood between the Reich and the United States, the paper states, "cooperation with Germany may be of great usefulness to the United States," adding that "naturally America will continue, in such event, to follow her own laws of life."

The United States is told that "the tangible goals of their policy do not lie in Europe but before their own door"—In other words there is no reason for America to get mixed up in the present conflict when it can serve its own ends better by cooperating with the Reich when the war is over. The Reich, it is implied, will be the dominant power in Europe then, and the United States, if it bets on the Allies, will find it has picked the wrong horse.

Report of Peace Move Unfounded

State Department officials last night characterized as wholly without foundation printed and broadcast reports that American Ambassador William Bullitt had reported to the State Department from Paris that France was considering concluding a separate peace.

They said no such word had been received from the Ambassador.

Lack of Religion War Crisis Cause, Says D. C. Rabbi

The war crisis is the penalty for the decay of religious faith, Rabbi Harry Silverstone yesterday warned at services marking the second day of the Jewish Festival of Weeks. It commemorates the giving of the Ten Commandments to Moses on Mount Sinai. Rabbi Silverstone spoke at the Tifereth Israel Synagogue, Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest.

The Feast of Weeks, which will be continued today with Yiskor (memorial) rites in synagogues, was celebrated yesterday at the Washington Hebrew Congregation with special services, including the confirmation of 18 children.

They were:

Ronald Colman, Florence Jeanne Danheiser, Sadie Eiseman, Charlotte Footer, Doris Goldberg, Norma Herman, Janet Himelfarb, Marjorie Jaffe, Franklin Kahn, Florence Kaufman, Hett Lore Koppel, Jean Marjorie Saperstein, Sidney Seidenman, Leonard Sinker, Robert Sinker, Adrienne R. Stern, Ruth Sherle Ullman, Barbara Rose Vallin.

Restrictions Lifted For Radio 'Hams'

Washington radio "hams" operating portable equipment under 56,000 kilocycles who last Friday were prohibited from further operation by the Federal Communications Commission, have been given a new lease of life on the ether waves.

The commission Tuesday amended its ruling to allow the amateurs to operate in any "bona fide" emergency and between sunrise and sunset Saturdays and Sundays.

Senator Reynold's Daughter in Italy

Frances Reynolds, 25-year-old daughter of Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, was caught in Florence with Italy's entrance into the War, aides of the Senator said here yesterday.

They said that the Senator was working through the State Department to bring her home. It was considered likely that arrangements could be made for her to fly back by Clipper plane from Lisbon. Miss Rynolds has been in Florence studying sculpture.

Action on 8-Hour Changes Delayed

Amendments to the women's eight-hour law will have to go other until the next session of Congress, Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, said yesterday.

Canceling a promised hearing on the legislation asked by the Commissioners, McGehee said that there is too much difference of opinion on the measure and adjournment is too close for him to try to get it accepted by the House at this session.

U. S. Sanction Sought for Army Of Jews to Fight Beside Allies

First Lady Favors Compulsory Training For Americans

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—Vladimir Jabotinsky, president of the World New Zionist organization, said today official recognition of a Jewish army to be recruited in the United States and abroad to fight with the Allies was being sought in Paris, London and Ottawa.

Jabotinsky, who organized the Jewish battalions that fought with the British in the World War, estimated there were 100,000 American Jews of military age in this country.

"I believe American public opinion favors a change in the law," he said, "to facilitate enlistment of Americans with the Allies."

He said, at a press conference, that his organization already was conferring with Washington authorities with a view to obtaining the Administration's support.

Make Good Airmen

Jabotinsky, who founded the Jewish battalions which fought with the British army in the last war, was seconded by Col. J. H. Patterson, retired British army officer, who commanded the Jewish legion.

Jews would make good airmen, Col. Patterson said, adding:

"The Germans can't think fast. And if I were a Jew, I'd like nothing better than to see a Jewish air squadron over Berlin."

The likeliest place to train Jewish recruits from this country, Canada and South America would be in Canada, he continued, and said he "could have infantry trained within three months."

[In Washington, Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, yesterday introduced a bill that would allow Americans to volunteer to fight in the Allied armies. Provisions in the criminal code barring Americans from serving in foreign armies would be repealed under Celler's bill.—Editor's note.]

Favors Compulsory Training

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today said she favored universal compulsory training for men and women of all ages in civilian lines of endeavor which could, in time of national emergency, be directed toward the prosecution of war.

She said, however, that she still was opposed to conscription for military service.

The President's wife, interviewed before she boarded a Washington-bound plane, was asked if she thought the American Youth Congress would indorse a peacetime mobilization along nonmilitary lines.

"I think," she replied, "that you would find that the Youth Congress would be in favor of universal service and would object only to compulsory military service."

Mrs. Roosevelt said the Nation "should require of every individual six months or a year of equal training with everyone else."

"I don't care who they are," she added, "and girls as well as boys should be included. Such a program for example would teach you mechanics if you are mechanically minded and other things related to the art of war.

"It would be preparation in case we ever have to go to war. It would be a program of training for skills."

"This thinking that you can meet a beautifully planned machine without preparation is utter nonsense," she added. "You can't meet efficiency with inefficiency."

Aliens May Lose Jobs

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—All aliens employed in a Chicago restaurant chain faced the choice today of getting their first citizenship papers within a fortnight or losing their jobs.

President Robert J. Eitel, of the firm bearing his name and two brothers, all restauranteurs, were born in Germany and have long been American citizens. Among 1,000 employes, 75 were found to be aliens, nine of them Germans, Eitel said.

Buttons Taboo

Harrisburg, Pa., June 12 (AP).—The wearing of buttons lettered "The Yanks are not coming," is taboo today for 4,000 employes of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Division.

Lewis G. Hines, Secretary of Labor and Industry, asserted the slogan was "conceived by Communists" and the buttons were distributed by Communist front organizations.

D. C. Activities Tomorrow Mark Flag Day

Jefferson Jr. High Students to Parade; McNutt to Speak

School children and Gold Star mothers, soldiers and Congressional leaders tomorrow will join in a defense-conscious tribute to the Stars and Stripes.

On flag-bordered Constitution avenue 1,000 students and faculty members of the Jefferson Junior High School will parade from Seventh street northwest to Departmental Auditorium at 10:30 a. m. to hear an address by Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa.

Employes of the Labor Department, excused from work for the ceremonies, will swell a crowd of American Legion officials, members of local patriotic organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts.

Capitol Ceremonies

Also excused from their duties between 4 and 4:30 p. m. will be Justice Department employes, including Federal Bureau of Investigation agents now investigating "fifth column" activities throughout the Nation. They will attend a rally in the great hall of the department to hear an address by Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt.

Climaxing the day's observances of the 163d anniversary of Old Glory, will be traditional, colorful ceremonies at the east front of the Capitol, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Garbed in white and holding American flags, Washington widows, mothers and relatives of soldiers in American wars will line the steps leading to the Capitol rotunda. They will include members of the following organizations: Woman's Relief Corps, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Auxiliary to Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, United Spanish War Veterans' auxiliaries, Gold Star Mothers, Veterans of Foreign War auxiliaries and Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Speakers will include Senator Capper (Republican) of Kansas; John M. Kline, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Miss Mary G. Pinnock, department president, Woman's Relief Corps.

Judge Curran to Speak

After marching formations by soldiers, sailors and marines, and a salute to the flag, led by Addie Wheeler Hickman, of the Woman's Relief Corps, the audience will join in singing the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Meanwhile, United States Attorney Edward M. Curran will speak at exercises at Washington Lodge of Elks in the lodge rooms, 919 H street northwest, at 8 p. m.

Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, yesterday called on members of Washington citizens units to display Old Glory from their homes throughout tomorrow.

Texan Offers Allies Huge Gift of Oil

Graham, Tex., June 12 (INS).—Fifty thousand barrels of oil—free—tonight awaited the order of the British government.

Jerome McLester, an independent oil operator, in a message to Prime Minister Churchill offered the oil to the Allies providing the British government would pay the transportation charges and the Texas railroad commission would permit that amount to be run in excess of the allowable.

Removal of Roman Symbol on Dime Urged

New York, June 12 (INS).—Removal of the Roman fasces from American dimes, because it has been adopted as the Fascist symbol, was urged on Congress today by J. Henry Smythe, jr.

In a letter to the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, of which Representative Andrew L. Somers, of New York, is chairman, he urged passage of a resolution sponsored by the Sons of the American Revolution in 1939 which calls for use of the likeness of Benjamin Franklin on 10-cent pieces.

More Soviet Aid Expected For Lithuania

Russians Reported Bolstering Outposts To Keep Up With Nazis

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, Sweden, June 12.—Swedish correspondents at Kaunas, Lithuania, reported today that Lithuanian Prime Minister Merkys returned from Moscow today amid strong indications the country has concluded a secret agreement by which Soviet Russia will vastly increase her military force in that Baltic state.

The Soviets thereby would seem to be strengthening her outposts against rapidly expanding Germany.

Prime Minister Merkys was silent on the negotiations.

Russia already had large garrisons in Lithuania, established there after negotiating a mutual assistance pact with the little Baltic states last autumn. The Soviet garrisons in Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia are approximately equal to the armed forces of the three countries themselves.

Envoys Reach Moscow

Moscow, June 12 (AP).—The ambassadors of three belligerents arrived in Moscow this afternoon to strengthen relations with the Soviet.

Sir Stafford Cripps and Erik Labonne, new envoys from Britain and France, arrived in the same plane. Italian Ambassador Dr. Augusto Rosso, former envoy to the United States, came by train.

Rosso, technically, had only been away "on leave." His departure, however, had coincided with the sudden leave taking of Nicolai Gorelchin, Soviet ambassador-designate, from Rome last December when the Finnish war touched off anti-Soviet demonstrations in Rome. (Gorelchin returned to Rome today.)

(Turkish dispatches today clearly indicated this Italian-Soviet rapprochement was a factor in holding back Turkey from giving full effect immediately to her alliance with Britain and France.)

Cripps and Labonne replaced ambassadors who had also departed Moscow at the time of strained relations resulting from Russia's cooperation with Germany in the Polish invasion and her own invasion of Finland.

Russian objections to American embargoes that are depriving the Soviet of much-wanted materials are understood to have been presented to Secretary of State Hull yesterday by Constantine A. Oumansky, Russian Ambassador.

Neither official would comment on the nature of their hour-long talk at the State Department, the Ambassador remarking only that it was a general discussion of American-Soviet relations.

Russia has been greatly exceeding the $60,000,000 of annual purchases she agreed to make here in the Soviet-American trade agreement. Recently, however, she has felt the pinch of the "moral embargo" on fighting planes and aviation gasoline, and the more recent informal embargo of machine tools needed in this country's defense program.

Mystery Ship Idle

Tacoma, Wash., June 12 (AP).—The mystery of an "orphan" war cargo and why a Swedish boat dispatched here to load the goods for delivery at Vladivostok, Russia, has stood idle at her dock two days puzzled waterfronters today.

"We've received no word from the Johnson Line (owner of the freighter Ecuador, chartered for the trip)," Ken Kennell, local agent, said. "Amtorg, Russian trading agency that purchased the cargo in the East, hasn't notified us why there is a delay. The ship isn't loading and we've had no indication she plans to leave."

The Ecuador was to have started loading 133 carloads of truck bodies, dies and precision instruments yesterday. The Tacoma Longshore Hall reported orders for stevedores to load the vessel were canceled.

Waterfront, railroad and longshore sources reported they understood customs officials had given orders the Government would refuse to clear the ship if she loaded the Russian cargo. Its movement has been opposed by patriotic groups on grounds the materials are needed in the United States' new defense program.

Many Americans Left in Italy

By the Associated Press

Rome, June 12.—Hundreds of Americans are stranded in Italy as a result of the Mediterranean being designated a combat zone.

American authorities, without exact figures, said their offices are filled with Americans seeking advice.

Nearly 1,500 planned to sail on the liner Washington. Some of these went to Bordeaux to embark after learning that the Washington would return to New York without calling at Italian ports.

The American Export liner Exochorda arrived today in Genoa homeward bound from the eastern Mediterranean with 200 passengers and little space for taking on additional refugees.

Can Return by Asia Only

Ankara, June 12 (AP).—The United States Consulate notified 250 Americans in Turkey that they no longer could return to the United States by way of Europe. The Consul validated passports for return only by way of Asia.

The consulate was concerned over four American ships in the eastern Mediterranean, bound for the United States with cargoes of manganese and chromium from Russia and Turkey.

Since these materials are used in manufacture of munitions it was felt that Italy might halt the ships.

S. S. Washington at Galway

Copyright by New York Times

Galway, Eire, June 12.—At 6 o'clock this evening the United States liner Washington, carrying 1,020 American refugees from France and Italy, steamed into Galway Bay and anchored 6 miles outside the harbor. She is expected to leave on her homeward journey Saturday or Sunday.

Shipping officials estimate the number likely to embark from this port at between 560 and 700.

Message to Germans Delayed

By the Associated Press

Delay in determining the exact course which the liner Washington would follow on its repatriation voyage from Lisbon to Galway, Ireland, probably prevented the notice from reaching Berlin before a German submarine stopped the American ship, the State Department said yesterday.

British Troops Land in Indies, Tokyo Hears

Dutch Possessions Said to Have Asked For Protection

By the Associated Press

Tokyo (Thursday), June 13.—The newspaper Nichi Nichi reported from Surabaya, Dutch East Indies, today that 2,000 British troops had landed in the East Indies as a result of a request for protection by the islands.

Both the Netherlands Legation and the British Embassy here denied the report.

At the same time the Japanese foreign office received a report that a Netherlands naval plane had machine-gunned a Japanese fishing boat off Gaspar Island, near the Marshall Islands in the South Pacific.

The foreign office was said to be planning a protest if the report should be confirmed.

The foreign office said it was regarding both reports "with extreme gravity" while awaiting further word.

It was recalled that the Netherlands government had assured Japan after the German invasion of Holland that foreign protection for the East Indies was neither needed nor sought.

Japan has stated formally that she would insist upon maintenance of the status quo of the Dutch East Indies. The governments of Britain and the United States have taken a similar stand.

[There was no immediate indication, however, whether Japan might regard landing of British troops as an alteration of the status quo. British and French troops were landed at Netherlands West Indies points almost immediately after the German invasion of Holland.]

In connection with the Far Eastern situation an Admiralty spokesman asserted that unless the United States "opens its eyes to new realities in the Far East and cooperates with Japan in establishment of a new order," Japan would not be "in a responsive mood" toward reported American gestures of friendship.

Great Britain's campaign to win Japanese friendship appeared yesterday to have borne fruit.

Agreement was reached between Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, the British Ambassador, and Masayuki, vice minister for Japanese foreign affairs, on the prolonged Tientsin silver question.

The accord also covers the question of the 11 months' Japanese blockade of the Allied concessions in Tientsin, and the matter of circulation of Chinese currency.

Doemi, Japanese news agency, said the French and Japanese likewise had reached "a basic understanding" on silver, but that settlement of minor details would take some time.

The silver question revolves around silver to the extent of 12,000,000 United States dollars stored in the British and French concessions of Japanese-occupied Tientsin for the central Chinese government.

Details of the prospective settlement were not announced, but it is believed it provides for the use of some $400,000 of the silver from the British concession for the purchase of Canadian and Australian wheat, to be distributed to North China flood sufferers through a committee composed of British, Japanese and French.

The rest will be sealed in the British consulate.

Schenck, Bookkeeper Fight Federal Charges

New York, June 12 (AP).—Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board and executive director of productions for Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation, pleaded innocent in Federal Court today to charges of income tax evasion, conspiracy, perjury and the making of false statements to a Government investigator.

A like plea was entered by Joseph H. Moskowitz, Twentieth Century Fox story editor, described by the Government as Schenck's bookkeeper.

Trial date will be set on July 29.

Recruit Drive Going Well, But East Lags

Men in New York, New England Areas Reluctant to Enlist

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

How goes the drive to recruit men for the expanding American Army?

War Department officials admitted yesterday that in two areas with heavy foreign populations—New York and New England—young men were showing a reluctance to join the Army. But on the whole, they said, the recruiting drive was going well, with the South, the Southwest and other areas coming through with more than their allotted quotas.

The lag in enlistments in the New York and New England regions was noted at a time when the French Embassy here revealed that it had been besieged by 100 or more American lads, pleading to be sent to France to fight the Nazis. The volunteers were told, of course, that the American Neutrality Act expressly forbids enlistments for a foreign army.

The War Department, in its present drive, seeks 15,000 recruits. That goal was set in the last week of May, and the drive was scheduled to end June 30.

Maj. H. N. Gilbert, head of the recruiting division of the Adjutant General's Office, said yesterday that by last Saturday a total of 6,057 recruits had been obtained. The number has gone up progressively each day, he said.

"Judging from present results," Maj. Gilbert said, "we will get our quotas ahead of schedule."

The 15,000 recruits now sought will be in addition to the 8,000 that are enlisted every year to take care of the normal replacement load.

The most notable lag in enlistments in the present drive was recorded in the First Corps Area, with headquarters in Boston. This area embraces Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

The quota assigned to the First Corps Area, as its share of the 15,000, was 1,143 recruits. By last Saturday, however, it had only enlisted 213, so the War Department reduced its quota to 787.

The Second Corps Area, with headquarters at Governors Island was next to last. In this area, embracing New York, New Jersey and Delaware, only 299 recruits had enlisted by last Saturday. Consequently the corps area's quota was reduced from 1,462 to 877.

The Eighth Corps Area, with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, is ahead of all others in enlistments. It takes in Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

The Third Corps Area, which takes in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and a fragment of West Virginia, was fifth in point of enlistments. The recruiting office here is at 631 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Oil Accord Near With British, Mexico Hears

Formula Believed To Include Generous Indemnification

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, June 12.—Unconfirmed reports were circulated in government and banking circles today that Mexico and Great Britain were about to conclude a settlement of the oil controversy growing out of the expropriation of foreign properties in 1938.

A responsible financial official of the government declared the British negotiations were secret but that a formula was sought which would result in reestablishment of diplomatic relations with Britain, on the basis of British recognition of the justice of the expropriation and a pledge that England would make no official demand that the properties be returned.

It was also understood the proposed formula would involve an agreement on the part of Mexico to make generous indemnification of the Royal Dutch Shell holdings and to supply oil to meet Allied war needs on favorable terms.

Accord Believed Likely

British Consul General Rees, however, asserted he knew nothing of such negotiations.

(Oil circles in New York said that they regarded efforts on the part of Mexico to reach an agreement with England, and supply oil to the Allies, was extremely likely, since Italy now blockaded has been one of Mexico's chief oil customers.)

The rumors of a settlement brought foreign exchange dealings almost to a standstill, as financial circles believed an agreement would result in a jump in the value of the Mexican peso in terms of the dollar. Yesterday it improved from a quotation of close to six pesos to the dollar to only five, and today the dollar was quoted here at between 5.15 and 5.20 pesos.

The Bank of Mexico did not trade in dollars this morning and the foreign exchange director said the bank was leaving the market free to "permit the dollar to reach a natural level."

17 Properties Expropriated

A leading foreign exchange operator, however, said he "knew absolutely" that the Bank of Mexico was not trading because it had received word from London that settlement of the oil controversy had been effected.

Ambassador, Count de La Beaume, presented his credentials yesterday morning and lasted several hours.

What practical difference there will be between Spain's former neutrality and its nonbelligerency remains an unanswered question this morning. The press, which from the start has been sympathetic with the Germans, in the past few days has exulted over the break-through toward Paris.

Demands for large areas of Africa for a "new Spanish empire" appeared in tonight's newspapers.

The press reflected plain sympathies for the Axis powers. "Spain desires victory for those who desired and resolutely aided her victory in the civil war," said Arribas, authoritative Falangist newspaper.

Other morning newspapers were not quite so outspoken but were friendly toward Italy.

Egypt Severs Relations

Cairo (Thursday), June 13 (U.P.).—Egypt today moved slowly toward war with Italy, her neighbor on the west, after a unanimous vote by both Houses of Parliament severed diplomatic relations between the two countries and the Italian Minister was handed his passport.

Despite Premier Mussolini's assurance in his declaration of war on Monday that Egypt had "nothing to fear," Parliament asked the government to give its utmost support to Great Britain and France in "the defense of right and liberty."

King Farouk is expected to issue a proclamation clarifying the extent of Egypt's aid.

Enraged D. C. Policeman Slays Sergeant and Shoots Himself

Frank told his superiors that his "flat tire" explanation was false. He appeared before Capt. Marks, Maj. Ernest Brown and Inspector Kelly.

Actually, Frank admitted, he left the scout car Tuesday afternoon to look for his bird dog that had been lost in the Terra Cotta area. He had asked Blackwell, who was driving the car, to pick him up later. As a result, the two men arrived at the Keane School eight minutes late.

The tragedy occurred at 4 p. m. in the Twelfth Precinct Station, 1700 Rhode Island avenue northeast, within a few feet of more than 25 police reporting and going off duty at 4 p. m.

Wife Hears Shots

Private Blackwell's wife, Dorothy, waiting outside the police station to drive her husband home, also heard the shots, and raced to the hospital behind the patrol wagon bearing the wounded men.

The double shooting, police officials said, grew out of an excuse Frank gave for showing up late for duty Tuesday. For the offense, Blackwell and Frank had been taken off scout car duty and returned to the street as a foot patrolman only a few hours before the shooting.

On Tuesday, according to police officials, Blackwell, who has a long record for "excellent service," and his scout car mate, Frank, appeared at the intersection of Riggs and Blair roads northeast eight minutes late. They were due at 3 p. m. to aid the Keane School children in crossing the dangerous corner.

Questioned on Tardiness

Sergt. Cummins, whose job it is to check on Twelfth Precinct police, on asking the reason for the tardiness, was told by Frank that they had had a flat tire and had gone to a garage for repairs. When the sergeant asked the same question of Blackwell, the latter replied, according to the official report:

"Frank told you where we were. I have nothing to say."

Sergt. Cummins filed a report of the incident with Capt. Sidney J. Marks, Twelfth Precinct commandant. Yesterday morning, Capt. Marks, together with Inspector Edward J. Kelly, interviewed the two privates and were old that a flat tire had to be fixed. Blackwell said he had not answered the sergeant's question because "I'm hot-tempered and was afraid of getting into trouble."

On investigating, the captain and the inspector learned that the scout car had not been repaired at the garage named. So at 1:30 p. m. yesterday Inspector Kelly relieved both men from scout car duty and placed them on foot patrol.

Later, the inspector left word that he wanted to see the two privates again when they reported at the end of their shift at 4 p. m. and retired to Capt. Mark's office.

"In a Terrible Rage"

According to the captain, Private Blackwell appeared at the office door "in a terrible rage" as Inspector Kelly was speaking on the telephone. The inspector motioned Blackwell to wait outside until he had finished the telephone conversation.

Then, as reported by Lieut. John R. Jeffries and Acting Sergt. B. R. Campbell, only witnesses of the shooting, Blackwell walked down the corridor and spoke with Sergt. Cummins at the wash-room door.

Sent by the inspector to recall Blackwell, Lieut. Jeffries said that as he approached the sergeant and private, the latter drew his .38-caliber service revolver from the holster and fired a shot at Sergt. Cummins' head.

The sergeant staggered into the washroom followed by Blackwell, Lieut. Jeffries said, adding that he then heard another shot.

Blackwell rushed out of the washroom, revolver in hand, and ran to the rear corridor door leading to the garage, outside of which his wife was waiting in the car. Lieut. Jeffries, who is 43, tackled Blackwell at the door and the two toppled to the garage floor two steps below. Jeffries said that he had both arms around Blackwell but that the latter managed to raise the gun to his own right temple and press the trigger. Blackwell made no attempt to shoot him, the lieutenant asserted.

Capt. Marks declared later that he and Inspector Kelly might have been the victims of Blackwell's burst of temper had not the private obeyed—apparently out of habits of discipline—the inspector's command that he stay out of the office during the telephone conversation.

Within an hour after Cummins' death, all police stations were ordered to lower flags to half staff. Police officials spoke of the "splendid record" he had achieved during his 18 years with the force. Cummins had been promoted to sergeant only last year.

Buys Gifts for Father

Eleven-year old Charlene Cummins had bought a tie and socks earlier yesterday, to present to her dad on Father's Day Sunday. Mrs. Cummins was stunned by the tragic news. She said her husband had told her yesterday morning that he intended to show leniency toward the two privates.

She told of their recent plans to sell the old house and buy a new one, "the kind of home we'd always wanted." "Last night he brought home a red rose," she remembered, "and he was going to plant it when he came home today."

Appointed to the police department in 1924, Blackwell had earned several commendations from Maj. Brown, for the arrest of an automobile theft gang in 1925, apprehension of a house-breaker in 1932, capture of a firebug in 1937, and for his work during the visit of the King and Queen last year.

Blackwell was the policeman called to the scene last December 4, when Peter Riedel, the German Air Attache, allegedly parked his auto in the garden of a 130-pound mechanic and was pummeled for the act. In the murder of Mrs. Blance Landis, estranged wife of a rookie fireman, Blackwell was one of the investigating police and for his work in the solution of the crime received commendation.

Blackwell's two 'teen-age sons, Otho, jr., and John, heard of the disaster after returning from a movie. Their mother kept vigil at the bedside of the critically wounded father.

650 Graduates Get Diplomas At Catholic U.

Archbishop Curley Tells Group Nations Must Return to God

Archbishop Michael J. Curley yesterday told 650 graduates of Catholic University that "The world has departed from God and what is needed here and throughout the world is a return to the teachings of the Prince of Peace."

Following his brief address, Dr. Franklin Dunham, educational director of the National Broadcasting Company and principal speaker at the commencement exercises, discussed mutual confidence in international relations.

"If nations are to live at peace together, if they are to be bound by clearly defined obligations to one another, the first requisite is mutual confidence," Dr. Dunham said, quoting from the Encyclical "Summi Pontificatus" of Pope Pius XII.

Speaking of methods of settling international difficulties, he held that "... all (nations) must be prepared to have their cases looked into and discussed at leisure instead of betaking themselves hurriedly to violence or threats as the solution of the difficulty."

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of the university, delivered a short talk and diplomas were presented to the graduates by Archbishop Curley, as chancellor of C. U.

Funeral Services For M. W. Poore Set Tomorrow

Requiem mass for Marion Way Poore, 36, a Connecticut avenue grocer for many years, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow at St. Ann's Church, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Mr. Poore died Tuesday at the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Thoat Hospital following an operation.

He was born here and was educated at St. Ann's School and Tech High Schoool. For the past several years he has been associated with the Connecticut Market at 2621 Connecticut avenue northwest. His home was at 4344 River road northwest.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Gladys M. Poore; a son, Marion W. Poore, jr.; his mother, Mrs. Ada E. Poore; a sister, Mrs. Thomas Quinn, all of Washington; and two brothers, William E. Poore, of Philadelphia, and J. Wilbur Poore, of Washington.

Culbertson Makes Bid for Office

Ridgefield, Conn., June 12 (AP).—Ely Culbertson, an ace at bridge but an avowed "babe in the woods" when it comes to politics, will run for the Democratic nomination for Congressman-at-large from Connecticut, but predicts the odds in favor of his defeat will be "simply colossal."

Culbertson, an ardent admirer of the New Deal and of the national Administration's foreign policy, said tonight at his farme here that his campaign platform would be the one word—"Roosevelt."

Joseph Bisgyer Funeral Held

Funeral services for Joseph Bisgyer, of Baltimore, father of Maurice Bisgyer, of 3600 Nebraska avenue northwest, national secretary of B'nai B'rith, were held Tuesday in Baltimore. Mr. Bisgyer died Monday after an attack of pneumonia. He was 75.

A native of Austria, Mr. Bisgyer came to the United States 54 years ago, lived in New York City, then moved to Baltimore 18 years ago. Maurice Bisgyer is the former director of the Jewish Community Center here.

Surviving besides his wife and son are five other children, 15 grandchildren and four great grandchildren. The children are Samuel, Mrs. Mamie Franklin and Mrs. Rose Solomon, of New York; Henry, of Jersey City, and Gustave, of Baltimore. Burial was in Har Sinai Cemetery in Baltimore.

Mrs. Rosalia Gulli Succumbs at 82

Funeral services for Mrs. Rosalia Gulli, 82, of 425 Allison street northwest, who died yesterday at her home after an illness of a week, will be at 10 a. m. Saturday in St. Gabriel's Catholic Church.

A resident of Washington for more than half a century, Mrs. Gulli is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mamie Geraci, and four sons, Vincent, Anthony, Frank and Alvin, all of Washington.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

5 Killed in Crash Of Family Plane

Aredale, Iowa, June 12 (AP).—Five persons, three of them members of the same family, were killed tonight when an airplane spun out of control and crashed from a height of 150 feet 3½ miles north of here.

FCC Member Quizzed on Brawl In N. Y. Night Club

By the Associated Press

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, quizzed a member of the Federal Communications Commission sharply yesterday on what the Senator called reports of a "brawl" at a dinner party in a New York "hot spot."

Tobey expressed the opinion that there was some "connection" between events at the party and what he termed the FCC's failure to "get rid of obscene and indecent" broadcasts.

The New Hampshire Senator made this comment after lengthy questioning of Thad H. Brown, FCC member, at an Interstate Commerce Committee hearing on Brown's nomination for a new term.

Tobey inquired whether any of the women entertainers at the party came off the stage and "came in contact with members of the party."

"No," Brown said.

He also replied in the negative when Tobey asked if one of the guests had "put his hand on one of the women's leg."

Mrs. Nick Arden's Return Upsets the Marriage Mart

Irene Dunne and Cary Grant Win New Comic Laurels in 'My Favorite Wife,' Breezy Screen Farce at RKO-Keith's

"MY FAVORITE WIFE." RKO-Radio picturization of a screen play by Bella and Samuel Spewack and Leo McCarey, costarring Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, with Gail Patrick, Randolph Scott, Ann Schoemaker, Scotty Beckett, Mary Lou Harrington, Donald MacBride, Hugh O'Connell, Granville Bates and Pedro de Cordoba. Directed by Garson Kanin. Reviewed Wednesday morning. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

"MY FAVORITE WIFE," which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater, is a saucy, highly spiced and sophisticated marital comedy that rocked its matutinal audience with almost continuous laughter.

BELL

Based on a "Mrs. Enoch Arden" theme, the piece barges along under license of the Hays office's concession to its requirements of lines and situations that are a bit on the side of supercharged bedroom farce. There is a zip and sting to it all that comes like a welcome shot in the arm these humid and lugubrious wartime days.

Seven years after her reported death in a shipwreck in the China Sea, Ellen Arden bobs up in her husband's home the day he has wed Bianca. She is still Nick's "favorite wife." Nick, however, is a compassionate soul, who needs a little time to think up ways and means of breaking the news to his bride and Ellen's two children. Bianca cannot fathom the mystery of her "kissless" and nonexistent honeymoon, so calls in a noted psychiatrist to diagnose her husband's case. No such reticence inhibits Steve Burkett, who has shared the intervening seven years with Ellen on an otherwise uninhabited island. A charge of bigamy finally brings the whole tangled matter into court in the funniest scenes in the picture—thanks to the comic skill of Granville Bates, as the judge. The denouement is executed in the best Al H. Woods manner and is hilarious both in its action and implications.

Producer Leo McCarey, a past master in the genüe art of farcical frippery, and Director Garson Kanin have tricked out their charade with an abundance of what many will be tempted to term "hoke" comedy. Hokum or not, their devices are unfailingly rib-tickling and frequently button-busting and girdle-splitting. The Messrs. McCarey and Kanin have not overlooked a trick, from telephones ringing out of turn to creaky attic bedsprings and dunking the gaily gowned Miss Dunne in a swank swimming pool immediately she has bragged that she can take care of herself. The thing is pretty goofy, but it also is pretty grand entertainment in its peculiarly impertinent way.

The efficiency of the directorial "gags" would be reduced by half, less skillfully played. Irene Dunne proved long ago that she is one of the cinema's most facile comediennes—its best, according to Charles Laughton's view, as once expressed to this department—and here clinches her claim to eminence by the sly manner in which she dominates every situation with utter complacency, subtle wit and unerring wisdom, as Ellen, with the seven doubtful years in her life. Cary Grant, in the harassed role of Nick, brings new resourcefulness and versatility to a character that easily could be ruined by overplaying. Gail Patrick, the superfluous bride, and Randolph Scott, as the enigmatic Burkett, are perfect foils for the husband and wife into whose future they threaten to heave the monkey wrench.

And this Granville Bates fellow. Long recognized as one of the screen's most reliable character actors, Mr. Bates steps out as a character comedian of the first rank in his present assignment to the judicial bench. He "steals" every scene he is in, whether that is becoming in a judge or not. The two juvenile roles are portrayed with high competence by Scotty Beckett and Mary Lou Harrington, with Ann Schoemaker, Hugh O'Connell, Donald MacBride and Pedro de Cordoba adding to the zest of the goings-on in lesser parts.

Donald Duck and his three incorrigible nephews have themselves a time in Walt Disney's "Mr. Duck Steps Out," a Technicolor, jitterbug, cartoon comedy that swishes by with the swiftness of the wind, as Jim Barton would say. The Pathe News, with only slight deviation from the somber trend of the war news, is the only auxiliary of a feature that may not be another "The Awful Truth," but is the closest approach that has come along since.

Ends Foursome

When Robert Taylor started work in "Escape," he broke up, temporarily, Hollywood's most colorful golf foursome, consisting of himself, Barbara Stanwyck, Mrs. Zeppo Marx and Buck Mack, Miss Stanwyck's godfather.

Hits Featured

"Alice Blue Gown," "Castle of Dreams," "Irene" and other memorable songs from "Irene" are featured in RKO Radio's new screen version of the noted stage hit. Anna Neagle, the British star, and Ray Milland head the cast.

Well, That's What Two Wives Will Get You!

GAIL PATRICK, CARY GRANT AND IRENE DUNNE are hailed before the court for a slight surplusage of marriages in "My Favorite Wife," the rollicking RKO-Radio screen comedy, which opened at RKO-Keith's Theater yesterday. The unseen judge, played by Granville Bates, is the funniest figure in this hilarious scene—and it is hilarious

Hip-Wiggling Star Wants to Sell Land

Steffi Duna, the girl with the ball-bearing hips, wants to be a real estate agent!

Miss Duna is the Hungarian lovely who wriggled her way to fame with a Latin dance in "La Cucaracha," and she says that when her torso gets too stiff for the specialty work she has been doing on the screen she wants to take up house selling.

Steffi, currently working in "Down Went McGinty," has been interested in interior decorating for a long time, and has made such a good job fixing up her own home that she has had several offers for the property.

Snow Ruins Tents; Nags in Garages

The automobile gave way to the horse last week, but for humanitarian purposes only.

More than 50 steeds are being used in location scenes for Cecil B. De Mille's "Northwest Mounted Police," which are being filmed high in the San Jacinto Mountains under the direction of Arthur Rosson. They have been stabled in tents.

Recent storms, which deposited 10 inches of snow on the ground, piled up on top of the canvas shelters. Eventually the weight became so great the tent poles gave way. Workmen rescued the horses uninjured.

Every garage in the vicinity was pressed into service, the cars being moved out to accommodate the horses.

War Reflected In Incoming Theater Bills

Two New Comedies Brighten Their Screens: Other Amusements

"THE MORTAL STORM." Phyllis Bottome's enthusiastically received story of the coming of the Hitler regime in Germany and its effect on seven of the 70,000,000 Germans, comes to the screen as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production with Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Frank Morgan, Irene Rich, Bonita Granville, Maria Ouspenskaya and Gene Reynolds in the leading roles. Frank Borzage, who directed "Three Comrades," which also starred Miss Sullavan and Stewart, is the director. Opens tomorrow morning at Loew's Palace Theater.

Earle

"SLIGHTLY HONORABLE." Pat O'Brien heads the company of this daft search for a notorious clique of bigwigs who have been tampering with a State's new highways. Murder, too, plays its part. Ruth Terry, Edward Arnold, Claire Dodd, Broderick Crawford, Alan Dinehart, Douglas Dumbrille and Janet Beecher are featured. "Keep Kool," the stage revue, offers Grace and Nikko, satirists; Wally Brown and Janette Ames, radio comics; Ruth Petty, songstress; Marie Hollis, dancer, and the Rozyettes in three routines on how to "Keep Kool." Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"TURNABOUT." Thorne Smith's mad novel of the suburban couple who incurred the wrath of an old Egyptian god on their mantel and, as a result, had their personalities switched over night, comes to the screen with Carole Landis and John Hubbard as the Mrs. who becomes Mr., and the Mr. who becomes Mrs. Adolph Menjou, William Gargan, Verree Teasdale, Mary Astor and Donald Meek are featured. Clyde McCoy's Sugar Blues Orchestra headlines the variety bill, presenting arrangements that have made it a radio favorite. The Nonchalants and Steve Garay handle the comedy spots and Doris Dupont is the featured dancer. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"CONFESSIONS OF A NAZI SPY." This depiction of Nazi Fifth Column activities in America was first released in May, 1939, and recent events again force its theme into the news. Edward G. Robinson is starred as the G-man who breaks up the activities of the spy ring and Francis Lederer, Paul Lukas, Lya Lys, Henry O'Neill, Dorothy Tree and George Sanders are others in the cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Columbia

"WATERLOO BRIDGE." Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor return in the Robert E. Sherwood film of the First World War after two weeks at the Palace Theater. The romantic but realistic story of a whirlwind courtship revolves about the Waterloo Bridge. Lucile Watson, Virginia Field, Maria Ouspenskaya and C. Aubrey have the important supporting roles. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"THE MILL ON THE FLOSS." This English picturization of the George Eliot novel continues for another week at the Little, with Geraldine Fitzgerald as the immortal Maggie Tulliver. Frank Lawton, Victoria Hopper and Fay Compton are prominently cast. Also held over is the "March of Time" release, "Background for War in the Mediterranean."

Cross Roads

"MEET THE WIFE." The Cross Roads Theater, at Bailey's Cross Roads, Va., opens its summer season of barn plays with a two-weeks' engagement of the comedy about a flutter woman who, twice married, unknowingly makes plans to entertain her first husband, thought dead. Catharine Ryan, Peggy Johnston, William Draper, M. Forney Reese, Band Gardner, Wilhelmina Van Slyke, Burt Coleman and Lowell Goad are in the cast. Opens Monday evening.

Roadside

"THE SEALED WELL," or "What Will Not a Mother Dare?" continues its run at the barn theater on the Rockville Pike with Norman Ross, James H. Miller, Larry Lawrence, Natalie Core, Lois Alexander, Edna Evans, Betty Brunstetter, Ted Tiller, Ralf Nicholson, Teal Tiller and Millie Hirschfeld in the cast.

Trans-Lux

"EXOTIC EGYPT." A travelogue of the land in the sun and a "Popular Science" release are the principal short subjects at the newsreel theater for the new week. "The Egg Hunt," a color cartoon, and a large assortment of news clips complete the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Open-Air

"HITLER, BEAST OF BERLIN." The story of a young German intellectual, leader of the underground opposition to the Nazi regime, this film features Steffi Duna and Roland Drew. Joe E. Brown in "The Gladiator," with June Travis, is the co-feature. Opens tonight.

Glen Echo

THE COASTER DIPS and that attraction's assured safety are one of the proudest boasts of the Amusement Park. Permitting no "backseat" driving and allowing the acclaimed thrills of roller coasting apart, this has long one of Glen Echo's leading features.

Wilson Line

S. S. MOUNT VERNON, Streamlined excursion steamer of the Wilson Line, makes moonlight cruises down the Potomac every evening except Monday with McWilliams' Orchestra aboard for dancing. The Mount Vernon sails to Marshall Hall amusement park at 8:30 a. m., 2 and 8:30 p. m., allowing an hour-and-a-half stopover at the Washington home at Mount Vernon on the two early voyages.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, June 12.

J. EDGAR HOOVER: People who knew Mrs. Ignatz Griebl, wife of the fugitive spy, say that she's back in New York now. Mrs. Griebl had sailed for Germany shortly after her husband fled from this country, before he could be prosecuted in the Nazi spy ring cases . . . Senator Pepper: The French last week received a confidential list of all the privately owned Stinson planes in America. Within 24 hours, more than 50 of these planes were purchased and on their way to Canada. . . . Sidney Hillman: Didn't you have a telephone conversation with the President before you introduced that Third Term resolution at the convention of your union? . . . Wendell Willkie: According to Sam Boston's book, you're up to 3-to-1 odds, equal with Taft.

CORDELL HULL: At the Bolivian Consulate here, this story is being told: The representative of "a foreign power" negotiated for Bolivia's aid in a South American venture, and promised that Bolivia would get Paraguay as its prize . . . "Thank you, but the United States offers us more," was Bolivia's answer. "The United States offers us Bolivia."

DORIS DUKE: Dave Wilentz, the New Jersey Democratic official, was in New York last week-end and promised to give full support to your husband's Senatorial campaign. "Jimmy Cromwell," said Wilentz, "is the first candidate we've ever run who had more than two bucks" . . . Gov. Olson: Leo Carrillo, the screen actor who wanted to be a candidate for public office last year, now is organizing his personal brigade of guardsmen, in California . . . Lord Lothian: Noel Coward, who flew to Europe on Sunday night's clipper, was asked about the Allies' chances of stopping the Nazi drive to Paris. "I've taken a six-year lease on an apartment in the Place Vendome," was Coward's parting word, "and I hope to complete my tenancy."

* * * * * * * * *

WM. RHINELANDER STEWARD: Monte Proser, your associate-in "The Zombie" at the Fairgrounds, was the guest of honor at Leon & Eddie's Sunday night. Proser, who also owns the Beachcomber, on Broadway, and La Conga, in Hollywood, has lived in New York for 25 years. He has press-agented the most famous stars in America. Sunday night was the first time he agreed to be guest of honor at any function—and the cafe room was crowded . . . Two hours earlier, Proser dined at Toots Shor's, alone. He had phoned all over town, and was unable to get a single person to dine with him.

* * * * * * * * *

F. D. R.: Your son, Elliott, who will attend the convention as a delegate from Texas, assured us that he will support a Third Term movement, and that he never had opposed you. He certainly has been misquoted . . . Anita Loos: Your friend, Tilly Losch, the dancer, has left England for a refuge in Ireland. . . . Bob Jackson: A major story is expected to break at any moment, from the FBI. Hoover and his aides were working at their offices . . . Eddie Rickenbacker: Administration officials will try to effect the naming of an army man to the Civil Aeronautics Authority, to expedite the civilian pilot training program.

HARVEY GIBSON: Last year an unknown producer, whose Broadway show had been called the worst ever produced in New York, presented a new musical on West Forty-fourth street. After the curtain descended on that premiere, Lee Shubert offered to pay the cost of the entire production, in return for a 50 per cent interest . . . The producer, 31 years old, tossed a coin—his last 50-cent piece—and it came heads. "That means I won't sell," he told Shubert, and decided to risk it. He went home, broke, and the next morning learned that he had his first hit—"The Hot Mikado." Now, one year later, his three enterprises are helping to make the New York World's Fair a success. And last week Mike Todd, now presenting "Streets of Paris," "Gay New Orleans" and "Dance Campus," made "Who's Who in America."

* * * * * * * * *

LUCIUS BEEBE: Charles Coburn wore a monocle, as is his custom, when he went to the Capitol to see himself in "Edison, the Man." Coburn confessed that he uses glue to keep the monocle in place . . . Greta Garbo: Aldous Huxley is ailing in Hollywood, and now is on a diet even stranger than yours. He eats nothing but raw carrots . . . Harry Richman: Dick Merril, who made that round-trip flight with you across the Atlantic, is pondering over the question of opening a school to train pilots . . . Magazine Guild: Everything which has happened up Europe—the invasion of Denmark and Norway, the Russian-Finnish battle, the invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—was predicted a year and a half ago in Ken magazine. But that publication was too far ahead of its time. It folded, with a loss of more than a million dollars.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, June 12.

Now that Spencer Tracy's been given a doctor's degree at Ripon College, an interesting thing comes to light. From a school paper dated June 3, 1921, comes this: "The part of the warden, played by Spencer Tracy from the freshman class, shows a great amount of strength, steadiness, and ability. It was a surprising treat for those who saw and heard him."

Was sad finding "Rhythm on the River" not closed at Paramount the other day. Mary Martin was doing her strip tease number. (Wonder how she'll feel when 58,000,000 people see it?) But don't worry—with so little space left for Hollywood news in the papers these days, I expect every stage in town will soon look like the yawning mouth of Jonah's whale, with a "Welcome" sign in the middle of it.

I love this silly Swedish Comedian El Brendel went to a livery stable, hired a horse—a gentle has-been, for El doesn't ride well. The two got along famously, and on the way home, the horse struck up a conversation. "Do you know Gene Autry?" said he. "Sure." "Well," piped the horse, "next time you see him, put in a good word for me. I used to be a star in pictures myself. I'm just doing this to fill in time."

ooo

Someone at Warner's has a terrific sense of humor. After John Garfield put so much of his own gold in "Heavenly Express," which failed on Broadway, they've cast him in "Flowing Gold"—just to remind him.

ooo

Imagine Patric Knowles' surprise on opening a large package in his apartment to find a wedding gown, complete with veil! Pat inquired of manager, who said the girl for whom it was intended had left the place in a turmoil—she was being married next day.

ooo

Before Paramount cast any player to do a Texas Ranger in their picture, "Texas," the real Rangers passed on them. Their restrictions are rigid. Their men must be 35, and have 10 years actual peace work behind them. John Howard had to do a lot of convincing, being 27, before they'd let him play one of them.

Broadway's in for a million laughs if Mae West does a streamlined version of "Lysistrata" next fall. That's what she's planning. As Mae says, "The Greek women's method of stopping war is good enough for me. Just deprive your men—and there's nothing left to fight for."

ooo

Nice to know Warners have signed Walter Hampden to a contract. If ever there was a saint on earth, he's it. Which, I suppose, is the worst thing I could possibly say about him. Well, it's true. I know . . . "Oh, shucks," said my secretary. "When did you ever know anything about a saint?"

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

(While Louella O. Parsons is on her Honolulu vacation, this column is being written by her daughter, Harriet Parsons, producer of "Screen Snapshots.")

Hollywood, June 12 (INS).—The amazing Gabriel Pascal, who persuaded George Bernard Shaw to let him make a movie of "Pygmalion" and did such a good job that he now holds the movie rights to all Shaw's works, will arrive in America in three weeks. With Richard Oswald, Pascal will co-direct and co-produce "The Captain of Koepenick," a remake of the German picture which won an Academy Award for the best European film shown in America in 1934. A satire on Prussian militarism, "The Captain of Koepenick" was first produced by Oswald ten years ago, before Hitler was all powerful in Germany, but did not reach America until four years later. Oswald himself fled to this country about a year ago.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Pascal's departure from England would seem to indicate that he has abandoned shooting on Shaw's "Major Barbara" which was already in production with Wendy Hiller. Perhaps he'll make his Shaw movies in America now—if G. B. S. will trust him so far away!

ooo

Can it be that we're in for a revival of opera on the screen? Things point that way on the Paramount lot, where Richard Bonelli and Irra Patina, both of the Metropolitan, have just put their distinguished names on contracts. Producer Andrew Stone selected these two for roles in "There's Magic in Music" after several weeks of auditions in New York. "There's Magic in Music" is the new title for the Alan Jones starrer "Interlochen," and has to do with the famous music camp in Interlochen, Mich. Grace Bradley also has just been signed.

ooo

This and that: One Munson's three-picture pact with Republic has blossomed into a long-term contract. Her next will be "The Lady From New Orleans" . . . Don Castle, who recently got his release from Metro and promptly signed with Paramount, will have a role in "Touchdown." That's the football epic for which Wayne Morris will be borrowed . . . Doris Duke Cromwell will back a Broadway musical this fall . . . Nigel Bruce says his nerves are in perfect condition and please to correct the impression that he held up production on "The Man From Fleet Street," because of news that David Niven was going into action. He did have that word from David, but didn't allow it to affect any shooting schedules.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: If it's on the level that Freddie March is planning to desert the movies for good, why is he building that small house in Bel Air? The Gary Coopers have changed their minds about that Bermuda trip and will be back from New York next week. Pat Morison and Matty Fox, who weren't so clubby for a while, are perusing menus together again. Dorothy Lee will adopt that 5-year-old boy who's been living at her home for some time.

Florence Rice had dinner at the Hollywood Derby with Broderick Crawford. He's plenty keen about her, but she insists she and hubby, Bob Wilcox, aren't planning to sever. Fifi D'Orsay divides her time in New York between Lyle Talbot and Marty May, who made a hit in "Walk With Music." Claudette Colbert can't go to Honolulu because she has to start wardrobe tests for her Para pic. And, by the way, Claudette is donating yarn and needles for 50 women to knit sweaters for the French relief.

Mary Beth Hughes is at the House of Murphy with Tex Harris, the ork leader. Virginia Bruce is having her portrait painted by Mrs. Lenore Gardner, who's done Bette Davis, Dolores Del Rio and other femme celebs; Lloyd Nolan went shopping for baby clothes and got mobbed by a bunch of female fans. Rita Hayworth and her much-photographed wardrobe will appear in paper-doll form soon. Billy Mann, of the Yacht Club Boys, is opening a chain of snack spas—they're tricky miniature sandwich stands. A new twosome: Ruth Hussey and Raphael Hakim who brought "The Baker's Wife" to America. Marlene Dietrich and Tim Durant go shopping at the Farmer's Market daily.

That reminds me I'm hungry. So long.

Immigration Transfer to Cause Labor Legal Staff Overhauling

By Edward Ryan

Legal Machinery in the Labor Department will get a thorough overhauling as a result of the Immigration Service's transfer to the Justice Department, it was learned yesterday.

Department chiefs are studying plans for bringing into a single legal organization the separate staffs of attorneys now set up for each of the major divisions.

The program, still tentative, would give Gerald D. Reilly, solicitor general of the department, supervision over legal work for the Wage-Hour Division, Children's Bureau, Public Contracts Bureau and other branches. These would include a trials section, examining section and opinion section.

The new setup, it is understood, has received approval of the division chiefs, but the details of how attorneys would be shifted, and how the separate bureaus would draw on the central law staff for service are still being studied.

One problem still unsettled is how many of the attorneys will go out of the department when the Immigration and Naturalization Service goes under the Justice Department.

The Immigration Service removal clips more than half of the Labor Department personnel.

Officials said the proposed reorganization probably would not result in cutting down the legal personnel in the Labor Department.

Senator Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota, chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee, announced yesterday that he had called a meeting of the committee for today, to study the Ramspeck bill for extending the merit system.

Jobs—The Civil Service Commission yesterday opened examinations for the following jobs: Marine engineer, $3,800 a year; associate marine engineer, $3,200 a year; assistant, $2,600, for the Maritime Commission and Navy Department; naval architect, $3,800; associate, $3,200; assistant, $2,600; assistant translators (French, German, Italian and Spanish), $2,000, for the Maritime Commission; junior airway traffic controller, $2,000, Civil Aeronautics Authority; junior astronomer, $2,000, Washington Naval Observatory; assistant curator (registrar), $2,600, and three grades of museum aide with salaries from $1,620 to $2,300 for the National Gallery of Art.

The Secondary Front

Italy's entry into the war has added enormously to Allied burdens at a time when a powerful German army hammers at the very gates of Paris. Every available man, every gun, every plane is now needed for the defense of northern France. But with Italy joining the ranks of the belligerents the Allies are in no position to concentrate their efforts. In addition to the Western Front there is now a new front, extending all the way from the Riviera to the southern borders of Ethiopia.

The major battlefield of this secondary war is, of course, the Mediterranean Sea and the places on its littoral where Italian territory adjoins territory under British or French control. The new war zone includes the region adjoining the Red Sea, which determines the control of the eastern entrance into the Mediterranean via Suez.

In the past it was axiomatic that the outcome of any struggle in the Mediterranean would be wholly determined by sea power. That is why Italy, a nation with a long and exposed coastline and with inadequate resources, has never before been aligned on the side of Great Britain's enemies.

Italy's entry into the war on the side of Britain's enemy thus constitutes the reversal of a time-honored Italian policy.

In part this move was determined by the consideration that England's fate, like that of France, is being settled on the European battlefield. But in part, also, it was motivated by the belief that the importance of sea power is diminishing as a result of the airplane and the circumstance that in the air Italy is powerful.

Whether Mussolini's calculations in this regard will prove correct events alone can determine. The Italian navy is far smaller in tonnage than the combined Anglo-French fleets. But whereas the Italian fleet can be concentrated in the Mediterranean, the British and French naval forces must perforce be scattered over a wide area.

Considerable British naval power must be kept in reserve for the eventuality of a siege of England. A certain percentage of the British fleet must also be used as convoy protection and to implement the blockade. So with an Italian air force far greater than the combined air force which the Allies can allocate to the struggle against Italy, and with a considerable submarine fleet to harass Allied naval concentrations in the Mediterranean, the struggle there will not be one-sided. On the new front, as on the old, air power may prove to have decisive importance.

In any event, the outcome of the war will not be decided by what happens in the neighborhood of Jibuti, toward which an Italian East African contingent is reported moving, or at Malta, which Italian planes have raided, or on the southern shores of North Africa, where land fighting may soon supplement an air struggle that has already begun.

The war will be decided in Europe. And thus the prime importance of Mussolini's move in plunging his nation into war is that it has added enormously to the handicaps under which the Allies labor in their struggle against the Reich.

A Protective Measure

The Treasury has issued an order requiring submission of all imported securities to the Federal Reserve Bank for examination as to ownership. The action, it is explained, is designed to prevent the "dumping" in this country of securities that might have been seized from their rightful owners in the invaded countries of Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, Norway and Luxembourg.

It seems unlikely that the astute Dutch and Belgians were caught with any large amounts of American securities in strong boxes which the Germans have been able to take over. It is believed, however, that banks in the Netherlands and in Belgium held substantial amounts of American stocks and bonds not registered in the names of their real owners. The natural procedure in that case would be to ship such securities here via neutral countries for sale, assuming they escaped the predatory grasp of the invader.

It is, therefore, considered essential to examine security imports from all countries, with a few specified exceptions, to determine whether they have come originally from the invaded areas. Since securities belonging to the government and the nationals of such countries now held in the United States have already been subjected to a so-called "freezing" order, it is only logical to extend the order to cover post-invasion shipments of securities. That not only serves as a protection against the possibility of German seizure and sale, but it is also a safeguard against "dumping" of American stocks and bonds by bona fide owners, with resultant depression of market values.

Financing Defense

Only a few weeks ago enactment of an enormous tax bill on the eve of the Presidential election campaigns was believed to be impossible. But when the showdown on the new billion-dollar tax bill came in the House on Tuesday, the vote was 396 to 6.

This all but unanimous support for the revenue bill is eloquent testimony to the current demand for stronger national defense. Congress doubtless would not at this time have voted to tax the people for any other purpose. But in the interest of safeguarding the United States the House demands that 2,000,000 new income taxpayers be added to the rolls and that additional burdens be piled upon an already heavy tax load.

So far as it goes this bill is constructive. It will raise a good deal more revenue than President Roosevelt first requested. It indicates that Congress is not content in an emergency to appropriate additional billions without any provision for more revenue. The prompt approval of the measure shows, too, that our democratic machinery can operate efficiently when the need is pressing.

When everything favorable about the tax bill has been said, however, its enactment will leave a very unpleasant picture. Even with this measure in effect, it is estimated that the deficit for the fiscal year beginning next month will exceed $3,600,000,000. That is not far short of twice the deficit anticipated when the budget went to Congress last January.

Both Great Britain and Germany are reported to be paying about half of their expenses during the first year of the war from current receipts. The United States is not at war. It is merely building up its armaments for self-defense. Yet we are doing only a little better toward meeting our expenses than are those major belligerents. Total expenditures of the Federal Government next year are now estimated in excess of $10,000,000,000, and receipts, including returns from the new tax bill, at $6,380,000,000.

Since last January the estimated expenditures on national defense during the fiscal year 1941 have risen from $1,840,000,000 to $3,252,000,000. Receipts from the new revenue bill in its first year will cover only about half of this additional outlay. A still clearer perspective of the new revenue bill may be gained from the fact that it will cover, in its first year, only about one-sixth of the prospective 1941 deficit.

Through this same bill Congress will increase the national debt limit to $49,000,000,000. But this $4,000,000,000 boost in the debt limit is not much larger than the estimated deficit for 1941.

These are unpleasant facts. But they are facts that the American people must face with frankness and understanding. It would be easy to commend Congress for attempting to meet the Government's fiscal problem in an election year. But the truth is that this new revenue bill falls far short of putting our financial house in order.

We are confronting a national emergency with a tremendously swollen debt and an unbroken record of unbalanced budgets for eleven consecutive years. In the face of that situation, a tax bill chipping off only a small fraction of the current deficit gives no cause for complacence. Both Congress and the people must prepare for sweeping cuts in non-military Federal spending.

Limited reductions have already won favor at both the White House and Capitol. Retrenchment will have to be carried much further next year. Legislators and executives can render a great service by preparing the public for this sacrifice and thus avoiding a grim choice between bankruptcy and weakened military defenses.

Scientific Safety

In the popular idiom of the day, the creation of a 40-man accident investigation unit under direction of Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller is a local defense measure of great promise. At last the District is to launch a major attack upon traffic accidents in the best scientific tradition.

Preparation for this attempt to minimize the risks of modern traffic began last year when Inspector Miller was sent to Northwestern University's traffic institute. After an intensive training in accident control, he is now in a position to train the members of his safety squad and to direct the investigative work on this subject in accord with plans that have already proved successful elsewhere.

The scientific method of approaching any problem is expert investigation. We must know the causes of any evil or menace before we can hope to develop effective remedies. So Inspector Miller's squad, armed with a fleet of "safety cruisers" for 24-hour service, will investigate every traffic accident resulting in damages or injuries. In each case it will seek the basic cause, as a means not only of bringing to book the violators of traffic regulations, but also as a means of preventing similar mishaps in the future.

No miracles should be anticipated from this process. Considerable time will be required to discover what the chief causes of traffic accidents are. Additional time will be required to work out and apply preventive measures that may be suggested by Inspector Miller's findings. But the ultimate efficacy of this technique has already been demonstrated in a number of cities. It gives Washingtonians good reason for hope that further substantial progress will be made toward eliminating sudden death from the streets of the Capital.

Vargas And Cardenas

Until the full text of President Getulio Vargas' speech is available it would obviously be unwise to draw from it any far-reaching conclusions, least of all that it foreshadows Brazilian cooperation with the Berlin-Rome Axis.

Indeed, while inveighing against the "sterile demagogy of political democracy," and declaring somewhat sententiously that "vigorous peoples fit for life must follow the route of their aspirations," President Vargas also declared that the regime which he heads "is not imitating nor is it affiliated with any doctrinaire currents or ideologies existing elsewhere."

During the Vargas regime relations between Brazil and the United States have been and remain extremely friendly. In this same much-publicized speech, the Brazilian President announced that his country is "united by ties of strict solidarity with all the American countries around the ideas, aspirations and common interest in our defense." It is very likely therefore, that this address had little to do with Brazil's external orientation and was much more addressed to its domestic sitation.

If President Vargas' statement was somewhat equivocal the position on the war taken by President Cardenas of Mexico certainly is not. In a cable to President Lebrun of France, the Mexican chief executive declared that "Italy's declaration of war against the great French people, traditionally the voice of human freedom and the rights of man, has caused a painful impression on the Mexican government."

The sentiment is praiseworthy. At a time when there is so much talk of "fifth columns" in Mexico, it is significant to note this evidence that the sympathies of the Mexican government are so clearly with the European democracies.

Gourmets Take Heart

American gourmets have not suffered much in this war, and it is not likely that they will. Delicacies cut off by the blockade and counter-blockade will be supplied by our resources and ingenuity. And so far as culinary skill is concerned, we might say as we can also say of the opera: "Europe had the tradition, but now we have the artists."

Connoisseurs of food, therefore, need not be alarmed at the prospect that Italy's entrance to the war may cut off part of our cheese imports. Domestic production is now apparently able to take care of any shortage in cheeses.

But for the past efforts of the Government and private interests, the difficulties of shipping from the port of Genoa might take from our tables and sandwiches a luxury which has become a staple. Through Genoa came Swiss cheese. For 20 years the Department of Agriculture has been rendering yeoman service to dairymen in helping them produce a domestic Swiss as good as the imported variety. It seems the chief object of research was not in making the cheese but in finding ways and means of producing the characteristic holes.

Cooking authorities say we may miss the creamy, green-veined gorgonzola of Italy and the hard cheeses, such as grana, provolone, caciocavallo and Romano. But they remark that 90 per cent of the cheeses eaten in the United States are of the domestic Cheddar type anyway. Camembert is made in this country, and roquefort is being ripened in our limestone caves. Liederkranz, despite its foreign-sounding name, was originated in America by a man who was trying to make limburger. With all these we should be able to stock our pantries and bait our mousetraps for the duration.

Do Not Disturb

From the Saturday Review of Literature

Former president of the Poetry Society of America . . . urges poets not to contribute anything for the next year that would add to the agitation of the world.—The New York Times.

Steady, Spender,
Careful, MacNeice,
The world's on a bender
And wants surcease
From poems that tend
To have troublesome leanings.
And Auden, an end
To recondite meanings.
MacLeish and Millay,
Lewis, Eliot, Pound,
Take care that you say
Nothing new or profound
To agitate, gall,
Or set fire to the mind:
I.e. nothing at all.

Trust Our Neighbors

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

A lot was said at the time of the outbreak of the war last fall about collective security among the countries of the Northern and Southern Hemispheres. Everyone agreed that it was necessary for the preservation of independence and liberty of the New World. Later at the Panama Conference of Ministers of Foreign Affairs resolutions were adopted advocating solidarity among the countries which are members of the Pan American Union.

But in the last few months when the specter of the "fifth column" has assumed the proportion of another Orson Welles "War of the Worlds" radio hoax and such innocent and harmless organizations as citizens' associations near the Nation's Capital appoint secret committees to investigate fifth column and subversive activities in their neighborhood, I believe the time has come for all sane-thinking people to stop and think how ridiculous all this panic is. The "good neighbor policy" so carefully built up is being dealt a crushing blow by frightening articles relating increasing Nazi activity in Brazil, Uruguay, Peru, Mexico and other South American countries.

One article recently stated that Mexico was swarming with Germans lately arrived who could be there for only one purpose. Yes—fifth columnists! But very little attention has been given the spokesman of Mexico, Senor Ramon Beteta, the undersecretary of foreign affairs of that country, who addressed the United States over the air yesterday. He spoke sincerely and I believe truthfully. He mentioned the willingness of Mexico to cooperate with this country and said that Mexico condemned the aggression of Germany, Russia and Japan.

What was most significant in his talk was his statement that there was no danger of fifth column activity in Mexico and that in the last three months only 100 Germans, men, women and children, had entered the country and the figure for the past year was but 300. He concluded by reassuring us Mexico is willing to do everything possible to attain collective security against war and tyranny.

Would it not be wise for us to stop being afraid of our own shadows here and below the border and place just a little more trust in our closest Latin American neighbor?

"Short Of War"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Someone has said that the acceptance of a slogan presupposes the absence of thinking. Then should we not determine if the slogan "short of war" is the result of individual, independent thinking, arrived at nationally, or if it is the result of the machination of some professional practitioner of mass psychology who draws a fat fee therefrom.

Perhaps the latter possibility is far-fetched, but evidently we have lost sight of one grim determination that at the end of the last war seemed to be the result of independent, individual thinking, arrived at nationally. It was "to take the profit out of war." Bills were introduced into Congress to draft material resources as well as human lives, should we again go to war.

We are not now at war, but we are spending money for war at a wartime rate, putting vast profits into war before instead of after the fact. Will these huge "peacetime" expenditures for war afford the "muckrakers" of the coming generation a rich field of "muck," reflecting on the integrity and judgment of the present generation?

Why not have the courage to face the situation? Why let the slogan "short of war" stifle our thinking? A major national calamity must be right around the corner, else the President and the Congress would not ask for and authorize the huge funds that have been and are being appropriated.

Can't we take the profit out of this national emergency? Surely a situation so serious justifies all resources, human, physical, material and spiritual, being immediately drafted to enable this country to meet its emergency intelligently, efficiently and at the lowest possible cost.

Housing For Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Public housing projects that have been provided make but a drop in the bucket of bad housing in Knoxville and I assume that this is true also in other American cities. It is a sad thought that after a very small portion of the low-income families now living in substandard houses here have been decently housed, thousands of other families in like plight will have to continue to live in unsafe, insanitary and often indecent shacks. That is what will happen, of course, if Congress fails to make additional loans and subsidies available.

While we are preparing the utmost in defensive armament on land and sea and in the air to meet the threat of totalitarianism, it seems to me that we should not overlook the important defensive factor of healthy, efficient people such as will be assured by decent housing. People living in public housing projects of our country will have more to fight for and to defend than those whose patriotism may be dimmed or submerged by the dismal environment in which so many of our low income families are now living.

A pageant given by Austin (Negro) High School of our city a few days ago devoted to the theme of "Better Housing—Better Living" was an extraordinary manifestation of the inspiration that the public housing program has been to a people most of whose incomes are low. This pageant was written and produced entirely by Negro teachers and students who had been inspired by the outlook for better living that is offered by the two Negro housing projects here. Some of the music was original.

The most stirring scene was the epilogue in which the Spirit of Democracy led the populace in singing a medley of "God Bless America—Star-Spangled Banner," while Negro Boy Scouts proudly waved the American flag, with the dome of the Nation's Capitol as a distant background. Neither the war in Europe nor our preparations for defense on this side of the Atlantic frightened these people into this outburst of patriotism. It was a magnificent demonstration of patriotism inspired by peacetime activities, an act of gratitude toward a government that stands for freedom, rather than any misgivings for the future. Anything that produces that sort of patriotism is well worth the price.

Since the cost of public housing subsidies will be so small a fraction of the vast sums to be spent annually for other forms of defense, I believe Congress should and will give the United States Housing Authority the green light.

Welcomes Refugees

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Refugees from war-torn Europe should be welcomed here without hesitation. Considerations of humanity make this imperative, but it is also a matter of real advantage to the United States. Roughly speaking, every mature person in good health is worth at least $500 in any community. To prove this, take the total land values in any city and divide that amount by the number of inhabitants. Every mature person of sound mind is capable of producing wealth many times the cost of his or her subsistence. During the more prosperous years of our country, immigration gates were wide open and we welcomed immigrants from the Old World.

That we now have 9,000,000 of unemployed has nothing to do with the case, for we also have a shortage in many branches of skilled labor. There is room in America for 10 times our present population. We have only 41 persons to the square mile, whereas England has 491, Germany 361, Italy 344, the Netherlands 577 and Japan 375. None of these countries is actually overpopulated. Land monopoly only is responsible for overcrowding.

"Acid On Her Wounds"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In the same issue of The Post which carried the President's stirring speech at Charlottesville, in which he tells of Mussolini's perfidy in "stabbing a neighbor in the back," is pictured a ship loading with scrap iron for Italy!

During our war for independence France sent over troops to help us. Now what are we doing for France as her life blood is ebbing away? Pouring acid on her wounds by sending scrap iron to her mortal enemy!

Will we allow this greed for gain by our merchants in stooping to such a level as this? Our country should be ashamed of anyone who has so little respect for the honor which this country is supposed to stand for, who will seek profit by such despicable business! Can such examples of our professed friendship stimulate other countries who have not lost all sense of decency to hold this country in high regard?

Mussolini has "stabbed France in the back"—let us not pour acid on her wounds!

Illusions And Jitters

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In Mr. Morley's very interesting article on "The American Jitters," one fundamental reason for the recent swing from illusion to this frame of mind is not portrayed.

During the last 20 years certain elements among our people succeeded in persuading a large mass of our people that it was of no concern to the United States whether the other side of the Atlantic was in friendly or hostile hands. Now, suddenly, this large mass of the population sees that it has been misled. It sees that it is of the most vital concern to the United States, to its peace, its security and its future, that the other side of the Atlantic does not fall under hostile control. And it sees this at a very critical moment, when such a disaster for America may even occur this summer. Hence the "jitters."

We can criticize a man for getting "jittery" when he is hunting a tiger with a gun. But if he is misled into believing that there are no tigers about; if he has no gun at hand, and if he then sees a tiger coming, "jitters" are a normal reaction. Perhaps an equally normal reaction would be to go after those who had misled him if he lived to be able to do so.

Pickled Tripe Are Very Nice

"What I intend to do," Mr. Schmidt declared, "is make this place more modern-like. You know—fix it up all round. I wanna have a real attractive establishment. Not like this." He swept his hand in an inclusive gesture of condemnation.

William Henry McClintock shifted his bony frame and peered through thick-lensed spectacles at the Schmidt Grocery and Meat Market. He saw meat cases obscured by vegetables piled high on a wooden rack, canned and packaged goods teetering uncertainly on dusty shelves and, to complete the general air of informality, a wobbly, outmoded pinball machine. Mr. McClintock, who specialized in food copy, agreed with Mr. Schmidt's verdict.

"You're right, Schmidt," he nodded. "No doubt about it. This outlet could be made into something worth while."

"Sure," said Mr. Schmidt, "a gentleman like yourself, now. He doesn't want to come into a place like this. He'd rather patronize a place that's clean, up to date. Would he not?" Mr. Schmidt enunciated these last three words with deliberation and then paused dramatically, his giant bulk leaned forward over the counter, his young, blue, earnest eyes gleaming like those of one who, after a lengthy search, has at last discovered the True God.

"That's merchandising!" he exclaimed. "That's what it is. Merchandising. I used to tell Pop about it, long before he died. But think he'd do anything? Not him."

"Now listen." Mr. Schmidt was becoming impassioned. "Listen! My idea is to increase sales by making each customer buy more articles. I'm going to use merchandising on 'em—and psychology. Now, you being in advertising, I thought you could advise me, kind of."

In a dim sort of way, Mr. McClintock knew that he was letting himself in for something. Still, he felt that he owed to the memory of the late Mr. Schmidt, sr., an obligation to help the heir of the family carry on. "Certainly," he answered. "Glad to."

Under full steam now, Mr. Schmidt was driving ahead with his idea.

"Only the other day," he said, talking with slow impressiveness, "I read that most people have a mental age of only 12 years. Think of that. A man can be grown up, see? With a long, white beard, maybe. But his mind is only 12 years old. Like my little nephew's. That's my sister's kid. You've seen him around. Husky as they come.

"Well, you know what that means, don't cha? That means I can influence my customers. They got only 12-year-old minds, see? That means I can influence 'em to buy more articles so that I'll get money enough to get the store fixed up real attractive and then people will really want to trade here."

Overcome by his burst of logic, Mr. Schmidt paused for breath. A tired sag in his round body and sweat drops slid down his forehead. Then he rallied for the denouement.

"So," he continued, mopping his brow with the comparatively clean underside of his apron, "I'm going to influence 'em with slogans, merchandising slogans. I got some written already and I'd like to have you give me your opinion."

He rang "No Sale" on the cash register and took several sheets of letter paper from the drawer. He held these tenderly to him for a moment, as if reluctant to permit his brain children to go forth into the harsh world alone. Then he handed them to Mr. Clintock.

"I'm gonna have these printed on cards," he explained, "and then I'll set 'em up here and there where customers are apt to see 'em."

Adjusting his glasses and, from force of habit, taking out a pencil, the copywriter began to examine the products of Mr. Schmidt's creative urge. They were written neatly in pen and ink on letter-head paper, one slogan to a sheet. The first one was, 'You Can't Be Mistaken. In Buying Our Bacon."

"Oh," Mr. McClintock said, "they rhyme."

Mr. Schmidt looked pleased. "I was pretty good at English in high school," he announced.

Wearily, Mr. McClintock looked at the others: "Our Grade A Milk, Is Smooth as Silk." "Your Children Will Be Well Fed, If you Feed Them Schmidt's Bread." We've a Special Sale On Ginger Ale." "Why not Get a Roast? When you play the Host."

"Well, Schmidt," he declared heartily, "these are excellent. Show a lot of imagination. Frankly, though, as one advertising man to another, I think you ought to change the last one a little."

"What one's that? Why, you mean 'Pickled Tripe are Very Nice?' Say, that's the best of the lot. I worked a whole night on that one."

"I know, Schmidt," Mr. McClintock said, wondering how he was going to explain this, "but you ought to have a singular instead of a plural verb and, besides, the words don't rhyme. Now you could say 'Pickled Tripe is Very Nice' and that would rhyme. If there were such a word as 'Nipe,' or you could say 'Pickled Trice Is Very Nice.' However . . ."

"Hey," Mr. Schmidt interrupted indignantly. "You must be crazy. 'Pickled Trice!' No, sir. I'm going to leave it the way it is. It's fine the way it is." And Mr. Schmidt, outraged, stomped off to the rear of his store.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

License To Foes

THIS IS THE DAY I kick the giblets out of the fine, fastidious interpretation of the United States Constitution which holds that it guarantees to enemies of the liberties written into the document itself the same protection that it offers to loyal Americans.

This paradox is presented in a protest of the Civil Liberties Union against an order of the United States Civil Service Commission which bars anyone "established as a member of the Communist Party, the German bund or any Communistic or Nazi organization." The union resents this action on behalf of all the civil liberties of all of us as "a discrimination against citizens because of their political views or connections."

In reply to that I will ask one myself:

Why not discriminate, not only in the civil service but in every other area of American affairs and in every possible way, against people whose political beliefs and associations commit them to a program of hostility against the American Nation and its liberties?

THIS WET-EYED, tremulous, mister-chairman type of argument has heretofore compelled those who love the Constitution most to grant immunity and license to those who hate it most and are openly or furtively fighting to destroy it. In easier times all Americans have been more tolerant of these enemies in line with the now exploded Hyde Park "let-them-sap-their-heads-off" theory of the English government. But it isn't merely what they say that makes these enemies of the Constitution dangerous; it is what they do under protection of the very document which they would tear up, and what they do or intend to do may be calculated with fair accuracy from what they say and from their associations.

If the Communists, the bunds people and the half-Americanized Italians who rally to Mussolini are to be given the same consideration that is deserved by local Americans the Constitution becomes the shield and weapon of its own foes.

The Constitution never was intended to protect its enemies. It was intended to protect the liberties of the loyal people of the United States, and if it seems a little ambiguous that is only because its meaning has been fogged up by discussion in the debating schools. The founding fathers had neither the intention nor the wisdom to devise a writing that would simultaneously take its own part and rebuke and restrain its defenders. That just can't be done.

ALL LOYAL Americans, at one time or another, take an oath to uphold and defend the Constitution, and nothing in the document itself can be interpreted to mean that they must not "discriminate" against those who plainly indicate a determination to abolish it or "revise" it out of recognizable shape by treacherous, legalistic manipulations of its own provisions and parliamentary sleight of hand.

It was the simple intention of the founding fathers, as it has always been the faithful purpose of genuine Americans — many of whom, incidentally, were born abroad—to prevent officious interference with the freedom of Americans. Had they meant to forbid the defense of Americanism they would have said so. They did not foresee that Communists, Nazis, and, lest they be overlooked in this dangerous time, many half-Americanized Italians, would organize conspiracies here to embarrass the people, to assist Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini in a war on freedom and to sabotage the effort of this Nation to defend itself.

A Communist in the public service, a Nazi or a throwback Italian allied with the Black Shirt conspiracy, is a menace, great or little, according to his intelligence, diligence and importance, to the safety of the country, and the Constitution was not intended to forbid his dismissal.

THE DIFFICULTY in identifying the enemy is exaggerated. The groups to which they belong are legal in the sense that they are permitted to organize. But by their works and loyalties shall ye know them, and the injury to liberty is trivial and unavoidable if a Communist, Nazi or Fascist is discriminated against by comparison with the injury that liberty will suffer should they win their way.

The question is, shall the Constitution be invoked to facilitate its own destruction? And the answer to that, in a word, is "no."

It still remains to be admitted that some individuals will be falsely accused. Nobody will indorse that, and the blame falls on the Communists, Nazis and Fascists. But let's have it understood that the American Constitution is not now and never was intended to stand guard over those who conspire against the freedom which it guarantees.

BENNETT CHAMP CLARK
Mark Sullivan quotes the Senator as referring to our "trade-in" of warplanes for the Allies as "evasion." Mr. Sullivan chooses the "relatively mild" word "subterfuge," and further mentions "reasonable elasticity in our procedures."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Baccalaureate For 1940

Gentlemen of the Graduating Class:

I can appreciate your confused state of mind as you step out into the world of today. As you look around, you must be wondering why you are wearing a cap and gown instead of a fire helmet, and why we are handing you a sheepskin instead of a hose.

* * * *

In bygone years it was the custom to speed you with glowing words into a world which was at least normal in spots. This June it is like hurrying a mandolin club into the teeth of a hurricane. In the past it was the custom to paint a pleasant picture of a world eager to offer you opportunity and a career. This morning it is difficult to tell whether it is a world or a blazing arsenal. For every business opportunity to be seen on the horizon there are a dozen recruiting stations, and over everything that looks like a career we see a bomber.

* * * *

This is decidedly not one of the years when all a college boy needed to go forth and grapple with his fate was his football letter, together with a pleasing personality, an extra pair of pants and a letter to Standard Oil. The good old days when you could grab your sheepskin and hurry forth, knowing that you could soon start calling your shots in your chosen field are but a dim memory. The boys who have been graduating for the last eight years have been stepping merely from the fairway into the rough, but the class of 1940 appears to be behind the eight ball from the start. The prospects are not bright unless you can make airplane parts, design a super tank or figure out some chemical that will turn dictators into candidates for a daisy chain.

* * * *

For four years you have been applying yourselves to the classics. And now you face a world which seems largely interested in new range finders. For four years you have been dipping into the riches of literature, only to find the world largely in the hands of queer-looking eggs whose chief delight is to burn books and destroy libraries. You have spent your bright college years making yourselves the very flowers of civilization, only to take a good look and discover that the weeds are in control.

* * * *

There is, however, one big break in your favor. You are just starting out in a world that can't get much worse, and which at least has the satisfaction of knowing that those responsible for conditions are getting old fast. You are becoming a vital part of the American scene at a time when the camouflage has been taken down so that the duties and responsibilities of citizenship are clearer than they have been since seniors went to the graduation exercises on high wheeled bicycles.

* * * *

This is a time when ideals must be ideals and not mere slogans, optical illusions or just a manifestation of a change in voice. This is an era when service means service and not a figure of speech in tennis. This is a time when you can have no great difficulty judging real values, separating the important from the trivial and knowing at once whether you are a man or a mouse.

Subterfuge For Allies

By Mark Sullivan

Why We Practice It

YES, WE ARE DOING it by subterfuge, in a way. I choose "subterfuge" as a relatively mild word. Some Senators used stronger words. Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, said "horrible travesty." Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, said "evasion." Various Senators said "sham," "pretense."

We ought to understand this subterfuge, and why we practice it. We ought to look things in the face, including our own actions. We ought to understand the reason we practice subterfuge, for then we shall see the justification for it. Besides, if we understand this subterfuge, we will understand the very heart of the controversy which embroils the world.

We—that is, our Government—own some airplanes, Navy and Army ones. We want to get those planes into the hands of the Allies. But for our Government to sell those planes direct to the government of Britain would probably be a violation of our neutrality law, and also of international law.

Nevertheless, we want to get those planes to the Allies. A proposal is made that we do it directly, openly. Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, introduces such a proposal. The proposal is at once turned down by the Committee of Congress having charge of such matters, the Foreign Relations Committee. The proposal is rejected overwhelmingly, the first time by a vote of 21 to 1, a second time by 19 to 2. The proposal is rejected on the ground, mainly, that it might be an un-neutral act.

NEVERTHELESS, WE WANT to get those planes to the Allies. So we do this: We—the Administration—turn these planes over to a private American manufacturer, with this manufacturer we have an understanding that later on he is to make some new planes for us. The old planes are, so to speak, a "down payment" on the new planes. It is like turning in your old car as part payment on a new one. Except that in this case the new plane remains to be built. In this case, we turn in an old plane for a new plane to be built on order.

The private manufacturer, as soon as he gets the old planes from our Government, sells them to the Allies.

All this is proper and regular; it is usual for the government to sell war material that is obsolete or otherwise not wanted. This particular plane transaction is legal and proper—the President, before doing it, got an opinion from the Attorney General, saying the transaction is legal.

Nevertheless, the thing is a subterfuge. As we do it, we smile. We smile officially—the President, at a press conference, when asked whether we will turn over some comparatively new planes this way, smiles and says that planes become old very fast, meaning that there isn't much limit on the planes we will thus turn over to the Allies.

THERE IS SUBTERFUGE two ways. There is subterfuge as between us and Germany, for we find an indirect way to do what, if done directly, might be a violation of neutrality. And there is subterfuge as between President and Congress—the President does indirectly what Congress, through the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, showed itself unwilling to do directly.

We might say that the President ought not to have done this thing indirectly—that he ought to have waited to get the sanction of Congress; that he ought to have spoken to the country, and plead with the country, so that the country would have shown its willingness, and thus made Congress willing. But that would have taken time. It always takes time for a democracy—that is, a government having a Congress or Parliament—to act.

To complete the story, this should be recorded: Five days after the President acted about the planes, the Senate voted to legalize what he had done, and to authorize him to do more. The vote was 67 to 18. Of the five days intervening, three had been a week-end, with the Senate not in session.

Now let us relate this American episode to the great conflict that is going on in the world. This conflict is between dictatorship, one-man government, specifically Hitler and Mussolini; and, on the other hand, democracy, parliamentary government, specifically Britain and France.

IN THIS CONFLICT the dictatorships are winning. They are winning, partly because they can act quicker than the democracies. When Hitler wants to do a thing, he does it. He doesn't need to wait for action by his Reichstag. He, in effect, long ago sent his Reichstag home, and told them they need not come back except when he sends for them. As for Mussolini, he is even more free. He, some years ago, told his Parliament to commit suicide, to go down to the dock and jump off. And Mussolini's Parliament obligingly voted itself out of existence.

Mussolini can do what he wants, instantly. Hitler can do what he wants, instantly. Just because they can act more swiftly, the dictatorships jeer at the democracies. They speak of democracy as, in Mussolini's nice word, "putrid"—meaning that democracy is decaying, or, beyond the stage of decay, dead.

This is the condition that confronts the democracies, including our own. Can they, with their forms of government which include a Parliament, a Congress, and which are necessarily slower—can they survive in the world against the speedy dictatorships?

The answer, for us, is that we can preserve our form of government—by first, cooperation between President and Congress; second, tolerance of reasonable elasticity in our procedures; and, finally and absolutely, by Congress remaining in session, so as to act promptly upon emergencies certain to arise.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Tax Division, Department of Justice, presents Rhoda Cure in a piano recital Wednesday night in the new Interior Department auditorium. Program: Organ Prelude in G minor (Bach-Siloti), Rhapsody in G minor (Brahms), Sonata in C sharp minor (Beethoven), La Cathedrale Engloutie and Clair de Lune (Debussy), Danza Ritual del Fuego (Falla), Polonaise Americaine (Carpenter), Nocturne in F minor and Scherzo in C sharp minor (Chopin).

A proficient and pleasing young pianist made her first local appearance last evening when Rhoda Cure gave a recital in the auditorium of the Interior Department before an audience which should been much larger. So attractive a talent will not long remain hidden, however, and for its disclosure on this occasion one thanks her friends in the Tax Division of the Department of Justice, who sponsored the recital. Miss Cure, one understands, is a Californian, who has studied with Olga Steeb, and her performance reflected credit on her preceptress.

BROWN

It was evident in the first piece on the program, Alexander Siloti's fine transcription of Bach's G minor organ prelude, that the pianist has a secure grasp on certain technical points of dynamics. Her imitation of organ registrations was excellent and brought about by skillful combination of touch and pedaling. Her phrasing was intelligent in its precision of accent and clarity of exposition.

In the G minor rhapsody of Brahms and the C sharp minor sonata of Beethoven she disclosed a temperamental rapport with romanticism. Her readings had the power of poetic suggestion and the warmth that conveys emotional conviction. One commends particularly her pellucid treatment of Brahms, whose richness of harmony so often becomes muddied by careless handling.

Miss Cure is so engaging an artist and has so indubitable a musical instinct that one would like to hear her in a program less conventional. She has the talent to take one exploring in piano literature, and to refresh one with novelties in place of the pieces by Debussy, Falla, Carpenter and Chopin which she chose for the last two groups.

Robert Ruckman presents David Palmer in a piano recital Wednesday night in the Arts Club auditorium. Program: Siciliano (Bach-Hughes), Preludes and Fugues in C minor and G minor (Bach), Polonaise in C minor (Chopin), Concerto in F major (Mozart), and a group of his own compositions.

One went to hear David Palmer in a student recital at the Arts Club last evening primarily because the program promised the opportunity of appraising the creative ability of a 14-year-old composer. As had been anticipated, the piano playing was that of a conscientious and carefully trained pupil, whose readings of Bach, Chopin and Mozart were not exceptiol either in brilliance of technique or in interpretational insight.

The youthful composer, however, was an interesting person who had something to say on his own account. In the titles of his pieces—Fantaisie-Impromptu, Intermezzo, Rondo and Prelude—lies the cue to his present preoccupation with the romantic period, which is a very profitable field for youth. He has obviously steeped himself in that style, and his music has inevitable reflections of Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin and Brahms.

But by reflections I do not mean imitations. If David Palmer's music reminds us here and there of the composers mentioned, it is because he has unconsciously absorbed certain modes of expression and they emerge without deliberate volition. He has imagination and genuine poetic talent which will reward his cultivation of it. His pieces are engaging because they manifest a gift for melodic invention and the ability to handle harmonic progressions with surety.

Vanlier Lanning conducts the Washington Sinfonietta Tuesday night on the roof of the Young Women's Christian Association. Program: Overture to "Le Nozze di Figaro" (Mozart), Symphony in D major (Haydn), "Heart Wounds" and "Last Spring" (Grieg), "Albumblatt" (Wagner), "Wo die Zitronen bluehn" (Strauss), "Fingal's Cave" (Mendelssohn).

A new amateur organization, the Washington Sinfonietta, made its debut Tuesday evening under the direction of Vanlier Lanning, whom we have been accustomed to hear in the horn choir of the National Symphony Orchestra. The place was the roof of the Young Women's Christian Association where a welcoming audience proffered friendly encouragement. Formed last winter by a group desirous of ensemble study, the small orchestra has already attained a commendable degree of disintegration.

Despite the absence of the concertmaster and the first violoncellist, the organization gave a good account of its progress, and its spirited performance held promise of artistic growth. In the playing one noted a fine cooperative spirit and plenty of enthusiasm. Mr. Lanning's manner on the podium revealed a soundly based knowledge of the conductor's technique and an instinct for effective phrasing.

The program, as was to be expected, followed a path not too difficult for novitiates. It contained a Mozart overture, a Haydn symphony, two of Grieg's lyric pieces, an album leaf by Wagner, a Strauss waltz and Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave" overture.

Networks Criticized

By James D. Secrest

FCC Monopoly Inquiry

THE FEDERAL Communications Commission yesterday indicated it is preparing to break the hold of the major networks on the broadcasting industry as it released a 1,300-page report of a special committee which more than a year ago conducted an extensive investigation of monopoly charges.

The report, subject to approval by the full commission, cited what it termed "many arbitrary and inequitable practices" by the chains in their contractual relations with affiliated stations.

The brunt of the criticism was directed against the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System. The report was less severe with the Mutual Broadcasting System.

The committee expressed the opinion that the FCC has adequate power under the Communications Act "to redefine its licensing policy and require the elimination of inequitable and arbitrary contractual arrangements which affect the duty of the licensee to serve the public interest."

A NEW CLEAR-CHANNEL policy, which would take the highly desirable wave lengths away from the networks, was recommended by the committee.

"The record evidences," the report states, "that all but two of the 34 high-power clear-channel stations in the United States are on the Columbia and National networks, as well as all the high-power regional stations . . .

"In our opinion, the commission should consider the wisdom and practicability of utilizing the clear channels so that people living in all sections of the United States can have the benefit of radio reception at present denied them."

The report was drafted by a committee composed of Commissioner Thad H. Brown, as chairman, and Commissioners Paul A. Walker and Frederick I. Thompson. It was based on more than 10,000 pages of testimony and nearly 800 exhibits produced at a 73-day hearing in the latter part of 1938 and early part of 1939.

NETWORKS WERE CHARGED with dominating the broadcasting industry, both financially and in the choice of programs.

The report points out that 350 of the country's 660 standard broadcast stations in 1938 were in the major networks. The 660 stations were owned by 460 persons, but 87 of these persons owned more than one station and did 52 per cent of the commercial business.

Nearly half of the broadcasting income in 1938, which amounted to $18,854,784, went to C. B. S. and N. B. C.

"From a financial and economic standpoint," the committee commented, "it seems clear that the network organizations occupy a predominant place in the broadcast industry, which has enabled them to profit handsomely at the expense of the independently owned and controlled stations.

"IT ALSO SHOULD be recognized that there is considerable evidence in the record which indicates that from a social viewpoint the profits derived from network operations have not been sufficiently utilized for the betterment and expansion of the industry."

The committee stated it had reached "the inescapable conclusion . . . that National and Columbia, directed by a few men, hold a powerful influence over the public domain of the air and measurably control radio communication to the people of the United States.

"If freedom of communication is one of the precious possessions of the American people," it adds, "such a condition is not thought by the committee to be in the public interest and presents inherent danger to the welfare of a country where democratic processes prevail."

The committee criticized the policy of N. B. C. and C. B. S. in placing radio talent under exclusive contracts and declared it "has the effect of limiting the efforts of much of the best talent in the country to network programs and of arbitrarily restricting the programs of independently competing stations as well as the communities in which these independent stations are located. These two networks between them control about 800 of the best artists in the broadcast and concert field."

THE REPORT REVEALS that N. B. C. is a dominant factor in the field of electrical transcription and notes that independent stations, which often have to use the recorded programs, are penalized thereby.

Two-thirds of the Nation's standard broadcast stations are operated as incidental to other businesses, the committee found. In many instances the actual owners of the stations do not operate them personally. Approximately 300 stations are operated by newspapers, the report states, and 125 other stations are operated by other businesses of various kinds.

Many of the largest corporations which control broadcast stations directly or indirectly, the committee said, are themselves controlled through proxy voting by a very small number of persons who, themselves, hold no material ownership in the companies.

As an example, the Radio Corporation of America, which owns N. B. C., is cited. The committee found it is controlled by three persons who between them own only 5,829 shares of a total of 9,664,502 voted by them.

THE COMMITTEE points out that networks are not licensed, despite their control of broadcasting, and that responsibility is fixed on individual stations.

"In practice, however, the record shows that the responsibility discharged by the licensee of a station engaged in chain broadcasting is reduced to a matter of simply selecting the network with which the station is to be associated."

The right of selecting and producing network programs, the committee notes, has been transferred to advertising agencies, thereby removing the responsibility further from the station.

The committee does not recommend that networks be broken up but suggested that the FCC give consideration to regulations which would retain the advantages of chain service but eliminate the abuses. It points out that the commission has the power, which it has never exercised, "to make special regulations applicable to radio stations engaged in chain broadcasting."

Today And Tomorrow

A Clear Warning

MUSSOLINI ENTERED the war on Monday. On Tuesday the President of Brazil made a speech aligning himself morally with Mussolini. Thus we are put publicly on notice by the head of the largest country in South America what a victory of the totalitarian states in Europe is to mean here.

A few months ago, when we talked of defending this hemisphere, we thought it a fairly simple matter of stopping Hitler from putting an army on transports and sailing to some distant Latin-American country. Col. Lindbergh reminded us that the Atlantic Ocean is very wide. Then we watched the Norwegian affair, and realized that a country can be conquered by the Trojan Horse method—that is to say by organizing a conspiracy and running in arms and disguised soldiers to support it. We were startled into realizing that in order to resist a conquest of this type in South America, we should have to send a fleet and an army over an expanse of salt water that is larger than the distance from the United States to Europe.

But even when we had awakened to this, we had not really understood the problem which will confront us if Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy knock out the Allies. President Vargas of Brazil has, however, made the thing clear, and no matter how much effort is made to explain away his speech, what he said on Tuesday is a warning that we shall ignore only at our extreme peril. President Vargas made it clear to us that if we permit the Axis to win in Europe, the Axis will not have to conquer what it covets in South America. It will not even have to organize many Trojan Horse conspiracies. There will be dictators in South America, already in power at strategic points, who will proclaim themselves leaders of "virile peoples." They will ally themselves with Hitler and Mussolini. They will declare with Mussolini that they stand with "the poor, numerous peoples who labor against starvers who ferociously cling to a monopoly of all riches and all gold on earth."

Our problem, then, will not be how to defend this hemisphere against Europe. Our problem will be how to defend ourselves in this hemisphere.

THE PRESIDENT did not misjudge the situation when he labored so hard to keep Italy out of the war. He did not misjudge the situation when he recognized on Monday that the intervention of Italy was a matter of immediate and vital concern to the United States. For the plain fact of the matter is that if the Nazis smash the British fleet in Northern Europe or capture it, and if Mussolini and Hitler smash the Allied fleets in the Mediterranean, and break out into the Atlantic at Gibraltar, carrying Spain along with them, then it will be beyond any power we possess, or can quickly mobilize, to defend South America. Strategically, economically, and ideologically, South America will be beyond our reach.

Not only will South America have become as definitely within the control of the Axis as are the Balkan states in Europe, but there will be available in South America convenient bases of operation against the Canal and the inner defenses of continental United States. Col. Lindbergh has told us that airplanes are still not able easily to fly the Atlantic and return. That is true. But if the airplanes have landing fields and bases in this hemisphere, provided for them by the leaders of "virile peoples", they will not need to fly the Atlantic where Col. Lindbergh flew it in his first flight. They will fly it where Col. Lindbergh flew it in one of his later flights, down where the ocean is so inconveniently narrow between Africa and Brazil that the distance is no greater than from Maine to Florida.

THE PLAIN TRUTH of the matter is that the fate of the Monroe Doctrine and the security of the western hemisphere will be decided in the battles that will be fought around the British Isles and at Gibraltar. If the French resistance is broken, if the British Isles are subjugated, and if Spain and Northwestern Africa are dominated by Hitler and Mussolini, the strategic defenses of the western hemisphere will have been shattered. After that we shall be able to fight only a rearguard action in the outposts of our security while we attempt at infinite cost and sacrifice to arm ourselves sufficiently to maintain our very independence.

Thanks to President Vargas, the position is so plain, and the warning is so unmistakable, that only the hopelessly foolish can misunderstand it any longer.

The Germans claim today to be closer to the French capital, most beautiful in Europe, than they were in 1914 before they were stopped in the first Battle of the Marne

3. SYMBOL OF PARIS is the Eiffel Tower, rising high over the Seine. It is France's best radio station and in all probability will be a target for German bombs

4. MONTMARTRE HILL and its famous blazing white Sacre Coeur Church. Montmartre Hill is the highest point in Paris. It was here that military observers gathered in 1914 and with high-powered field glasses watched the progress of the Battle of the Marne

5 ILE DE LA CITE, "the heart of Paris," a small island on which the city was born. This airview shows the Seine and the historic Cathedral of Notre Dame. A protracted seige of the capital is anticipated as the French would rather see the city razed than surrender it to Hitler

6. LONGCHAMPS, famous race course in the Bois de Boulogne. The French denied that the Nazis were any closer to Paris yesterday than they were in 1914. They admitted the Germans had engulfed Senlis, 26 miles north and east of the center of the capital

Soroptimists Vote Red Cross $100 to Aid War Refugees

Club Members Indorse Movement to Speed Aid for Allies, Will Collect Cothing to Be Sent to the Noncombatants

The Soroptimist Club yesterday, at its final business meeting preceding the convention of the National Federation of Soroptimist Clubs next week in Salt Lake City, voted $100 to the Red Cross relief fund and made plans for collecting used clothing for refugees.

The club members will assemble used clothing—clean and in good repair—and Mrs. Edna Hoffman will send trucks to collect it to be sent to France.

In addition, the members indorsed the movement of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

This was presented by Mrs. Betty Jones, and will be brought up by local delegates for indorsement by the convention of the national federation. This body includes 145 clubs, with a membership of more than 3,000 women holding executive positions.

Members of the Washington club, who leave tonight at 11:40 for the convention, are Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, second vice president of the federation; Miss Mary Bourke, local president; Miss Daisy Reed, delegate; Mrs. Lorraine Good and Miss Estelle Zirkin, alternates; Mrs. Mary Lewis, Miss Emma Beuchele and Mrs. Jean S. Bennett.

Taking cognizance of local as well as international needs, the club voted yesterday to give $50 to Camp Bennet, to provide summer vacations at camp for several underprivileged children.

Madame Chairman

MRS. RICHARD DUNCAN, wife of Representative Duncan, of Missouri, who has served as hostess for the teas and receptions at the Congressional Club this year, is making preparations to return to her home in St. Joseph, Mo., the end of next month, "whether Congress keeps or not."

She will drive West, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. A. W. Davenport, and Mr. Duncan's mother, Mrs. Frank Duncan, both of St. Joseph, who have been here with them since last October. Mrs. Duncan has managed to sandwich interesting sight-seeing in between other duties throughout the season and her mother and mother-in-law have had a grand time in Washington. They have been with the Duncan's at the Broadmoor.

During the D. A. R. Congress, Mrs. Davenport served as delegate from the St. Joseph Chapter, an office which her daughter has discharged in former years since coming to the Capital.

Mrs. Richard Duncan is active in the D. A. R. the League of Women Voters and in Y. W. C. A. work as well as in several women's clubs and political organizations in her home. She occasionally addresses women's groups during a campaign year but never talks at general political meeting—she believes "there are plenty of men to do that."

PARTY AT RIPPON LODGE—Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis have issued invitations for a garden party in honor of the Archaeological Society of Washington Saturday afternoon from 3 to 7 at Rippon Lodge, their historic Virginia estate. In case of inclement weather the gathering will be held inside.

OFFICE HOURS—Mrs. Lanier McLachlen, 101 East Leland street, Chevy Chase who is in charge of the knitting and sewing units of the Chevy Chase Branch, Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has designated Wednesday mornings, before noon, as the time she may be called for information regarding the work. People have been calling her at all hours of the day and night and she has been obliged to set aside one morning of each week for such calls.

She will give information and instruction as to the type and size of garments to any persons desiring to knit, or crochet. There is great need for sweaters, socks afghans and baby clothes.

A new sewing unit under the Chevy Chase branch is being started this week at the Chevy Chase Methodist Church, meeting Wednesday at 9 a. m. and open to anyone desiring to help with war relief work.

NEW OFFICERS—The Regent's Club of the District D. A. R. has elected Mrs. John J. Ragan regent of Emily Nelson Chapter, as its president, succeeding Mrs. Edgar E. Good.

Other officers elected are: Mrs. John W Townsend of the Dorothy Hancock Chapter vice president; Mrs. Franklin A. Refert, Eugenia Washington Chapter, recording secretary; Mrs. John R. Riggleman, Potomac Chapter, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Lee D. McDonald, Samuel Gorton Chapter, treasurer.

President of W. C. T. U. Is Visiting Headquarters

Young People Are Beginning to Ask Where They Can Go to Have Fun Without Liquor, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith Says

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

The Post Club Editor.

Young people, disgusted at the spectacle of excessive drinking are now beginning to ask if there is any place they can go to have fun, where liquor is not served.

This was the statement of Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Evanston, Ill., president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, who is spending a few days at the legislative headquarters here. Mrs. Smith believes the educational campaign of her organization and others anxious to save the youth of the country from the evils of drink is resulting in a change of attitude among young people.

She expressed impatience with the great amount of attention given to the problem of the alcoholic, which has gained such serious proportions since the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. "It always reminds me of the test for insanity," she said, "in which a faucet is turned on and the subject given a broom to sweep up the water. If he lets it run and keeps on sweeping, he is not."

For the last five years the W. C. T. U. has been conducting an educational campaign to show the effects of alcohol and narcotics. It is financed by a $1,000,000 fund raised for the purpose by the more than 10,000 unions throughout the country. Nearly 30 of these are in the district of which Mrs. Ida B. Ramsey is State president.

W. C. T. U. Conducting Educational Campaign

Unlike the approach used years ago, that today deals with facts and scientific experiments, said Mrs. Smith. Two motion pictures have been made and released through the Motion Picture Bureau of the Y. M. C. A. and a third is now in production. The first two have reached more than 2,000,000 persons a year in schools, colleges and commercial institutions where employers use them to acquaint their workers with the dangers of alcohol, said Mrs. Smith.

The first picture, made three years ago, is entitled "The Beneficent Reprobate" and shows the many industrial uses of alcohol, which is rated as the second most valuable liquid known to industry. The movie shows its uses in varnishes, tanning leather, its effectiveness as an insecticide and its indispensable use in "pickling" anatomical specimens. It also points out that the same pickling process goes on inside the human body when alcohol is used as a beverage.

The picture also dramatizes Dr. William Mayo's statement that three out of every ten who begin as "social drinkers" become addicts, said Mrs. Smith. Experiments of Dr. Walter Miles, of Yale, showing the decrease in normal efficiency resulting from two glasses of "2 per cent" beer, also are presented in the picture.

Second Film Deals With Economic Side

The second film, "The Pay-Off," deals with the economic side of the liquor question, said Mrs. Smith, and is a dramatization of actual case histories supplied by a family welfare agency in one of the large cities of the country. These trace the characters from their first "social drinking" while they had good jobs and lived in comfortable circumstances, to the situations which brought them to the welfare agencies.

"We have faith to believe that if young people have the facts put before them, they will make their own decisions," Mrs. Smith declared. "We have made no effort for the sensational in the pictures, but to present facts as they are."

Dr. Robert Seliger, psychiatrist at Johns Hopkins, in Baltimore, will appear in the new film now being made, which will show the chemistry of alcohol and the action of the different kinds of poison into which it is classified.

Mrs. Smith is here in the interest of the Neely bill designed to prohibit blind selling and block booking of motion pictures and also of that introduced by Senator Edwin C. Johnson, of Colorado, to prohibit alcohol advertising over the radio. She leaves tomorrow for New York to attend a meeting of the National Council of Women.

Two Junior League Units Will Sew For Red Cross

Every day brings announcements of more Red Cross groups being formed. Yesterday morning the first of two groups of Junior League members and their friends met to sew at the home of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Reed T. Roberts, 125 Grafton street, Chevy Chase. Today a second group will meet at the home of Mrs. George Walker, 108 Rosemary street, to knit.

The workers during the summer will include both members of the league and their friends, but, in the fall a Junior League unit will be formed, including members only, and will meet at the league headquarters on Massachusetts avenue. Miss Stellita Stapleton, who is a league member and is also in charge of the Red Cross Speakers Bureau, is in charge of the organization of the summer groups. Mrs. Roberts is chairman of that group which will meet at her home. It started yesterday with Miss Stapleton, Miss Sylvia Alexander, Miss Helen Crane, Mrs. Karl Corley, Mrs. Campbell Armstrong, Mrs. William S. Anderson, Mrs. Merton Tice and Mrs. Noble Powell comprising the initial group of volunteers.

Those who have signed up for the knitting unit under Mrs. Walker's chairmanship are Mrs. Marshall Exnicios, Miss Anne-Carter Greene, past president of the Junior League, and Mrs. Thomas Knowles. Others who are friends of these will come in next week.

Poetry Group to Knit Each Thursday

The Martha McLear Poetry Group for the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women, although it has officially ended its programs for the season, will continue to meet through the summer on Thursday mornings at the clubhouse at 11. The women will knit and make layettes for the Red Cross, and each member will bring a poem to read at the session. Luncheon will follow.

Due to the constantly increasing number of volunteers for work in the District Chapter, American Red Cross, Mrs. William A. Snow, vice chairman of the surgical dressings department in charge of production, has announced that a new group in this department will be formed at the Chapter House, 1730 E street northwest, tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. It will work from 6:30 to 9 o'clock.

Taking further steps to meet the demand for work among the volunteers, Mrs. Snow also announces that starting Monday, surgical dressings will be made at Chapter House every night from 6 to 9:30 o'clock except Saturday. These night groups are being formed largely to accommodate women employed in the Government who work by day and want to devote some of their time to Red Cross work.

Delphian Society Holds Luncheon

The National Capital Delphian Society met at luncheon at the Hotel 2400. Mrs. Arabella Norton, president, presided at the meeting, which completed ten years of work for the group.

Members of the chapter who attended the luncheon were Mrs. Charles W. Arth, Mrs. E. Wade Ball, Mrs. McC. Baldwin, Mrs. G. A. Boston, Mrs. Annabel Brooke, Mrs. Donald Campbell, Mrs. Fred Catlett, Mrs. W. M. Dixon, Mrs. T. S. Duvall, Mrs. C. M. Godfrey, Mrs. Maude Huntley, Mrs. Perry Huff, Mrs. Tracy L. Jeffords, Mrs. H. A. Latane, Mrs. T. F. Law, Mrs. Phila Maxwell, Mrs. Stacy T. Neland, Mrs. F. B. Olcott, Mrs. H. Wilson Petty, Mrs. J. C. Ristine, Mrs. Walter Sanders, Mrs. Edward Stevens, Mrs. J. H. Democratic League To Banquet June 21

The National Democratic League of the District will have its annual banquet and ball at the Congressional Country Club June 21 at 9 o'clock. J. Nelson Anderson is president of the league and Hugh V. Keiser, general chairman of the banquet.

Mrs. High P. Thomas is co-chairman; Sefton Darr, past president of the D. C. Bar Association, chairman of the speakers' committee, and Dr. F. Thomas Evans, in charge of entertainment.

Club to Present Chace Dancers

Tonight, after a formal dinner which is to be served in the garden, the Arts Club will present Marian Chace and her dance group in "Concert 1940."

Miss Chace and her dancers will give a recital ranging in time from the sixteenth century to the present day and in setting from the East Indies to our South with its spirituals.

Todd Gray has accommodated the musical arrangement of the spirituals so that the dance numbers are based on them rather than a literal interpretation. For the Bach fugue in G Minor, the interpretations will be literal. Each pair of a group of eight dancers carries its corresponding musical theme throughout the whole composition.

200 Attend Benefit For Meyerson Club

More than 200 members and guests attended the buffet luncheon and garden party given yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Morris Pollin, 4821 Colorado avenue, for the benefit of the Goldie Meyerson Club of the Pioneer Women for Palestine.

Mrs. Pollin, Mrs. Samuel Ericson and Mrs. Isaac Stearman sponsored the luncheon and Mrs. Benjamin Silver was chairman of arrangements.

The guests played bridge and mah jong in the garden after the luncheon.

Mrs. Howry Host Today to Relief Benefit Committee

Mrs. Edward F. Howry, president of the Garden Club of Fairfax, is entertaining at luncheon today at her home, Oak Hill, for members of the committee from her club, planning the Red Cross relief benefit to be given Saturday, June 29, at th home of Mrs. John W. Rixey-Smith on Great Falls Road, near Forestville, Va.

The Fairfax club and the Difficult Run Garden Club, of which Mrs. David Wing is president, will join in sponsoring the event. It will be a flower show, garden party and supper dance.

Chest Division To Meet Today

Mrs. Reginald S. Huidekoper, who heads a division of the Community Chest's advance gifts unit for the fall campaign, is calling division members together today at 10 a. m. in her home for a preview of the activities they will embark upon after Labor Day.

Parents Entertain at Two Parties As Agnes Birney Makes Her Bow

Large Reception Held at Family Home With Dinner Later in Chevy Chase Club; Debutante Just Back From College

FRESH FROM FINAL exams at Welles College, Miss Agnes Birney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dion Birney, plunged into the debutante whirl yesterday when her parents entertained at two parties in her honor. One was a large afternoon reception at their home on Cathedral avenue; the other a dinner at the Chevy Chase Club.

The whole family kept their fingers crossed all day, as the tea was planned for the garden. White iron tables and chairs were set out, and large tables placed under the trees. Sidney's orchestra played "conversational music" as a background, and the whole effect was a festive one.

The debutante and her mother received in the drawing room, amid the many flowers sent to Miss Birney. The latter, who is blonde with blue eyes, wore aqua organdy over white lace, made with a full skirt, a square neck trimmed with a narrow ruffle, and short puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of Shasta daisies.

Mrs. Birney chose a floor length frock of cocoa-colored lace with a corsage of yellow orchids. Mr. Birney was here, there and everywhere seeing that the guests had a good time.

Miss Sita Finkenstaedt, and Miss Birney Strong, both cousins of the debutante, were among the young people assisting her. Others were Miss Patricia McKnew, who will be presented this afternoon by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKnew; Miss Eugenia Merrill, Miss Georgianna Flather, Miss Joan McKenna, Miss Marianna Evans, and two houseguests of Miss Birney, Miss Emadele Kellam, of Groton, N. Y., and Miss Georganne Funsten, of St. Louis.

Fourteen Hostesses Assist Mrs. Birney

Pouring tea for Mrs. Birney were Mrs. Allison N. Miller, Mrs. Catherine Birney Strong, Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Mrs. Charles R. Gantz, of Baltimore; Mrs. T. Yancy Milburn, Mrs. Guy W. Leadbetter, Mrs. Paul S. Putzki, Mrs. Parke A. Galleher, Mrs. Dale D. Drain, Mrs. Paul E. Lesh, Mrs. J. Douglas Rollow, Mrs. John W. Turrentine, Mrs. Hatch H. Sterrett and Mrs. Landra B. Platt.

Many cave dwellers were in the company at the party, for both Mr. and Mrs. Birney were born and brought up in Washington. The pretty deb is a granddaughter of Mrs. Arthur A. Birney of this city.

Over 100 of the young people adjourned to the Chevy Chase Club for the dinner afterwards. They sat at several tables decorated with spring flowers and later enjoyed dancing.

Plan to Summer On Cape Cod

Besides Miss Birney's assistants at her debut, the dinner party guests included the Misses Louise Stillwell, Zeva Fish, Cynthia Dunn, Joanna Huntington, Rosemary Merrill, Marilynn Himes, Nancy Weller, Patricia Hill, Billie Byrd West, Patricia Prochnik, Patricia Morris, Edith Pearson, Nancy Strong, Edna Ross, Gladys Carter, Yolanda Alfaro, Laura Blair, Ruth Meyer, Ellen Flowerree, Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, Natalie Sutherland, Peggy Houghteling, Tudor and Suzanne Morsell, Catherine Hambley, Ruth Robb, Betty van der Straten-Pothoz, Beth Kean, and Mary Norris, who is visiting Miss Cynthia Dunn.

Mr. and Mrs. Birney entertained 10 at dinner at another table. Their party included Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Miss Florence Johnson, Mrs. Allison N. Miller, Mrs. Guy W. Leadbetter, Mrs. Paul S. Putzki and Mr. and Mrs. Landra B. Platt.

The Birney family will leave later in the summer for the Qoisset Harbor House on Cape Cod.

Mrs. Wade Ellis Gives Luncheon At Virginia Home

Mrs. Wade H. Ellis entertained at luncheon yesterday at Rippon Lodge, the Ellis home in Virginia. The party was one in a series that the hostess has planned for this season. On Saturday, she and Mr. Ellis will give a garden party there in honor of the Archeological Society, and next Wednesday Mrs. Ellis will fete Mrs. Woodrow Wilson at a luncheon.

Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg and Mrs. Charles L. McNary were ranking guests at yesterday's party. Others there were Mrs. John Marshall, Mrs. Frank T. Hines, Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. Merle Thorpe, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. John Oliver Le Gorce, Mrs. Loren Johnson, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Irene Caldwell and Mrs. George Thorpe.

Lieut. Norvell Marries Miss West

Ceremony Held At Fort Bliss Chapel in Texas

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Stanley West, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William Whitehead West, of Fort Bliss, Tex., to Lieut. James Early Norvell, Field Artillery, U. S. A., son of Maj. B. P. Norvell, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Norvell, of Springfield, Mo., took place last night.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock at the Fort Bliss Chapel, with Chaplain Roy H. Parker officiating. The bride's gown was of fine white net simply made with a long train. She wore a veil of exquisite rose point lace and carried a shower bonquet of orchids, stephanotis and lilies of the valley.

Miss Josephine Stanley West, the maid of honor, had chosen a costume of apple green net, with a very wide skirt. Her halo hat was of green tulle and she carried a shower bonquet of chiffon daisies.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Grace Colgate Rumbough, cousin of the bride; Eleanor Page Aleshire, Katherine Riley, Pamela Swift, Martha Jane Bliss, Frances Dunn and Clarissa Mitchell. Their dresses of yellow net were made like that of the maid of honor, and they wore similar hats and carried daisies.

Lieut. Douglas P. Quandt was best man, and the ushers were Lieut. Frank C. Norvell, Lieut. Arthur H. Wilson, Lieut. John Damon, Lieut. William Enemark, Lieut. William W. West, brother of the bride; Lieut. Delf Oden and Lieut. William H. Patterson.

A reception at the Fort Bliss Officers' Club followed the ceremony, and the bride cut the cake with her husband's sword.

Mrs. Norvell is a great granddaughter of the late Gen. Davis S. Stanley, former Commander of the Department of Texas, for whom Camp Stanley is named, and a grandaughter of the late Col. David J. Rumbough, Field Artillery. She is the niece of Roland S. Morris, former Ambassador to Japan, and Mrs. Morris, and is a great great grandniece of Commodore Stephen Decatur. Mrs. Thomas Q. Donaldson, wife of Capt. Donaldson, of Fort Myer, is her aunt, and she has many other service connections. Her father was formerly stationed in Washington and she attended Gunston Hall here.

After a trip to the San Francisco Exposition, the couple will return to Fort Bliss for station. Later the bridegroom will go to the Artillery School in Fort Sill, Okla.

Mrs. David J. Rumbough, of Washington, was among the out-of-town guests at the wedding.

Shippen-Sears Bridals Planned

Mrs. Thomas Carter, of Philadelphia, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Natalie Brooks Sears, to Edward Shippen, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd P. Shippen, of Washington.

Miss Sears, who is the daughter of the late Marion Sears, of New York, was presented to society in Philadelphia in 1937 and is a graduate of the Agnes Irwin School.

Miss Perkins Gives Tea This Afternoon

Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, will entertain at tea at her home this afternoon for officials of the Department of Labor.

Assisting at the tea table will be Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, wife of the Commissioner of Immigration; Mrs. Gerald Riley, wife of the Solicitor of the Labor Department; Mrs. John R. Steelman, Mrs. L. Metcalfe Walling and Mrs. Phillip B. Fleming.

"Debutante Of the Day"

Hessler Studio.

Miss Agnes Birney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dion S. Birney, who made her debut yesterday at the home of her parents. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Birney entertained at a dinner for a hundred at the Chevy Chase Club in honor of their daughter STEWARDS OF THE refugee ship President Roosevelt had to stop blowing bugles to announce lunch on the recent voyage back to this country. The bugling aroused so many babies on board from their naps, and such a wailing set up that it was finally called off.

So says Mrs. Alan Kirk, wife of our Naval Attache in London, who, with her young son, was among the passengers. She is in Washington for a few days with her mother, Mrs. Frederick Chapin, before opening her summer home in Connecticut.

The BABIES made their homes in bassinets and even in baskets on the trip back, according to Mrs. Kirk. Twenty-six of them were lined up along one corridor alone.

With 770 aboard a ship which ordinarily carries 250, Mrs. Kirk says the only place to sit down was the smoking room. A three-day gale caused the decks to be closed off, and the mothers had their hands full with nearly 200 romping children. But Mrs. Kirk says everybody was calm and pays high tribute to the excellent food served aboard and the cooperative spirit of officers of the line.

When war first broke out last September, the wives of American embassy officials leased one big house in the countryside near London. Later, as the war settled into a quiet stage, they remained away from the capital but set up separate residences.

INSTEAD OF CONGRESS requiring a special act before American officials can accept decorations from other countries, we think a law should be passed obliging everyone with orders to wear them constantly. At the wedding on Tuesday of Miss Marorie Towers to Lieut. Herbert Douglas Riley, the guests were fascinated by the collection of Rear Admiral Towers, the bride's father.

Around his neck was a long chain set with brilliant stones, the Order of the Tower and the Sword of Portugal. Five medals were pinned to his uniform. Admiral Towers was awarded them for his flight across the Atlantic in 1919, the first ever made. Several airplanes made the daring trip, and two were lost en route.

• • • •

THE DAZZLING WHITE summer uniforms of the Admiral and the Navy men who ushered at the wedding made the reception afterwards a colorful event. It was held in the garden of the 1925 F Street Club. Small tables were set up under the trees, and on one stood a big white cake.

The pretty bride and her wedding party gathered in one corner of the garden, while the guests mingled about everywhere. Among those present, besides dozens of Naval officers and their wives, were Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, the latter wearing a biege dress with a smart rose colored crepe turban which flowed down to her shoulders in back; Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mrs. George T. Pettingill and Mrs. Howard M. Lammers. The latter, who fixed up a charming house in Georgetown this winter, is off, shortly, to Newport, where she has decided to make her headquarters in the future.

OUTSIDE MRS LAMMERS' little house is a hydrant, with a spigot attached. Finding that all the pickanninies of the neighborhood were in the habit of turning it on for a drink, she has thoughtfully installed a tin cup held to the hydrant by a chain.

• • • •

OUTSIDE MRS. LAMMERS' lilliard will entertain a few friends at cocktails this afternoon for her brother, H. B. Villard. She will be maid of honor at his wedding, June 27, in New York, to Miss Mary St. John . . . Mrs. Randall Hagner will serve cocktails to some of the "taxi dancers" for Friday's carnival at Wolf Trap Farm, when they meet at her house about 6:30 to drive out to Virginia.

Helen Brylawski and Lansburgh Wed in Setting of Flowers

Before an improvised altar in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel, Miss Helen Brylawski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Brylawski, of Washington, became the bride last evening of Sidney Lansburgh, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lansburgh, of Baltimore.

The Rev. Norman Gerstenfeld, assisted by the Rev. William Rosenau, of Baltimore, officiated in a setting of white flowers and smilax.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Kiviette model of white organza over white satin, with long sleeves and a circular train. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of heirloom lace, and she carried a bouquet of two varieties of orchid.

Mrs. Arthur Lyon was her matron of honor, wearing flesh-colored marquisette and a halo horsehair hat with ribbon streamers. The bridesmaids were Miss Therese Weil, of New Orleans; Miss Rosalie Lurvey, of Indianapolis; Miss Sylvia Glickman, of New York, and the Misses Elizabeth Hahn and Selma Friedman, of Washington. They were dressed in aquamarine marquisette and wore flesh-colored tulle hats with aqua streamers. All the attendants carried fans fashioned of pink roses.

Robert Lansburgh was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Richard Lansburgh, another brother; Edward F. Brylawski, the bride's brother; Frank Kauffmann, Arthur Lyon, K. Ray Katz and Jacob E. Katz.

A dinner and dancing for 400 followed the ceremony. Mrs. Brylawski wore a turquoise chiffon outfit, softly draped, with a corsage of orchids, and Mrs. Lansburgh chose a rose lace gown with blue accessories.

After a honeymoon in the West, the couple will make their home in New York. The bride was graduated from Goucher College on Tuesday.

Beatrice Hickey Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Arnold

Son of Army Air Corps Chief Married In New York Hotel

Service circles in the Capital were interested in the wedding yesterday in New York of Miss Beatrice Catherine Hickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Benedict Hickey, of New York and Pocantico Hills, N. Y., to Lieut. Henry H. Arnold, jr., of West Point, son of Maj. Gen. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, and Mrs. Arnold, of Hampton Lane, Bethesda.

The ceremony was performed at the Belmont Plaza Hotel by the Rev. W. W. Costello, of St. Catherine of Sienna Church. A reception in the Spanish Room followed.

The bride wora a gown of paper white taffeta trimmed with white velvet and made with a full skirt fitted jacket. Her fingertip veil fell from a floral headdress and she carried a flower muff of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Her attendants were the Misses Katherine Brown, of Bayside, Long Island, and Lillian Brown, of New York. They were dressed in pink and blue paper taffeta gowns of similar type.

Lieut. Edward Wynne was best man, and the ushers were Lieuts. Frank Shawn, Marchant Woodward, Larry Klar, William Coleman and William Clook.

The bride attended Cathedral School here and Pratt Institute in New York. Her husband was graduated this week from the United States Military Academy. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Florida.

Miss Drake Wed To J. A. Norman

A wedding of interest in Washington took place last evening in Walnut, Iowa, when Miss Marie Clara Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis William Drake, of Walnut, became the bride of James Arthur Norman, of Washington. He is the son of Mrs. James Arthur Norman, of Mooseheart, Ill.

The Walnut Presbyterian Church was the scene of the ceremony at which the Rev. Richard Chambers officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white lace and net over satin with a finger-tip tulle veil and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Oliver E. Overseth, of Denver, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was gowned in aqua net and she carried a bouquet of coral colored gladioli. Oliver E. Overseth, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man.

A reception followed in the home of the bride's parents and later the young couple left for a trip to Colorado. Mrs. Norman's traveling ensemble featured shades of beige and brown.

After their honeymoon, the couple will make their home here, where the bridegroom is associated with the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis.

Miss Raley Bride of H. Novinger

The marriage of Miss Marie Raley, daughter of Mrs. Mary N. Raley, of Washington, to Harold S. Novinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Novinger, of Harrisburg, Pa., took place yesterday afternoon at St. Matthew's Cathedral. The Rev. William Stricker officiated at the 2 p. m. ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, James E. Huntt, the bride was gowned in white angel skin crepe with a bodice of marquisette. With it, she wore a white-flowered toque and she carried a corsage of orchids.

Miss Janet L. Raley, her sister, was maid of honor. Her pink crepe gown was worn with a white picture hat and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Raley wore raspberry lace with a white hat and a corsage of white sweet peas.

LaRue Huntt, nephew of the bride, played the organ during the ceremony. After the wedding, there was a reception in the palm court at Hotel 2400 Sixteenth street. The couple will make their home in Little Rock, Ark., following the honeymoon.

Eleanor Wermouth And S. T. Henry To Marry June 29

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wermouth have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Eleanor, to Stokes T. Henry, on Saturday, June 29, at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church. The ceremony will take place at 8 p. m., and will be followed by a reception.

Mrs. Robert S. Loney, of Arlington, Va., will be matron of honor. Miss Nancy Armitage, of Swarthmore, Pa., cousin of the bride, will be maid of honor. Other attendants will include Miss Martha Fitts, of New York, and Miss Kimesia Henry, of Spruce Pine, N. C., sister of the bridegroom.

Engagement Announced

Wendell H. Moore.

MISS BETTE BURCH,

whose engagement to Robert Custis Walker is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wood Burch, of Macomb street. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Estelle Walker, of Washington Grove, Md., and the late Robert H. Walker. Miss Burch is vice president of the June graduating class of George Washington University and was president of Chi Omega sorority. Mr. Walker also attended George Washington University, where he was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. The wedding will take place in September

Miss Mary M. Breckinridge Engaged to Jefferson Patterson

Bride-Elect Is in Genoa, Covering War for C. B. S.; Bridegroom-Elect Is First Secretary of American Embassy in Berlin

Of wide interest in Washington, where the couple have many friends, is the engagement of Miss Mary Marvin Breckinridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cabell Breckinridge, of York Village, Me., to Jefferson Patterson, First Secretary of the American Embassy at Berlin. Announcement has just been made by her parents.

Miss Breckinridge's voice you have no doubt heard over the radio many times this year in European broadcasts. Since last November she has been in the foreign service of the Columbia Broadcasting system and is at present in Genoa. She formerly made her home in Washington, and visited here a year ago as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis.

The prospective bride attended the Brearley School in New York and Milton Academy, Milton, and was graduated from Vassar in 1927. She made her debut in New York in 1924 and two years later was presented at one of the spring courts in London. She met her future husband last winter when she had a radio broadcasting assignment in Berlin.

Formerly a photographer, Miss Breckinridge gave lessons to members of the Junior League here one season. She turned to radio work after she made a guest broadcast from London last fall. She has been in England taking pictures of the evacuation of children from the capital.

Later she had a broadcasting assignment in the Stavanger (Norway) battle zone. After Norway she returned to her Berlin microphone post, later going to Amsterdam to cover the crisis preceding the Nazi invasion of the Lowlands and then to Paris, where she broadcast word pictures of the scenes there.

Mr. Patterson, whose family is associated with the National Cash Register Co., is from Dayton, Ohio. He was graduated from Yale University in 1913, received an L.L. D. from the Harvard Law School and studied at the Harvard School of Business Administration in 1913. The following year he was admitted to the Ohio bar. From 1917 to 1919, he served overseas with the Army, where he became a second lieutenant. A few months after joining the State Department's foreign service he held the post of assistant secretary to the Washington Armaments Limitation Conference.

Later he was stationed in Peking, Bogota and Constantinople until 1930, when he entered the State Department's Protocol Division. He retured to foreign service in 1934 and was sent to Breslau and then to Oslo as embassy aide. He has been in Berlin since November, 1938.

Louisa Ayers Robert Wed To Grant Leroux at Atlanta

One of the outstanding weddings of the summer took place in Atlanta last evening when Miss Louise Ayers Robert, daughter of Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., secretary of the Democratic National Committee of Washington, and Mrs. Louise Ayers Robert, of Atlanta, became the bride of Grant Leroux, of Miami, Fla. The ceremony took place at All Saints Episcopal Church at 8:30 o'clock in the evening.

The bride wore a gown of chantilly lace and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. She wore as an ornament an exquisite strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

The bride's attendants were Miss Jane LeRoux, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and bridesmaids, Misses Sarah Jenkins, Ann Pappenheimer, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Frances Weinman Latimer. Octavia Boland Pollard, Turman Julius Huges, of Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Charles Wilson, of Palm Beach, Fla., and Mrs. Paul Sanger, of Charlotte, N. C.

The attendant's gowns were all of shadow green net with full bouffant skirts held tightly with bodice to hip line and heart shape neckline off the shoulder. They carried small round bouquets of yellow glory roses surrounded by talisman roses tied with illusion yellow tulle. The attendants wore small butterflies of matching green in their hair; these were especially designed for the wedding. The maid of honor wore a slightly lighter shade of green and bouquet of yellow glory roses, and lilies of the valley.

The ushers included Ned Hodgson, of Athens, Ga.; Page Smith, of Miami, Fla.; Charles Rogers, of Miami, Fla.; Cliff Johnson, of Columbus, Ga.; Frank Willingham, of Macon, Ga.; John Pidcock, of Moultrie, Ga.; Julian Baxter, of Atlanta; Charles Motz, of Atlanta, and Lawrence W. Robert, 3rd, brother of the bride.

Also ushers were Max Gardner, of Washington; W. F. Cutler, of New York; M. L. Cannon, of Charlotte; Dr. Floyd McRae, Arthur Lucas, James D. Robinson, Maj. Clark Howell, Jackson P. Dick, Col. John A. Brice, and R. T. (Bobby) Jones, jr., all of Atlanta.

There were guets from practically every State in the South attending this wedding, including several governors and their wives. A reception took place immediately following the wedding at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Leesburg Girl Becomes Bride Of Canadian

Marie L. McDonald Wed to John Brown In Church Ceremony

LEESBURG, VA., June 12.—Trailing ivy, daisies and mountain laurel, over which a soft candlelight shone, formed the setting for a lovely wedding at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Leesburg Methodist Church when Miss Marie Louise McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David M. McDonald, of Leesburg, became the bride of John Raymond Brown, of North Sydney, Nova Scotia, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Brown, of Kentville, Nova Scotia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. L. Moore, pastor of the church.

Marian Oliver, organist of Leesburg Methodist Church, played the wedding music, and Miss Frances Campbell, of Washington, D. C., sang several selections.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white marquisette with a lace bodice. The long pointed sleeves were full at the top and the neckline was high. Tiny buttons from the neckline in the back extended below the waist and fastened the frock. The full skirt ended in a long train, over which the lace veil extended. A wreath of orange blossoms held the veil in place on the head. The bride's flowers were a shower bouquet with gardenia center.

Bride's Sister Is Maid of Honor

Miss Anne McDonald, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a frock of aqua marquisette with full skirt and short puffed sleeves. The neckline was low, with clips on each side. She wore a small tulle hat of the same shade, and carried a nosegay of spring flowers.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Clayton Atwell and Miss Louise Cloud, of Leesburg; Miss Margaret Daniels, of Hagerstown, Md., and Miss Rebecca Bean, of Buchanan, Va. They wore yellow marquisette, made similar to that of the maid of honor with hats to match, and their flowers were also similar to those of the maid of honor.

The flower girls were Miss Betty Barr, of Falls Church, Va., and Miss Virginia Lois Beatty, of Lovettsville. They wore white eyelet organdy over aqua and carried nosegays of spring flowers.

To Make Home In Nova Scotia

Robert Campbell, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, was the best man and the ushers were Clayton Atwell and Stanley Reed, of Leesburg; Garland Benton, of Vienna, Va., and Robert Harper, of Hagerstown, Md.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. George A. Noland, in Ashburn. Receiving with Mrs. Noland, who wore a slate-blue sheer with white accessories, were the bride's mother, in green print sheer redingote with white accessories, and the bridegroom's mother, in sheer blue.

After the reception, the bride and bridegroom left for a trip to the Maine coast, the former wearing a blue printed sheer ensemble with white accessories. They will reside in North Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Promising Her Marriage, Man Urges Costly Clothes And Apartment Upon Girl; Should She Accept?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 23 years old, well educated and at present employed at very small pay. Although I have no money myself, I have always gone with a crowd that has both a high social and financial standing. I am desperately in love with one of the young men in this crowd, and he with me. We intend to marry eventually, but as he has just started in business, we think it better to wait a while.

In spite of my efforts to discourage him, he often brings me expensive presents. And now I am faced with the problem of trying to make him give up his foolish idea of furnishing me with a better apartment and more expensive clothes. I say he shouldn't do it; but he says that as long as we are going to get married some day, there is no reason why he shouldn't give me presents now that could be given to a wife. Do you think I am right in saying "No" to his suggestion? JANET.

DEAR JANET: If the man is financially able to give you an apartment and expensive clothes, he can afford to marry you. And if he loves you so much that he wishes to give you gifts such as "could be given to a wife," then he should make you his wife before suggesting or proffering them. And I am sure he would, if his intentions were honorable.

In taking his offer with apologetic seriousness, you are disclosing an astounding naivete. My advice to you is to say "No," bluntly and irrevocably, to his insolent offer. And don't tell anyone he has made it. The curious kind of "protection" he proposes to give is invariably construed by society as material repayment for intimate favors. So, if you don't want to be labeled as his mistress, continue paying your own maintenance and wardrobe bills.

Who Pays Fare When Girl Travels Far to Wed?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A friend of mine is contemplating marriage with a young man she has known for more than a year. He is not financially ready for marriage yet, and is planning to return to his home town in a far Western State for the purpose of finding permanent employment and sending for her in about a year's time.

He has asked her whether she would be willing to pay her own transportation expenses in that event. He indicated that he felt such a request was not inappropriate. Is the girl wrong in thinking that the man should meet her travel expenses under such circumstances? Your comment will be appreciated. CAROLINE.

Gentlewoman Accepts No Bounty From Fiance

DEAR CAROLINE: I have always understood that a gentlewoman never permits herself to become financially beholden to her fiance; that she punctiliously waits until after their marriage before becoming the recipient of his cash bounty. And, in certain cases I have known, where a bride-to-be had to travel far by rail or boat to catch up with and marry the man of her choice, she always dug down in her own (or her family's) purse for the wherewithal to pay the fare. I have known an adventurous instance or two in which the globe-trotting man very much wanted to make his bride-to-be a gift of her passage money, but in each instnace his well meant offer was courteously declined.

In your friend's case, therefore, I don't consider the man's expectation "inappropriate" — although I do think his outright suggestion to that effect was a trifle impertinent, or perhaps only disconcertingly tactless. His precautionary haggling over money matters is anything but reassuring, however. It suggests that he is less than a large-minded, romantic man. But since your friend is equally on the alert to protect her moneybags, perhaps they are two of a kind, and will be a good foil for each other. M. H.

Designers Discover Farmer's Overalls

The earthy inspiration of these hayseed cottons, featured at a local store, is indicated both by their styling and the names they bear. They have the open charm of the country, and are chic improvements on the kitchen apron, hired man's overalls and the milkmaid's pinafore

Insomniacs Told to Quit Discussing It

Sleep a Habit, Says Doctor; Few Get Insufficient Rest

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

"I have a great deal of sympathy for you," said my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, to a patient the other day. "Personal sympathy. There was a time in my life for a while when I couldn't sleep and I honestly do not believe that physical pain is any more torture than lying awake hour after hour in the darkness and the stillness with a perfectly blank mind.

"People tell you to get up and read awhile and not think about it, but you've already read all day and all evening before going to bed trying to get yourself sleepy. You can't turn on the radio—the cause of common humanity for the rest of the household would prevent that.

"And the worst of it was with me that I needed the rest—I was working hard and you would have thought that the amount of effort I made would exhaust me enough to put me to sleep

"But there is no rhyme or reason for insomnia. You take a fellow who hasn't got a thing to do—too lazy to get a job—isn't interested in work anyway and doesn't need to refresh himself, and he sleeps like der alta Barbarossa—all night for eight or nine hours and naps in the daytime too.

Gave Up Powders

"I took to sleeping powders, but I gave up. We have some very efficient sleeping medicines now—the various barbiturates—the things whose names end in 'al.' They're much better than the old ones. And I think they're pretty harmless, although there are warnings against them—for anybody with any sense they don't form a habit. I took them for a while and they got me back into the practice of sleep. Then I found when I was going to bed that I would take one just in case. And that's when htey began to show their faults—they kept you awake too much! That is the real trouble with the modern sleeping tablets.

"I forgot to take mine one night and I had the most delicious night's rest I had had for a year—so I stopped them, bang off, and never felt any need for them or withdrawal symptoms. The trouble is they keep you wide awake for an hour or two, then they put you to sleep with a bang, and then you wake up in about four or six hours—and I mean, you wake up—with a bang. Without them you add about two hours of nice dozing htat is probably the best part of the night's rest.

Wakeful Technique

"With you and your insomnia though I am going to tell yuo something. I put a kind of detective on your insomnia when I had you in the hospital making those 'studies' and I find that with your insomnia you go to sleep on the job. You really sleep about four hours solid and two hours fitful a night and that's enough for anyone. I read an article by a lady insomniac the other day on 'The Technique fo Lying Awake.' She allowed as how it was an inescapable adventure to be allowed to lie awake and we should make the most out of it by trying to remember cities that begin with A.

"Well, you're not very good at that technique. Look at you! You can't be suffering much from your insomnia. Yau are as fat and smooth as a pink little piglet. Your eyes are as bright, and you are mentially alert.

"Insomnia is wakefulness plus worry. Quit complaining about your insomnia. And take a nap every afternoon. Sleep is a habit. The more you get, the more you need."

Beauty Secrets

Summer Pedicure

IT'S TIME to get out your manicure kit for a summer pedicure. Feet that run bare over hot sands or peek out from toeless sandals need to be reconditioned to pass the critical inspection of onlookers.

If you are fashion-minded you will use the same shades of polish on both fingernails and toenails—and they will be duplicate colors of your lipstick. For daytime you have an assortment of new polish tones, such as "Red Rouge," "Hot Pink," "Spring Fever" and "Red Dice." Glamorous evening shades of polish may be obtained in jeweled tones and irridescent shades, such as "Sequins," "Red Spangle," "Agate" and "Irridescent."

Here are some suggestions for the correct pedicure:

Soak and bathe your feet in warm water. Dry thoroughly and if the feet are tired, hot and swollen, smooth on a generous amount of liquid foot balm.

File the toenails straight across, rounding very slightly on the edges. Use the tougher side of an emery board at first, then finishing off with the finer side.

Push back the cuticles with an orange stick tipped with cotton and saturated with cuticle remover. If the nails are brittle, apply cuticle or warm olive oil. Wipe off the residue of cuticles and filing and accent the toenails with your favorite shade of nail polish.

Corns, callouses may be removed with pumice stones.

Monthly Birthstones

Do you know the birthstones for the different months? Here's a list to paste in your notebook or cookbook to keep handy: January, garnet; February, amethyst; March, bloodstone; April, diamond; May, emerald; June, pearl; July, ruby; August, sardonyx; September, sapphire; October, opal; November, topaz, and December, turquoise.

Work of Vacuum Cleaner

Don't worry when your vacuum cleaner begins bringing fuzz out of a new rug or carpet. The Institute of Carpet Manufacturers points out that this is loose ends left in during the weaving. Regular use of the vacuum cleaner will remove them within a short time. Sometimes a short tuft will show itself above the carpet surface. Do not pull it out, the carpet makers advise. Shear it off even with the surface.

Safe Easy Way To Lose Fat

How would you like to safely and harmlessly lose some of that ugly fat in a few weeks? How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and abdomen and along with it get the increase in energy and improvement in health which so often accompanies excess fat reduction?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh. Take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of water first thing every morning. Then eat your fill of foods that lessen calorie intake. After 30 days weigh yourself again and just see if you haven't lost pounds of ugly fat. Kruschen is a famous English formula made in the U. S. A. Kruschen comes in either the NEW pleasant bubbling form or PLAIN non-fizzy form for those who prefer to take it in hot water.

A bottle lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. Money back if not joyfully satisfied. —Adv.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, June 12.

I LEARNED more from a session of the recent National Chess Tournament for Women than from any rootin'-tootin' sports event in many years. For women who wish to practice self-control and management of the wagging tongue there is nothing to lick the ancient and honorable game we usually associate with venerable white-beavered gents who sit all day in their clubs staring at the pawns and bishops.

ALICE HUGHES

Mrs. Adele Rivero, of this village, copped the title, replacing May Karff, of Boston, which should be a great chess town. The lady who guided me through this unfamiliar territory referred to the winnah and new champeen as a fighter who gives her all to the game. Mrs. Rivero did not pick up a mike and croak, "Hello, Ma. It was a tough fight, but I win easy. Don't forget to have some beer on ice."

The new champ is a well-made blonde of 33, who looks as ripe for a spot of conga as for a solemn session of peering at the board. She attacked the game when she was 26, because some bestial male said she didn't have enough brains to play it. I hope she sent this fiendish scoffer a hot and dirty wire after she had placed the new laurel wreath on her brow and looked in a mirror.

A session of tournament chess is a fine lesson and experience for gabby card players, who chatter until they go down two, doubled and redoubled. Chess, as you know, is played in solemn, cathedral silence, and to talk during a heartily contested brains-match would be as impious as singing "Oh, Johnny" during morning service on Sunday. I don't know any more about chess than I do about Sanskrit, but I'm deeply impressed as I see the girls sitting around the board for hours staring at their men (chess, of course) and puzzling how to exterminate the enemy a half dozen moves ahead. Since this experience, my friends are beginning to think old gabby Hughes pretty taciturn and even sinister. Mrs. Rivero's cerebral triumph made me think a bit about the thoughtless, wagging tongue.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: Note for nature lovers.—The trees which grow miraculously from the sidewalk stones of Fifth Avenue seem right pert this month. They are the happiest paradox in town, a mass of living greenery in the very heart of the shopping and staring area. I mean no unpleasant comparisons, but the elms in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral seem to thrive a bit more lustily than those before Rockefeller Center.

Increase Poise In Speaking

Don't mind if you feel nervous in giving your first talk. Every speaker feels tense, uneasy, at some time or other. If you must grope for a word, don't go "er-er," but simply pause.

To win the respect of your audience, speak in a straightforward manner, without unnecessarw gestures. End on a positive note, "I urge you all to support the Boys' Club."

So that you'll be clearly understood, perfect your enunciation by reading aloud at home. Use lips, jaw and tongue and avoid slurring any syllable. Say "government" not "gov-ment."

Of course, you need to know how to prepare your talk. Our 40-page booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN PUBLIC SPEAKING, tells in detail how to prapare and deliver good speeches.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN PUBLIC SPEAKING, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y.

Double Hurry Dinner Menu for Business Woman

WASHINGTON has many girls and women who hurry from business to home and cook meals not only for themselves, but for guests. This is not such a problem if the many splendid products that are merchandized in cans and packages are put to use. So if you are one who needs to do a double hurry meal, the following menu suggestion may be a help.

Chicken and Celery Soup
Sauteed Lamb Chops with Mushrooms
Buttered Asparagus
Parsley Potatoes Vegetable Salad
Ready-to-Bake Biscuits
Fresh Figs with Rum Sauce
Coffee

To make the soup, combine a can of chicken with a can of celery soup. Adorn the chops with egg-dipped fried mushrooms, and if you want them extra special make triangles of toast on which to serve them. Biscuits ready to pop in the oven come prepared, ten for as many cents. Asparagus is easy to clean and take but a short time to cook.

Fresh figs with rum sauce makes a sprightly dessert. Serve two figs to a guest. Simply wash them and then add the sauce. Following are directions for making the rum sauce:

Rum Sauce—Put 1 cup brown sugar into a double boiler. Add 1 teaspoon of hot water and heat until the sugar melts. Just before serving add 3 tablespoons rum. Immerse the fruit in the sauce, then add a topping of whipped cream.

Dessert Counts Heavily in Figure

Spare the Sweets And Don't Spoil The Wanted Curves

Pie a la Mode Won't Help to Win the Battle of the Bulges

By Ida Jean Kain

TELL me what you have for dessert five days out of the week and I'll tell you whether you weigh too much. That's not such a rash prediction as you might think, for an individual's dessert habits are usually indicative of the weight trend.

An occasional dessert is all right, but don't indulge regularly if you are headed toward plumpness.

When I see a buxom lassie lapping up a generous helping of pie a la mode after a hearty meal, I can't take my eyes off her. Wouldn't she rather have a nice trim figure? Apparently not.

Why does she eat? Not because she is hungry. She has had a good meal. And not because it is needed to balance the diet, for the average dessert is mostly fat and starch. No, it's just a habit, but any habit is hard to break and the craving for sweets is harder to break than any other.

Don't Mind Kidding

But there are ways. If you eat at home, make it a practice to get up from the table just before dessert is served. Never mind the kidding. Just think of the nice slim figure you are going to have. If you have coffee and a cigarette after dinner, have them in the living room to put a period to the end of the meal. If you don't take coffee, have a candy mint or two as a finishing touch.

Those of you who dine out should order the meal that does not include dessert . . . It's twice as easy to refuse something if you're not paying for it.

When you feel simply starved to begin with, possibly it is better not to eat in one of those cafeterias where the tempting desserts are all lined up in a row. Anwith your eyes glued to apple pie, it's more than likely that the pie will be in your "tummy" when you leave, and on your hips tomorrow.

A weakness for fattening foods ruins many a figure

Must Break Habit

If you can break the dessert habit, half your avoirdupois worries are solved. From there on the going should be easy. You may be skeptical about this, but if you will consistently refuse desserts for a comparatively short time, gradually you can lessen your craving for them.

Start the summer right by taking fresh fruits for dessert. They are as high in vitamins as they are low in calories.

Floral Centerpiece

other place to be avoided is the quick lunch counter where the wedge of pie is temptingly displayed right in front of you. If you sit there eating a sandwich

White pansies and deep blue forget-me-nots, arranged in a large low bowl with a grill to hold the small steps upright, made a sweet centerpiece for a woman's luncheon recently. With a lace paper ruff around it and pink roses in the center, it was like an old-fashioned nosegay, only overscale so that it was big enough for a table centerpiece.

4-H Boys Don't Want to Die Afar But They'll Fight for Homeland

Favor Support Short of Belligerency For Allied Cause

They have no desire to die on a foreign battlefield, for democracy or any other ideal.

They hate war, in any form.

But they want this country to do everything in its power, short of war, toward an Allied victory.

And they are ready, at the drop of a hat, to take up arms in defense of the United States if an invasion is threatened.

They are the rural youth of America—18, 19 and 20-year-old farm boys who would be called on in any war involving the United States—in Washington for the week-long 1940 National 4-H Camp.

A quick poll of the nearly 100 male delegates (there are as many more girl delegates here) sought to determine their views on war, and with hardly an exception the youngsters were violently opposed to United States intervention.

One Prefers Sail

"We think more of our own lives than of all the European countries put together," said 19-year-old Harold H. Grothoff, of Cole County, Missouri, one of the most emphatic pacifists polled.

"People who went through the World War would never want us to go to another like it," the boy declared. His father, he said, was in the last war.

"Propaganda," said Harold Staadt, jr., 19, of Franklin County, Kans., "will make a lot of us ready to go to war, just like in 1917. But not I. I'll go to jail instead."

"The youth of Michigan," said Andrew Skang, 19, a student at Michigan State University in Lansing, are "keeping cool." Anti-war petitions are common occurrences, he reported, but the great majority favor everything short of war to help the Allies.

And so were the rest in favor of material aid to the Allies. A few of them were far from adamant in their stand against armed assistance.

Will Go If Called

For instance: "I wouldn't mind going," said Jessie Johnson, 17, of Evangelin Parish, La. "My mother is French." And: "I want to stay out, but I sort of think we ought to go in," Alfred Green, 20, a student at North Carolina State College.

A typical middle course comment came from Dale Stiles, 19-year-old cowboy from Goshen County, Wyo., who said: "Gosh no, I don't want to go to war. But if they call me, I'll go. So will the rest of them."

Festivities of the camp got underway last night after the delegates—two boys and two girls from nearly every State and Puerto Rico—had established themselves in tents set up by the Department of Agriculture on the Washington Monument grounds.

An outdoor "get-together" meeting, slated to be held on the grounds, was driven by a light rain to the shelter of the Department of Agriculture's South Building auditorium.

Lectures, conferences, sightseeing, recreation and inspection of the Agriculture Department and its Beltsville, Md., development will occupy the rural youths until next Wednesday night.

Answers to Quiz

1. The king of hearts. Although it is usually not good defense to lead a king out of nowhere, the situation may sometimes be so desperate that unusual tactics are urgently needed. It seems from the bidding that the chances of defeating the contract are very slight. About your only hope, therefore, is to lead the king of hearts. If your partner happens to have the ace, you may be able to ruff the third round and thereby obtain a trick you could not get any other way. Even if partner holds only the queen, you may still have a chance to lead on the first or second round of trumps.

2. One club. This is the three-card suit bid to nurse along a sickly hand. If you open with one heart and partner responds with two diamonds, you will have no convenient rebid because the hand is not good enough to bid two no-trump.

3. Two clubs. Many players would bid a spade with the excuse that they are keeping the bidding low. With a hand this good it is not necessary to keep the bidding low. You have a probable game and should bid both suits; bidding the clubs first and the spades later will show your precise distribution. As a matter of fact, responding with one spade will actually get the bidding higher, because if your partner rebids to two hearts, it is now necessary for you to show your other suit at the level of three, whereas by bidding two clubs over partner's heart bid you may bid two spades later.

4. Two no-trump. This is a much better bid than three clubs because partner will probably be unprotected in either spades or hearts and will be unable to bid three no-trump. Furthermore, it is desirable to have the king and one spade led up to.

"You can't beat the deal we got when we traded-in for this Studebaker Champion AND IT'S THE FINEST LOWEST PRICE CAR!"

YOU'RE quick to see the advantage you get in dollars, when you compare our trade-in deal for a Studebaker Champion with the best you've had elsewhere.

You realize right away that it takes surprisingly little cash to be the proud owner of a distinctive Studebaker Champion.

And you further recognize that the savings which you make on original equipment, oil, tires, mechanical upkeep—not to mention gasoline—put you still more money ahead.

In gas economy, of course, the Studebaker Champion decisively defeated all the other large-selling lowest price cars in this year's Gilmore-Yosemite Sweepstakes. With low-extra-cost overdrive, the Studebaker Champion averaged 29.19 miles per gallon.

So, see to it that you get more than a "deal" that seems like a bargain. See us now and get a "deal" that's profitable to you not only immediately, but for years and for thousands of miles.

Drive a beautiful new Delux-tone or standard-finish Studebaker Champion 10 thrilling trial miles. Then drive it home—with any balance due easily payable on liberal C.I.T. terms.

PRICED ON A LEVEL WITH THE 3 OTHER LARGE-SELLING LOWEST PRICE CARS

G. W. Awards 700 Degrees, Other Honors

Graduates Challenged To Do Their Part In Putting 'National House' in Order

Seven hundred George Washington University graduates were challenged to do their part in putting "our national house" in order last night at commencement rites held in Constitution Hall, Eighteenth and D streets northwest.

An honorary doctor of letters degree was conferred on Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post; four professors were raised to emeritus standing; six "old grads" were presented alumni achievement awards, and 16 graduates of the medical school were commissioned first lieutenants in the Reserve Medical Corps.

Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, university president, in delivering his charge to the class of 1940, declared:

"This is not the time for cynicism or for whining. It is a time for action. Our national house needs to be put in order. Some renovating will be needed, some remodeling necessary, if it is to meet the demands to be made upon it. But, with all, you live in a good land and one as full of promise as your hearts are eager."

Earlier, in making citations to outstanding alumni, he said to two alumni—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Hugh Clegg, assistant director—"is given the difficult, fundamental and special task of taking their part in protecting our Nation by getting its citizenship to differentiate between subversive doctrine, license and freedom."

"There is no better way for us to express the university's appreciation of the lives, unto whom this great trust is given, than to say they deserve the confidence of the Nation," Dr. Marvin said.

Alumni achievement awards, for distinction in their fields, were presented to Helen R. Carloss, special assistant to the United States Attorney General; Ida May Lind, director of District elementary school education; Dr. William J. Mallory, professor of medicine; Edwin A. Schmitt, engineer; Theodore W. Noyes, editor-in-chief of the Evening Star (in absentia), and Wilbur J. Carr, former Assistant Secretary of State.

Emeritus professorships were bestowed on Dr. Mallory, Dr. George B. Jenkins, Dr. William B. Mason (in absentia), and Prof. Anna Pearl Cooper.

'Thoughtful Student'

Dr. Marvin, in conferring the honorary degree on Editor Morley, gave the following citation: "Alert in the definition and defense of literary work: thoughtful student of our political and economic institutions."

Commissioned as lieutenants in the Reserve Medical Corps were William O. Bailey, jr., Herbert E. Block, Gustavus D. Bock, Forbes H. Burgess, Arthur J. Carbonell, Jacob M. Danish, Raymond E. Derrig, Eli S. Goldensohn, Dean M. Hayes, Harold L. Heiges, Thomas H. Lane, John W. Latimer, Clark R. Miller, Lee B. Snow, Vernon A. Stehman, Vincent J. DiFrancesco.

Invocation was offered by the Rev. Raphael Harwood Miller.

Graduates are as follows:

Roosevelt Signs D. C. Supply Bill

Congress Asks Commissioners For Five-Year Building Plan

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the District Supply Bill carrying $48,765,080 in appropriations that will become available July 1 as the chairman of the Senate and House subcommittee on District appropriations called on the Commissioners to draw up a five-year capital improvement program.

In a letter signed by Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, and Representative Caldwell (Democrat), of Florida, the Commissioners were asked to prepare a building program to commence with the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1941.

The program should include, the letter stated, "necessary building requirements of all departments of the District government, including major repairs and renovations of existing buildings, and also including all other capital needs."

The Commissioners were asked to submit the program and their report to Congress before the next session of Congress.

The Senate attached an amendment to the District supply bill directing the Commissioners to prepare the capital improvement program, but the amendment was stricken out in conference at which it was decided that a letter would be sent to the Commissioners.

Veterans of World War March, See Tableaux At Opening of Encampment for District V. F. W

Several hundred veterans of the last World War marched last night to ceremonies symbolizing reasons for the existence of their organizations at the opening of the annual encampment of the District Veterans of Foreign Wars in the Woodrow Wilson High School.

Military, civic and fraternal organizations joined in the mile-long parade which moved along Connecticut avenue from Macomb street to Harrison street northwest. Led by members of the 18 posts of Veterans of Foreign Wars, the variuniformed column included units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, National Guard, veterans' auxiliaries and numerous other organizations.

At Wilson High School following the parade, V. F. W. District Commander George G. McLeish welcomed more than 500 to the encampment at "the end of an era" and with the hope of "a newer and better era in the future." The Cleveland Park Business Men's Association is sponsoring this year's gathering which will continue this evening and tomorrow night.

In five brief tableaux, the spirit of democracy from 1776 to the present time was presented. Rabbi Paul Richman, of B'nai B'rith, commented on the tableau, "Spirit of '76"—on the theme of "We Fought to Acquire Liberty." The meaning of "We Fought to Preserve Liberty" showing a mother of the Civil War and her sons was discussed by the Rev. John K. Cartwright, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

The Rev. Simpson B. Dougherty, of United Brethren Church, spoke on "We Fought to Extend Liberty," following a Spanish-American War scene. Tribute to those who gave their lives in the World War was paid by the Rev. Howard E. Snyder, department chaplain.

"SECURITY OF THE COUNTRY"—Seaman Charles Fleig, Alice Johnson and Sergt. K. W. Lewey appeared last night in a tableau representing security of the county at the opening of the annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Woodrow Wilson High School

3 From D. C. Picked for Tour By Stokowski

Three young Washington musicians, all members of the National Symphony Orchestra, are among 100 chosen by Leopold Stokowski in Nation-wide auditions for the All-American Youth Orchestra with which is scheduled to sail from New York on a tour of South America July 22.

BISKEY

The local candidates who won places for which more than 15,000 American youths competed are Miss Kay Rickert, 25, violinist, of 1901 Nineteenth street northwest; Franklin M. Biskey, 27, bassoon player, of 2707 Adams Mill road northwest, and Philip Silverman, tuba player, of 1723 G street northwest.

Miss Rickert came to Washington to play with the National Symphony two years ago. Dr. Hans Kindler had noticed her work with the North Carolina State Symphony and invited her to play as guest soloist with the National Orchestra at the music festival in Columbia, S. C., in 1935.

Miss Rickert

Biskey, who has played with the National Symphony for four seasons, is a native of Virginia, Minn. A violinist for 11 years, he came here to join the Kindler Orchestra after studying at Virginia Junior College, according to his wife, Mrs. Helen Biskey, who declared he "is very much pleased" at his selection.

Randolph, 314 Graduates Get Degrees at Southeastern

Auto Injuries Fatal to Young D. C. Actress

Donna Dean, 1619 R street northwest, died in Georgetown Hospital last night, two days after she had been injured in an automobile accident on Rockville pike near Bethesda, Md. She had been under an oxygen tent and had had several transfusions.

MISS DEAN

The girl, who had been graduated from Western High School last year, and would have celebrated her nineteenth birthday next Thursday, had stage aspirations and had won a part with the Roadside Players.

Last Sunday night she and three others were returning to Washington after dress rehearsal at the theater, near Rockville, when their automobile crashed with another. All four were injured so seriously they were unable to participate in the opening performance of "The Sealed Well," a melodrama, Monday night.

Tall, slender, brown-eyed, golden-haired, the girl had won beauty honors here. So popular was she that the Georgetown Hospital switchboard had been swamped with calls from her friends.

A lone child, she was the daughter of Warren S. Dean, one-time Army officer and presently an HOLC executive. She had been attending a secretarial school.

Last night the Roadside Players went on with the show and did not learn of the young actress' death until after the final curtain.

Dodgers Give Huge Sum for Joe Medwick

Welsh-Mitchell Upset in City Net Play

Pay $250,000 To Cardinals, Report Says

Joe and Curt Davis Traded for Cash And Four Players In Big Deal

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 12.—Sale of Outfielder Joe Medwick and Right-handed Pitcher Curt Davis to the Brooklyn Dodgers for four players and an unannounced cash payment was announced tonight by President Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis National League Club.

MEDWICK

The Brooklyn players involved were Outfielder Ernie Koy, Pitcher Carl Doyle, a righthander; Sam Nahem, pitcher, now on option to Louisville of the American Association, and Infielder Berthold Haas, now with Montreal, of the International League on option.

(According to the United Press, Brooklyn paid in the neighborhood of $250,000, in addition to four players for Medwick and Davis.)

Medwick was one of the stars of the Cardinals' world series victory of 1934 against Detroit and continued to play a major part in the team's offensive through the years. In 1937 he was the National League batting champion and was named the league's most valuable player. He batted .332 in 1939.

Medwick broke into professional ball with Scottdale, Pa., of the Middle Atlantic League in 1930 and joined the Cards late in 1932. He batted .379 in the world series of 1934 and never has hit under .300 in his career.

Davis came to the Cardinals along with Pitcher Clyde Shoun and Outfielder Tuck Stainback in the deal which sent Dizzy Dean to the Cubs prior to the 1938 season.

Curt won 22 games for the St. Louis Club last year, but has failed to hang up a single victory this season while being charged with four losses.

Medwick, who is batting .304 at present, has been in a slump recently and frequently has been subjected to boos by Cardinal fans.

None of the Brooklyn or St. Louis Club officials would comment on the amount of cash involved in the deal, but estimates in baseball circles varied from $100,000 to more than $185,000, the amount the Cardinals received from the Chicago Cubs in the deal for Dizzy Dean.

Yellow Cab Nine Wins Despite Ball That Is Lopsided

A lopsided ball almost cost Yellow Cab the game when Pitcher Whitey Bukaboc refused to throw the ball because he insisted it was too "ragged and out of shape," but it finally came out an 8-to-7 victory over Diamond in the Taxicab Baseball League.

Bukaboc had gone eight innings and allowed only four hits when the fifteenth ball was fouled and hopelessly lost in the brush around Gonzaga field.

The situation became tense when the last ball available was tossed out—a spheroid of doubtful character which had seen its best days. Bukaboc refused it. Rightfielder Ramsey came into the box to finish the game, allowed the Diamond lads three hits but escaped with the victory for Yellow Cab.

Pastor, Conn To Meet in August

New York, June 12 (AP).—Bob Pastor, New York heavyweight, and Billy Conn, of Pittsburgh, the light-heavyweight champion, today were signed for a 15-round fight at the Polo Grounds, Tuesday, August 13, Mike Jacobs, of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, announced.

Johnny Ray, representing Conn, agreed to terms yesterday and today James J. Johnston visited Jacobs and signed for Pastor.

It is believed there is an understanding the winner will be in line for a heavyweight title shot in the fall.

Conn, who intends to fight exclusively as a heavyweight in the future, is expected to formally vacate the 175-pound title within the next few days.

Nats Beat Browns, 3-2; Avert Cellar Plunge

Bloodworth Scores Winning Run in Seventh On George Case's Perfect Bunt; Chase Turns in 6-Hit Performance Going Route

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

Teetering on the brink of eighth place, the Nats summoned one of their smartest games of the season yesterday to beat the Browns, 3 to 2, and avert a plunge into the league cellar.

The big Griffith Stadium scoreboard had already posted a 3-2 victory for the Athletics over the White Sox, and eighth place was inviting the Nats. Then it was that they wrung the ball game away from the Browns with a run squeezed home in the seventh inning by George Case's perfect bunt.

To the unbridled delight of 5,000 screaming women fans, Ken Chase outpitched Elden Auker to keep the Nats in the ball game. The curly-haired southpaw unloaded a clever six-hit performance against the Browns, and took advantage of the gathering dusk in the late innings to forsake his curve ball and blaze a dazzling fast one at the St. Louis club.

Jimmy Bloodworth was a cohero in the proceedings. He figured in two of the Nats' runs with timely blows, the last a rollicking three-bagger that was translated into the winning run in the seventh. He led off the inning with his shot against the leftfield wall and languished on third as Auker struck out Chase.

No Play at Plate

But he didn't languish on third with Case at bat. The fleet Case laid down a beauteous bunt, so perfectly that there was no play at home, and Bloodworth scored standing up to break the 2-2 tie. Case reached first on the play when the surprised Don Heffner, second baseman, neglected to cover the bag.

The Nats were an inspiring gang yesterday. Three times they came to Chase's rescue with spectacular double plays—all of them identical. Three times Cecil Travis snatched hard drives off the bats of the Browns, whipped the ball to Bloodworth who in turn relayed to Bonura for a double out.

Any notions the Browns had of winning the ball game in the ninth were dispatched by one of these double plays. Chase, who walked five during the game, put the tying run on base with one out in the ninth with four straight balls to Heffner. Swift hit a fierce grounder to Travis and presto!—the game-ending double play.

Thus the Browns' five-game winning streak—their longest chain of successes since 1936—came to an end.

Two two-baggers set the Browns up in a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Harland Clift doubled against the left field wall and Myril Hoag did the same thing to fetch the Browns a run before Chase could get anybody out. But he escaped with only one run damage when the next three batters grounded out harmlessly.

Two two-baggers also brought the

Keller's Homer Beats Tigers For Yanks, 7-5

4-Base Hit in Seventh Comes With 2 Mates Aboard; Bartell Homers

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—Charley Keller's seventh home run of the year with two teammates aboard in the seventh wiped out a lot of early-inning monkeyshines today and gave the World Champion Yankees a 7-to-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

With Dick Bartell hitting a two-run homer in the second, the Tigers bunched five of their seven hits in the first two innings to give big Buck Newsom a four-run working margin.

He squandered it all in the face of a Yankee bombardment in the second and third innings that tied the score, but was leading when he left the game in the fourth because the Yankees went to sleep to allow a run on no hits.

French-Bred Horse Wins English Derby

By the Associated Press

Newmarket, England, June 12.—Point L'Eveque, French-bred horse owned and trained by Fred Darling, showed a clear pair of heels today to 15 of the best 3-year-olds England could muster in the wartime version of the classic Derby.

There was none of the carnival atmosphere that traditionally surrounded the Derby when run at its Epsom home. The crowd was only about a quarter of that which attends in peace time, variously estimated at a quarter to a half-million. But what was lacking in this regard was more than made up by Pont L'Eveque's display of racing courage

With Jockey Sam Wragg in the saddle, Pont L'Eveque took command a half-mile from home and finished three lengths in front of the

Hahn's Homer Gives Charlotte 2-1 Victory

Charlotte, N. C., June 12 (AP).—Catcher Hahn slapped a homer in the ninth tonight, breaking up a brilliant pitching battle and giving Charlotte a 2 to 1 decision over Portsmouth.

Wilson, of Portsmouth, and Bucky Jacobs, of Charlotte, yielded but five and six hits, respectively.

Green Pair Beats 6-Time Champions

Breese, Mather Join Forces for 1st Effort To Eliminate Stars Easily, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2

By Jack Munhall

Continuing to produce more upsets than any major tennis event here in recent years, the City of Washington play at Edgemoor yesterday was crowned with its greatest surprise—the defeat of Barney Welsh and Dooly Mitchell in the third round of the doubles by an unseeded team playing together for the first time.

Six-time District champions and unbeaten in local competition until last year when they lost to Lynch and Johnsen in the finals of the Middle Atlantic tourney, the second ranked Welsh and Mitchell bowed to big Bill Breese and lanky Ed (Red) Mather, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2.

Breese, former Harvard star and campaigner in the nationals at Wimbledon, and Mather, a Texan, one-time doubles partner of the great Wilmer Allison, used their superior height to great advantage in dealing Welsh and Mitchell a shocking setback. Both standing more than 6 feet, the winners scored most of their points in volleying at the net, bouncing many a smash clear over the fence to make sure Welsh and Mitchell could not retrieve them.

Lynch Impressive

Earlier the annual tournament had shown signs of returning to normalcy after four upsets in two days in singles competition as Alphonso Smith, ranked fourth, and Hugh Lynch, seeded second to Welsh, turned in one-sided quarter-final victories.

Lynch, playing stellar tennis, put an end to the "dark horse" threat of Yelverton Garnett by humiliating the former University of Virginia ace in strength love sets, 6—0, 6—0. Smith, continuing to baffle all opponents with his peculiarly twistin, looping forehand, eliminated Ramey Donovan, former Fordham University star, who in 1931 was the fourth ranking junior player of the country, by the scores of 6—2, 6—2.

Smith and Lynch will be joined in the semifinals today by the winners of matches between Welsh and Shore, at 5 p. m., and Breese and Dick Murphy, at 5:15.

Garnett Disappoints

Two doubles also are scheduled today, a second-round encounter at 4:30, between Jimmy Farrin and Bill Howard and Coxetter and partner, and a third round engagement at 6 between the victors in that match and Shore and Egbert.

Garnett, a 210-pound husky who stands nearly 6 feet 4 inches, was disappointing, to put it mildly, in in his stand against Lynch from the start, when he allowed Lynch to set the pace and play the way he (Lynch) preferred—standing at the baselines and exchanging deep drives.

Donovan, complaining of the sultry heat, gave Smith much more opposition than the scores indicate. Their rallies were long and exciting, for the most part duels between Donovan's sharp backhand and Smith's famed forehand.

Singles Results

Quarter-finals—Alphonso Smith defeated Ramey Donovan, 6—2, 6—3; Hugh Lynch defeated Yelverton Garnett, 6—0, 6—0.

Doubles Results

Third round—Ed Mather and Bill Breese defeated Barney Welsh and Dooly Mitchell, 6—4, 0—6, 6—3; A. Smith and Dick Murphy defeated Bobby Bensinger and DeWitt Smith, 6—2, 6—3.

Today's Pairings

Singles

Quarter-finals—5 p. m., Welsh vs. Frank Shore, 5:15, Breese vs. Murphy.

Doubles

Second round—4:30, Jimmy Farrin and Bill Howard vs. Coxetter and partner.

Third round—6:00, winner above match vs. Shore and Egbert.

Jack Dempsey Works Out With Arturo Godoy In 'Comeback' Trail for Cowboy Luttrell Bout

Boxes 2 One-Minute Rounds With Louis' June 22 Opponent

By Bob Considine.

Carmel, N. Y., June 12.—With a gentle bulge where his hard flat stomach used to be and powder puffs where his concrete fists once were, Jack Dempsey "came back" here today. He boxed two one-minute rounds against Arturo Godoy who fights Joe Louis for the title June 22.

The old champion, who will be 45 next week, thus opened "training" for his fight July 1 in Atlanta against a flabby bad man of the rassling racket, Cowboy Luttrell. The match smacks of the usual scenario, except that it is for the benefit of the Red Cross, that it is expected to draw $25,000 and that Dempsey and Luttrell will wear six-ounce gloves.

Dempsey's gloves today were huge 16-ounce pillows and the only damage he did with them was a sharp backhand slap across Godoy's face in the second of the two short rounds. Godoy spun into a hasty crouch, leaped up and hit Dempsey with a good left hook that reddened the old mauler's face.

Whereupon, Al Weill, Godoy's manager and the referee of the exhibition, bawled "time."

"That Godoy must be a tough fellow to fight," Dempsey said later, as he sat in the improvised press box with an old gray robe over his sweating hide and a big cigar stuck in his blue-black jaws. "He's so clumsy you never know what's going to happen. Strong, too. Am I

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It is obvious that Mr. Bucky Harris is not pleased with his Washington lineup. He need only to look at the American League standings and note that his Nats are on the brink of eighth place to dispel any happiness he may be disposed to feel. He can be forgiven for any moves that border on the desperate.

POVICH

As surely as the sun will come up in the East the next time it comes up, Harris is going to tear into his lineup. With his team achieving nothing with great rapidity, he is in no mood to sit idly by. Any day now, the blow-off will occur. Washington players whose jobs were supposed to be something akin to sacred are going to be bounced out of the regular lineup.

A month ago, Harris bravely swallowed his pre-season prophecies and admitted the semi-failure of two of his proudest experiments. He shunted his rookie shortstop, Jimmy Pofahl, to the bench, and he restored Buddy Lewis to third base in the full knowledge that Lewis was not to be mentioned in the same inhalation with Cecil Travis as a third baseman. The shuffle moved Travis from third to shortstop, and made a place for Johnny Welaj in the outfield.

At the time it was a desperate sort of move by Harris. The Nats' pitching from the start of the season had been nightmarish. He was gambling that his new lineup would produce enough hitting to enable the Nats to win a fair share of games even in the face of their pitching atrocities. He knew he was sacrificing his infield defense, but that would have to be done.

True to his premise, Harris' club started slugging runs across the plate. The Nats broke even on their Western trip despite their pitching deficiencies. Then matters went ironic. Almost magically, his pitchers began to improve. Ken Chase and Walter Masterson gave Leonard a yeoman hand with the hurling and Sid Hudson began to do well. But, strangely, the Nats' hitting slumped in the hour of their pitching success.

Within the past ten days the Nats tossed off two games to Cleveland and another to the White Sox for the lack of one timely run. They lost two in a row to the Browns because they couldn't produce runs. The pitching of the Nats was not sensational, but it was tolerable enough. But in addition to their lack of punch, the Nats had taken to kicking away games.

So Bucky Harris is going to shake-up his club. He doesn't think he has exhausted all of its possibilities yet. There will be changes, and two of them will involve the supposed untouchables, Outfielder George Case and Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth. No longer are they regarded as fixtures.

Case's speed is a duly appreciated asset of the Nats, but until the rules are revised permitting a batter to steal first he is no threat at the plate. At least his .267 average would indicate as much. He is not so valuable in the outfield that Harris hesitates to remove him. On ground balls he is no star, and he has been playing the bounces off the right field corner as if it were haunted, or something.

Bloodworth has an impressive record of runs batted in, but he is not regarded as any terrific clutch hitter. He definitely has a home-run complex and insists on swinging a bat that is too heavy for his pounds despite the pleadings of his pals. Around second base he does well enough, but just well enough. He'll probably be benched.

The shake-up will probably send the veteran Buddy Myer back to second base, at least for a spell. Pending the birth of a new young son, Myer was a distraught fellow, but since the arrival he has expressed new interest in his baseball career. Harris is willing to have Myer as his second baseman.

Because Harris was an infielder himself, he has a high appreciation of the value of a tight defensive infield, and that is why Jimmy Pofahl will go back to the shortstop job, a move that would make Travis available for third base, the position he plays best. Harris is willing to struggle along with Pofahl's doubtful hitting for the help he will be in the infield, and any move that would reestablish Travis at third base would certainly be beneficial.

That doesn't leave Buddy Lewis without a job. He'll go back to the outfield. They can't bench Lewis' bat. The shifts Harris is contemplating may not stimulate the club's batting, but there is even the possibility that they will. In any event, the defense will be tighter, and with the Nats threatening to have better pitching, they at least may save some of the games they have been booting away.

Reds Defeat Phillies, 2-1, In Night Game

Kirby Higby Beaten; Derringer Winner In Pitching Duel

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 12.—Big Paul Derringer hung up his fifth straight victory tonight for the Cincinnati Reds, outlasting Kirby Higbe and Si Johnson for a 2 to 1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Big Paul was in the groove and the one-run lead given him early in the game was threatened but once, and that only because of an error on a double-play ball. While Derringer allowed the Phils eight hits, he kept them scattered and walked only one. The victory gave the Reds an even break in the two-game series.

The Reds got their first run in the second on Frank McCormick's double, a wild pitch and Ernie Lombardi's long fly. The other marker came in the third as Morrie Arnovich missed a one-handed catch of Bill Werber's looper back of short. Bill got a double, was sacrified to third, and scored on Ival Goodman's fly.

Arnovich followed up a single by Hershel Martin, batting for Schulte, coupled with Myers' error on Marty's double play grounder, gave the Reds a scare in the eighth, but Derringer made Klein hit into a twin-killing.

The victory was Derringer's eighth against four defeats this year.

Dodgers Win Over Pirates To Hold Lead

20,179 See Brooklyn Score Two in 8th Off Fireman Brown

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 12.—The Brooklyn Dodgers held to their narrow lead in the National League championship race tonight by chasing Fireman Mace Brown with a two-run eighth-inning rally which beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 4, before 20,179 fans.

Ernie Koy, who was traded today with three other players and a reputed $100,000 or more cash to St. Louis for Ducky Medwick and Curt Davis, scored the tying fourth run after being inserted as a pinch runner for Joe Vosmik.

Koy counted when Babe Phelps doubled, but the catcher was out trying to reach third. Dolph Camilli then singled and came home with the winning run on Joe Gallagher's double.

Vince DiMaggio poled his first homer of the season in the eighth for the Pirates' lost cause.

John Whitlow Wyatt did a sterling job of relief work after the Buccaneers drove Vito Tamulis to cover in the opening inning when they scored three runs on four hits. He fanned six, including Arky Vaughan twice.

Peter Coscarart drove in two Dodger runs in the fourth with a single and Wyatt drove in another.

Mid-Atlantic Amateur Tourney Opens Today in Baltimore

'Si' Peacock To Defend 1939 Crown

Small D. C. Field Seeks to Qualify Today in Baltimore; Entries Close at 3

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The oldest amateur golf championship in this section, the thirty-sixth competition for the Middle Atlantic title starts today at the Hillendale Club in Baltimore. The tourney is the first of seven city, State and sectional crowns that will be decided in and around the District in the next 18 days.

Roger Peacock, the Indian Spring Spring club champion who won the Middle Atlantic last year at Chevy Chase, heads a small field from the District which will compete in the 18-hole qualifying round today.

Other local threats include three of the city's best younger golfers, Earle Skinner, the schoolboy champion from Columbia; Ralph Bogart, the District Amateur champ from Congressional, and Buddy Sharkey, the Maryland State junior titleholder from Indian Spring.

Late entries from the District included another former champion, Billy Shea, and Claude Rippy, the two-time Chevy Chase Invitation winner.

Entries Close Today

Although the entries were slow coming in, more than a score from Washington are expected to show up in time to get in an 18-hole qualifying round at Hillendale. Association President Jesse Dowling, sr., of the host club, will accept entries until 3 p. m.

Former Champion Otto Greiner, present and former State champs, Bill Eager and Spencer Overton, respectively, and Maryland Collegiate Titlist Eddie Johnson are among the 40-odd entries from the host city.

The Kenwood course will be open until 11 a. m. tomorrow to enable the District women golfers to get in practice rounds for the City Championship which starts Monday over the River road coarse. Entries close tomorrow with Mrs. A. A. McEntee.

Eager Defends Title

Bill Eager, last year's surprise Maryland State amateur victor from Five Farms, will attempt a title defense next Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Congressional in the twentieth amateur competition for the Old Line State title. Entries close Wednesday at noon with local Vice President Dr. Robert A. Keilty, or the association offices in Baltimore.

The following week, June 25-29, the Maryland State Women's championship will be played at Hillendale, with entries closing June 21 with Mrs. C. H. Hoffrogge, 516 Old Orchard road, Baltimore.

The youngsters will be busy three consecutive days in the same week with the Maryland Junior, over the 36-hole medal play route, June 25 at Terra Mariae, and the District Junior the next three days at Woodmont, June 26-27-28.

The windup event of the month is the Capital Club two-man team invitation tournament June 28-29-30.

Enetries for the Maryland Junior close June 22 at 16 McClellan place, Baltimore, and the District Monday, June 24, with Dr. W. C. Barr, in care of the host Woodmont Club.

Pairings of the Washingtonians:

Course Mark Set in Hagen Golf Play

Boyd Jaeger smashed the Anacostia amateur course record with a 6-under par 62 yesterday for the low qualifying score in the Walter Hagen Trophy play at the Southeast Public Links Course.

The championship flight will play first and second round matches today with the semi-finals and finals tomorrow. The other three flights will have more time to play.

Jaeger played each of the par 34 nines in 31 strokes, with four birdies on the first nine and three on the second. His only bogey was the fourth hole.

However, Manager B. Harry Graham requires the four low scorers to play off for the medal, and Jaeger, W. W. Seay, 67; George Graham, 69, and five 70s—Ralph Grimes, Robert Marks, Bill Davis, Courtney Litz and Cal Loving—will play at a later date.

Jim Gipe won the first leg on the Hagen Trophy last year, but he will not defend his title.

First Flight.

Brawner's 293 Easily Leads At Chevy Chase

Medal Play Tourney Field Scared Off by Brilliant Total

John F. Brawner completed four rounds in the Chevy Chase Club championship yesterday with the second lowest total in the history in the annual medal play competition for the Horstmann Memorial Trophy.

BRAWNER

Brawner's 293 total for the 72 holes has apparently discouraged the rest of the field as only one other player, C. Ashmead Fuller, has completed four rounds and the tourney must be completed by Sunday.

Playing four consecutive days under fair weather conditions Brawner posted rounds of 72, 72, 75, 74, for 293. The tournament record is 289, set by Dick Lunn, a former District champion, several years ago.

Brawner, one of the club's best golfers for years and several times a ranking player among the District amateurs, has never won his club title, but he just about has it locked up this year.

Defending Champion Page Hufty has played one round and posted a 75, but he has quite a task before him to improve on that by several strokes the next three rounds.

Reeve Lewis has two rounds in, 79 and 82; Fred Hitz has posted a 74, Fuller a complete total of 78, 84, 76, 81—319, and W. G. Emory, jr., 86, 83. Former Champion Ralph Quinter, jr., has not competed as yet.

Brawner's score was made from the extreme back tees on the 6,650-yard course.—M. W. W.

Fire Department Ten Travels for 2 Games

D. C. Fire Department softballers go on the road Saturday for a pair of games with strong New Jersey tens. McCarron Leads D. C. Group in Senior Golf

Two-Day Total for 36 Holes Is 163; New Yorkers Tie for Lead at Rye With 156; Dr. Pomeroy Cards a 175

By the Associated Press

Rye, N. Y., June 12.—John McCarron, of the Congressional Club, entered the second and final day of play today in the first section of the National Senior Golf Championship with a good chance of disturbing the leaders, but faltered in the final holes of an excellent round, and wound up with an 83 for the day. He finished his two-day 36-hole stint with a total of 163.

Findlay Douglas, of Apawamis Club, and Archie Brown, of National Links, Southampton, N. Y., tied for leadership today with 156 for 36-holes.

Having completed their two-day stint in the tourney's first section, Brown and Douglas will rest tomorrow and Friday while the second section entrants strive to equal or better their marks. If none of the late starters post 156 or lower, Brown and Douglas will play off the tie to decide the championship.

While it was too high by several strokes to place McCarron among the immediate pace-setters, it stamped the 60-year-old veteran as a factor to be reckoned with in future tournaments he enters. It also gave him a position unique among the members of the Washington delegation, for none of the seven others threatened at all during either day.

To Congressional fell the honor of producing the runner-up in this section. He was Dr. Noah Pomeroy, 69, who posted 84 today, seven under his tally of yesterday for a total of 175. William Hinshaw, 72, of the Columbia Club, right behind McCarron yesterday with an 88, took a 90 today for a 178 total.

Charles B. Hatch, 62, of Columbia, and Dr. R. A. Kielty, 55, of Congressional, were deadlocked at 179. Hatch had 87 for the day, while Dr. Kielty posted 89. Gen. J. R. Lindsey, 69, of Columbia, had a final total of 191, while Gen. F. R. Keefer, 74, of Chevy Chase, had 200, equally divided between both rounds. The last to complete his day's toil was H. A. B. Dunning, 62, of the Baltimore C. C., who failed to post his card.

Ad Club Golfers In Annual Event

The annual Advertising Club golf tournament will be held tomorrow at Kenwood, with W. Frank Gatewood chairman of the event. William Janof is in charge of the golf.

Reservations should be made today with Charles J. Columbus in the club offices at the Raleigh Hotel.

Mt. Rainier Wants Game

The unlimited ball team of Mount Rainier has has an open date Sunday. Challengers should call Warfield 4154 after 5:30.

Red Cross Foursome of '18 May Play Again

A foursome that made $5,000 for the Red Cross at Columbia 22 years ago may be brought together again on July 4 in the pro-amateur tournament for the benefit of the War Relief Fund of the District Red Cross at Indian Spring.

Fred McLeod, the Columbia professional, offered to contact the other members of the quartet in a meeting of the various committees last night at the Ambassador Hotel. Walter Hagen, Chick Evans and Jim Barnes played with McLeod in the match.

Letters will be sent to a score of outstanding professionals, and it is hoped the local and Middle Atlantic professionals will be supplemented by at least a dozen big names.

Tickets and posters will go out today under Joe Hayes, tournament chairman. Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase professional, is heading the golfing arrangements, assisted by every professional in the city.

Cameo Nine Faces Reliance Life Today

Two games in three days are on the schedule for Cameo Furniture nine, of The Washington Post Industrial League. Today Manager Wyche's lads face Reliance Life in the second league meeting of the teams this season. Pitchers for the dash on East Ellipse at 5 p. m. are expected to be "Giggle" Adair and John McGinnis.

Saturday Cameo moves out to Quantico to meet the Marines.

Seek Sunday Foe

Super Service diamonders are seeking a Sunday game with a local or out-of-town nine. Their manager may be reached at Emerson 7745 after 6 p. m.

A's Get 3 Hits But Beat Sox, 3-2, on Homers

Johnson, Chapman Slug for Circuit; Potter Wins Fifth

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 12.—Thornton Lee, veteran Chicago White Sox southpaw, held the Athletics to three hits today but two of them were home runs by Bob Johnson and Sam Chapman which gave the A's a 3-2 victory.

After Johnson hit his eleventh homer of the season in the first inning, scoring Benny McCoy from first, Lee held the A's hitless until the fifth. Then Chapman blasted out his fourth four-bagger of the year.

Nelson Potter pitched a six-hitter in winning his fifth game this season. He yielded a run in the second inning on a triple by Luke Appling and a single by Larry Rosenthal. In the ninth Bobby Kennedy doubled, and Joe Kuhel singled him home.

16 Pros Tee Off Today in Inverness Play

By the Associated Press

Toledo, Ohio, June 12.—Sixteen sharp-shooting professionals, headed by Lawson Little, new National Open king, will tee off tomorrow in the $6,000 Inverness Club four-ball match play tourney. Little is teamed with "Jug" McSpaden, who carded 18 straight pars in a recent exhibition at Detroit.

Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta are the defending Inverness invitational champions. They have paired in the tourney since it started in 1935 and twice emerged victors.

Byron Nelson, 1939 National Open titlist and Inverness' own professional, is teamed with Walter Hagen.

Other teams include Sam Snead and Ralph Guldahl, Jimmy Demaret and Dick Metz, Sarazen and Clayton Heafner, Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson, and Ed Dudley and Billy Burke.

The opening round will be played tomorrow afternoon. Thereafter the professionals will be on a two a day schedule through Sunday. Each team meets each of the others in an 18-hole match play, the winner getting a "plus" score for each hole finished ahead of the rival duo. The loser receives a "minus" for each hole lost. The plunder goes to the team with the highest "plus" total.

Pairings for the opening round matches are:

Demaret-Metz vs. McSpaden-Little; Smith-Thomson vs. Sarazen-Heafner; Picard-Revolta vs. Dudley-Burke, and Snead-Guldahl vs. Nelson-Hagen.

Mrs. Stokes Clings to Third In Eastern Women's Golf Meet

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, June 12.—Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, of Manor Club, is still third in the Women's Eastern Golf Association Championship Tournament at Five Farms here, though after the second round today she is sharing the position with Jean Bauer, of Providence.

Mrs. Stokes added an 84 to her 86 of the first day for 170. Miss Bauer had a 78 after an opening 92.

Grace Amory, of New York, is leading with 80, 75—155, and Anne Krumbhaar, of Philadelphia, with 82, 83—165, is second.

Washington stepped into the lead in the team race for the Osgood Shield, however, showing a four-stroke lead over the Pennsylvania contingent which took the lead on the first day. On the Washington team yesterday were:

Mrs. Stokes, 84; Mrs. Leo Walper, Capitol, 85; Mrs. L. G. Pray, Manor Club, 88; Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood, 88, and Mrs. Myron Davy, Congressional, 89.

15-Year-Old Advances in Trans-Miss.

Phyllis Otto Gains Quarter-Finals as Big Names Move Up

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 12.—Standing right up against the big name women golfers, Phyllis Otto, 15-year-old Iowa State High School champion, blasted her way into the quarter-finals of the Trans-Mississippi Tournament with the most decisive score of the day.

The stocky daughter of an Atlantic (Iowa) banker defeated Mrs. Chester Keating, of St. Joseph, Mo., 8 and 6, in the second round today against Kay Pearson Houston (Tex.) star.

Wearing a blazing, red suit, the "kid" stroked like a machine for 13 holes over the softened Glen Echo course in 1 over par to gain her second victory.

One Above Par.

For 80 successive holes, including practice rounds, she is only one stroke above regulation figures.

The little girl is in a class all by herself against seven of the Nation's leading ink stars who advanced through the second round.

Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., the women's national champion; Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, defending champion, and Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., two-time winner of the T-M crown, shot identical subpar golf to win handily, but one of this trio will be bounced out tomorrow.

The pairings bring Miss Jameson and Miss Miley together in a match that more than likely will determine the upper bracket finalist against Miss Berg, favored to sweep through the lower bracket.

The tanned Texas champion overcame stiff early opposition to oust Georgia Dexheimer, St. Louis district champion, 6 and 5, after the local girl played her even for the first six holes.

Miss Miley, comely Kentuckian, who has won the State title six times since she was 17, was back to her old form as she defeated Jeanne Cline, Bloomington, Ill., youngster, 6 and 5. Marion rounded the first nine in a sizzling 3-under-par 35 and put the youngster out at the thirteenth on the strength of sensational chip shots.

Mrs. Russell Mann Wins

Miss Berg likewise was 3 under for 15 holes as she defeated Miss M. B. Wallace, former St. Louis champion, 5 and 3. Patty had a wobbly start but settled down at the fourth hole and speared either pars or birds on all but one of the remaining holes.

Mrs. Russell Mann, of Milwaukee, won the toughest match of the day, 1 up, over little Sarah Adams, of Richmond, Ky. She next meets Shirley Ann Johnson, Chicago, who defeated Mrs. Lillian Zech, also of Chicago, 6 and 5.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, June 12.—Pst! . . .

Tony Galento puts a reasonable-sounding blast on Referee Arthur Donovan. "The New York Boxing Commission calls me a bum for drinking beer, then their pet referee, Arthur Donovan, indorses it." Tony's great ambition in life is to indorse a beer.

CONSIDINE

Pat Flaherty, the former big leaguer who has done some fine character bits in Hollywood, will serve as technical director of Capra's "Life of John Doe," the movie in which Gary Cooper will play the part of a pitcher who has dropped back to the minors in the hope of saving his arm . . . Flaherty, who will also act in the film, will see to it that the dialogue rings true and that the tough mugg doesn't cry, "Oh, peaches!" when he takes a third strike with the bases filled.

H. G. Salsinger, who has been viewing sports with alarm and with favor for 30-odd years, says that Billy Conn can whip any heavyweight except Louis . . . He makes this statement without benefit of Pastor.

Hank Greenberg is doing a remarkable job in the Tiger outfield, when you consider the obstacles he surmounted . . . The Yankee Stadium was always a Jonah ballyard for him, but this year he's wearing the paint off its fences . . . Cleveland papers carry no National League box scores, except on rare occasions. The Dodgers' feat of going into first place in the league, by giving Bucky Walters his first licking of the year, was announced with one obscure paragraph . . . Golly, what a dumb thing for Dempsey to do—lending his name and fame to cheap rassling by promising to slug some phoney bad man . . . After watching some of those golfers fold up in the Open, we decided it was just as well they chose golf and not tennis—where they might have been called on some day to indorse a gutless racquet.

Walter Hagen disagrees with those who think Sam Snead—who has more natural talent than any other golfer—will never win the nerve-wracking Open. "One of these days," the Haig said after Snead blew up in the homestretch at Cleveland, "Sam is going to be sitting in the locker room, drinking an orangeade, and a guy with a badge is going to come up to him and say, 'Congratulations, Sam, you won the Open.' Sam is going to say, "Who, me?' "

Hagen's insinuation is that if they started Snead very early on the final day of a tournament—early enough so that he wouldn't have to worry whether or not he could catch some headliner whose score is already posted—he'd win the tournament easily . . . Bobby Jones says that he can't shoot those old-time scores anymore because "I can't get that sick feeling in my stomach before I hit one. I can't kid myself into believing that I must make every shot, which was the way I used to feel naturally, when I was playing tournament golf."

One of the strangest rejuvenations in recent baseball history has been Louis Klopsche Finney . . . The 30-year-old player is keeping $75,000 Dom DiMaggio on the bench with his .370 average.

Boston's 8th-Inning Rally Beats Indians

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 12.—By sending 12 men to bat for a six-run rally in the eighth, the Red Sox came from behind today to trump another Cleveland pitching ace and protect their first-place lead with a 9-5 victory.

The sockers were two runs behind Al Milner today until they blasted him from the mound with none out in the eighth.

He was replaced by Mel Harder with the score tied at 5-all and two runners on.

Doc Cramer opened the rally with a single, which was duplicated by Lou Finney.

Manager Joe Cronin was the first to face the Cleveland relief pitcher and, after he sacrificed, Harder filled the bases by passing Jim Tabor, Stan Spence, pinch-hitting for Gene Desautels, brought in Foxx with a long fly and then the Sockers countered three more runs on singles by Jim Bagby and Bobby Doerr. Mike Naymick took over, and, after Cramer made his second hit of the inning, Foxx fanned with the bases jammed.

The Indians, who outhit the victors, 13-11, made all but one of their bingles before starter Mickey Harris was yanked with none down in the sixth. Jim Bagby held them to one hit during the remainder of the game and wound up as the winning pitcher.

Osofree Wins Fraternal Order Feature at Charles Town

3-Year-Old Filly Beats Rare Gem

Shenandoah Stable Entry Pays $6.40; Rocky Mount, Long Shot, Pays $43

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 12.—Osofree, owned by the Shenandoah Stable and trained by Claude Feltner, of Berryville, Va., had too much speed for seven other sprinters today. The 3-year-old filly was flying at the end in a race named for the fraternal order of Eagles. Rare Gem, in the colors of the Blue Grass Farms, was second, ahead of Capt. Ewart Johnston's Cats Cradle. The race was over the about 4½-furlong route, and the winner's time of 0:51 was creditable over a slow track.

Cats Cradle was first to show in front but Osofree came up on the inside to give the veteran mare a head and head battle to the stretch. Entering the straightaway, Cats Cradle ran out while Jockey Johnny Hernandez made Osofree hug the rail. Then Rare Gem came up between the leaders. Hernandez put Osofree to a hard drive and the daughter of Dr. Freeland drew away.

The winner was a slight favorite in the field of eight and returned a $6.40 mutuel to the proper investors.

The program opened with the laughs of the long shot players. Rocky Mount, under a good ride by Jockey R. Tilden, finished in front of Paper Girl, Seplin and five others to return a mutuel of $43.

Well played horses figured in both ends of the daily double. High Aim, with Jockey Sammy Palumbo in the saddle, saved ground to defeat a paddock tip, Single Ply. Blenethal was third. High Aim, recently claimed by Mrs. A. A. Gray, paid his followers a $5 mutuel.

Rosarian, at $7.60, put the finishing touches on a $16.50 double. Cream Cheese was second and Bynums Run was third. Cream Cheese had some early trouble and could not resist the winner in the final test.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROCKY MOUNT, $43.00, $10.00, $3.80; PAPER GIRL, $4.80, $2.60; SEPLIN, $2.80.

ROCKY MOUNT forced to front in run to turn, withstood challenge of PAPER GIRL and held away thereafter under drive. PAPER GIRL, first away, was hard ridden, but weakened in final 70 yards. SEPLIN, off in tangle, closed gamely after saving ground entering stretch. SQUAWKER had speed in spots while attempting to run out and was held safe. POST DATE had early foot and weakened. TWEETY was not a factor. HASTY HANNA dropped back gradually. RICHMOND MAID was outrun.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For maiden 3 and 4-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:04½. Off 3:05. Winner, Mrs. A. A. Gray's b. g. (3), by High Quest—Chicotta. Trained by W. S. McCabe. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:23.

†Pulled up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH AIR, $5.00, $3.40, $2.40; SINGLE PLY, $4.40, $3.20; BLENETHEL, $3.00.

HIGH AIM, well handled, was taken under steadying restraint to stretch, saved ground to better position when SINGLE PLY ran out and won going away. SINGLE PLY was rated while closest to pace of BLENETHEL, forged to front approaching stretch and tired after going wide. BLENETHEL set good pace, but could not stay. BANK NOTE made one move and stopped. CUPID'S ARROW was held safe. SPEEDY BOY was outrun.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:30½. Off 3:31. Winner, Mrs. R. A. Callahan's ch. g. (6), by Grandace—Rosytint. Trained by J. F. Callahan. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:30⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROSARIAN, $7.60, $4.40, $3.20; CREAM CHEESE, $3.40, $2.60; BYNUM'S RUN, $13.20.

ROSARIAN, allowed to race on own courage while within striking distance early, came to inside of CREAM CHEESE when shaken up and was drawing out at end. CREAM CHEESE, off slowly, went to lead between horses on backstretch and weakened from early usage. BYNUM'S RUN saved ground from slow beginning to show good effort. PENWAY had a rough trip. MILRAY was in tangle early.

Daily Double, HIGH AIM and ROSARIAN, Paid $16.60

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; pace same. Went to post 3:56½. Off 3:56. Winner, Mrs. R. N. Gilpin's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIN, $4.60, $3.00, $2.40; CAPSTICK, $4.60, $3.20; NOB, $2.60.

DIN was steadied while close to pace of CAPSTICK, came around latter to get to front and won while opening a gap. CAPSTICK, first away, set good pace and was closely ridden by Winder in early stretch run and weakened. NOB had some trouble at first turn and went evenly thereafter. YANKEE LAD closed gamely from slow beginning. KISSIN KID was bothered by BARRACA at break. MONOLOGUE was through early. BARRACA swerved leaving gate and failed to rally.

FIFTH RACE (original substitute race)—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:23. Off 4:23½. Winner, Shenandoah Stable's ch. f. (3), by Dr. Freeland—Old Mouth. Trained by Claude Feltner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:51.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OSOFREE, $6.40, $3.80, $2.60; RARE GEM, $5.60, $3.40; CAT'S CRADLE, $3.00.

OSOFREE came up on inside to take command over CAT'S CRADLE and was hard ridden to end while drawing out. RARE GEM came between leaders approaching stretch and held on gamely. CAT'S CRADLE was first to show in front, could not resist OSOFREE and bore out entering stretch while tiring. STAR ON went evenly and was held safe. CHASTE had early speed and faltered. LAST REVUE was held safe while hard urged. HAPPY HOSTESS could not keep up. WAR TARGET was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:47. Off 4:47½. Winner, Keefe and King's b. f. (3), by Bright Knight—Lady Louise. Trained by M. C. Keefe. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:51⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT LOUISE, $39.80, $14.80, $8.60; CURVES, $5.20, $3.60; DANCING CLOUD, $4.00.

BRIGHT LOUISE took command at once, was steadied along while setting pace to far turn, responded to pressure and held CURVES safe in closing stages. CURVES, slow to begin, worked way around horses to reach contention and hung in final drive. DANCING CLOUD was hard ridden throughout and tired badly in final quarter. SEA FINN was forced to race in close quarters early and tired. ROUGE CATALAN was held safe. UNLAWFUL failed to rally. BACKINTIME was outrun. HOFFBERG had early speed and stopped.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, SLOPPY.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:12⅘. Off 5:13. Winner, Mrs. G. L. Borne's b. g. (6), by Tournament II—Edith Caroline. Trained by P. Poluch. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:50⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CARTOUR, $86.20, $25.40, $14.80; GROUCHER'S BOY, $8.20, $5.40; CHANNING, $4.60.

CARTOUR, in command in opening furlong, withstood repeated challenges and held away to end under pressure. GROUCHER'S BOY was in thick of contention from beginning and fought it out willingly. CHANNING was hard ridden while close up and came with good energy at close. SUGABOOT had a rough trip. QUILL could not reach serious contention. COUNTERPASS failed to rally CAFFEINE was held safe.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:36½. Off 5:39½. Winner, Mrs. C. E. Allen's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WORTHOWNING, $16.80, $7.00, $4.00; DARBY DU, $4.40, $3.00; HEART PLAY, $5.40.

WORTHOWNING, rated while close to pace, came through on inside to take command while disposing of BEST POLICY and won going away. DARBY DU lacked early speed, worked way to contention on inside and closed gamely. HEART PLAY saved ground to get to front of BEST POLICY early and held safe, gamely in final test. BEST POLICY forced early pace, was taken wide leaving backstretch and weakened. SYLACAUGA was held safe. JINNEAL moved up menacingly along backstretch and faltered. BEAU BON had early speed and tired.

First-Inning Homers Aid In Victory

Bonifant and Via Get Circuit Blows In Post Industrial League Game

A couple of terrific smashes in the first inning—homers by Bonifant and Via—sent O'Donnell's Sea Grill off to a winning start as it romped away from Russell Motor nine, 11-7, in The Washington Post Industrial League yesterday.

Bonifant's circuit blow came with nobody on base and one out. After Orrison had singled, Via got the second homer of the inning to give the Grillmen a lead they never lost. For good measure, Second Baseman Mizell also hit a four-bagger in the seventh with one mate aboard.

In all O'Donnell's connected for 15 safeties, bringing their total for the last two league outings to 31. Liggett was touched for 12 hits and a pair of bases on balls, but held the lead safe. First Baseman Bowie, of Russell, turned in four safe blows in five official times to boast the best individual record of the game.

Smith Hurls 1-Hitter as I. B. M. Wins

Jack Smith was robbed of a no-hit, no-run game in the seventh and last inning of last night's softball game when Leftfielder Hutchinson slammed out a double—but it ended in a 3-to-1 victory for the International Business Machine over the U. S. Aggies in Ballston Stadium.

Smith, pitching for I. B. M., walked Schoonover and then suffered a brief lapse. Hutchinson's double followed to score the Aggies' lone run.

In the other half of the night's activities, Posnor Brothers defeated United States Housing Authority, 8 to 3, behind the 4-hit pitching of John Hinton in the Dixie Softball League. I. B. M. faces Senate tomorrow night at Ballston in a Red Cross benefit game preceded by a girls' game between Sholl's and the Arlington Aces.

Union Printers Defeated, 7-3

A four-run uprising in the seventh inning gave Washington Gas Light a 7-to-3 victory on the Ellipse yesterday and eliminated Union Printers from further consideration in the first half race for United States Government League honors.

Two legitimate home runs and another tainted by an error marked the big inning. With two out, Outfielder Buscher slammed the ball to left for a single, but Holbrook fumbled it so badly Buscher was able to reach home. The next man up—Clark—singled. Then Putnam and Boggs hit clean home runs over the left and center fielders' heads, respectively.

Gas Light was outhit, 9 to 8, but Wallach deserved credit for a well-pitched game. He allowed only two walks and fanned four.

Pont L'Eveque Leads 15 Starters to Wire By Three Lengths

fast closing Aga Khan's Turkhan. Lord Derby's favored Lighthouse II, which closed at 85 to 40, just missed runner-up honors by a head.

Odds Closed at 10-1

Pont L'Eveque closed at 10 to 1 in the betting and was clocked in 2 minutes 30 4-5 seconds. Turkhan was held at 100 to 7.

The French horse always was prominent in the running. He was just behind Romulus at the half-mile post and took the lead after going another 4 furlongs with Lighthouse II and Black Toni trailing closely. Turkhan, which had not been better than sixth up to this point, came with a burst of speed in the home stretch but he was unable to make any impression on Pont L'Eveque's lead while just getting up to head the favorite out of second money.

Not an Original Entrant

It was a race of surprises. The winner wasn't even entered in the original Derby. Although Lighthouse was considered to have more stamina than any other in the field, it was in that department that he failed. He couldn't hold his speed on the run up the hill near the finish.

Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey, missed a chance to ride his first Derby winner by selecting the wrong mount. Darling offered Richards the mount on Pont L'Eveque but instead, he chose to ride the Maharajah of Kolhapur's Tant Mieux, also trained by Darling. Tant Mieux finished fourth.

Nats Beat Browns, 3-2; Chase Hurls

Nats the tying run in the same inning, but it was not so simply achieved. Walker led off with a double against the wall in left, and stole third base immediately. But he languished there as Bonura and Travis popped up against Auker's underhand pitching. In this crisis, Jake Early moved the run home with a double down the right-field line.

Early's second consecutive double launched a run for the Nats in the fourth with two out. He whaled a two-bagger to center with two out, and Jimmy Bloodworth set the Nats up in a 2-to-1 lead with a single to left.

Brown Kayoes Roberts

Atlanta, June 12 (AP).—Ben Brown, Atlanta middleweight, knocked out Frankie Roberts, of New Britain, Conn., in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round fight tonight.

Rassles Move Outdoors—It's 'Ladies' Night'

The rassles move outdoors tonight, if it isn't raining, and the feminine fans will be given special consideration for the co-feature card—topped by The Swedish Angel versus Karol Krauser and Jack Hader versus Zim Zam Zum.

BOO!

Promoter Joe Turner is designating the outdoor debut as "ladies' night," a la the Friday doings of the Nats—all of which means there'll be a small service charge for lady fans.

The four performers in the double windup dramas will be shooting for a new high in histrionics, for the most impressive will get a shot at Bobby Bruns, one of the current stock of wrestling champions, in the stadium next week.

The supporting cast tonight has Luigi Bacigalupi booked for a number with Pat Corrigan, Matros Kirilenko back in a 30-minute role with Juan Olaguivel and Mickey James playing opposite Michele Leone in the curtain-raiser at 8:30 p. m. In event of rain, the bouts will be moved into Turner's W street arena.

Preliminary Fight Card Completed

The supporting card for Monday night's 10-rounder between Bill McDowell and Kid Louis Cocoa in Griffith Stadium was whipped up yesterday by Matchmaker Gabe Menendez as he awaited developments on his attempts to bring Henry Armstrong in against the winner.

Gilbert Mayo, tow-headed Alexandria featherweight, and Vince Trumenello, of Baltimore, will meet in a four-rounder that packs plenty of local interest. Both boys defeated Tommy Ricco in their pro debuts recently and will be making their second paid start.

In a six-rounder, Billy Banks, Washington colored featherweight, fights Baltimore's Joe Sole in a return bout. Billy defeated Sole in Baltimore on the Joey Archibald-Harry Jeffra card.

Another four brings out Ray Landis against Fort Myer's Dominik Nico, and Floyd Grayson meets Jack Flowers in a six.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Heroes among the Nats were numerous yesterday, but chief honors in the Man of the Month contest fall to Ken Chase. We are distributing points as follows:

To Chase, 15 points, because he pitched winning six-hit ball and protected his one-run lead by holding the Browns hitless in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings.

To Jimmy Bloodworth, six points, because his single drove in the Nats' first run, because his triple in the seventh led to the winning run, and because he was the middle-man in three brilliant double plays.

To Jake Early, six points, because he drove in the Nats' first run with a double, and because he scored their second run after his second double.

To Cecil Travis, four points, because he started three spectacular double plays after accepting hard chances on all of them.

To George Case, four points, because he produced the winning run with his clever squeeze bunt in the seventh.

The totals:

Dutch Leonard	34	Buddy Lewis	16
Ken Chase	33	Sidney Hudson	15
Walter Masterson	30	Cecil Travis	15
Jimmy Bloodworth	26	Jimmy Pofahl	12
Johnny Welaj	21	Gerald Walker	10
Zeke Bonura	21	Joe Haynes	8
George Case	20	Sammy West	5
Jake Early	19	Rick Ferrell	2

Hunt, Davis And Johnsen Win at Navy

Seeded Stars Take Opening Matches in College Net Trials

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, June 12.—Top-seeded Joe Hunt, Joe Davis and Davey Johnson yesterday came through their opening matches in third district trials for the National Collegiate Tennis Championships June 24, as representatives of 12 colleges took part in the first of three days' action at the United States Naval Academy.

Hunt, star of the host school and a former Davis Cup player, justified his No. 1 seeding with a 6—0, 6—0 shellacking of Stan Lerner, of Virginia, and later turned back Maryland University's Doyle Royal, 6—1, 6—2, after North Carolina's Rider had drawn a bye.

Hunt also advaced in the doubles, but with considerable more difficulty. Teamed with J. E. Williams, of Navy, the pair was barely able to defeat Buchanan and Fuille, of Virginia, 3—6, 64, 6—4.

Davis, No. 2 seeded player from Vanderbilt and Southeastern Collegiate champion the last two years, also won a pair of singles matches. In his first outing he shut out George Washington's Murdough Madden, 6—0, 6—0, and after John Strang, of Virginia, had defaulted to Henry Watts, of G. W., Davis overwhelmed Watts to the tune of 6—1, 6—1.

In his first effort to obtain a berth in the 1940 collegiate championships, G. W.'s Johnsen squared off with a foe from the District, Meyer Gelfand, of Georgetown. The first set was close, 8—6, in Johnsen's favor, but in the second the Colonial star took a 6—0 victory. Later Johnsen defeated G. P. Mulligan, of Navy, 6—2, 6—1.

On Fishing

Until last season it was the surf-fishing for blues and channel bass that took most local anglers to the North Carolina coast when they learned there is a brand of offshore fishing that, while not comparable to, may well be likened to what we get in southern Florida waters during the winter months.

ACKERMAN

So far as we know, Dan Hassett is the first fisherman from this area to go down for the Gulf Stream fishing, and, believe it or not, he ran right into the first catch of dolphin that has been made this year.

Fishing on the 70-foot shoal 35 miles off Morehead City with Capt. Gordon Day on his Corsair, Dan came up against a kind of fishing that has him talking to himself, when no one else will listen, to his latest piscatorial adventure.

True, this first run of dolphin isn't near the size they will be catching in another week or two, but even 5 and 6 pounders, when they are so thick they follow the boat like a pack of hungry dogs waiting for a bone, can supply a kind of fishing to make anglers of this area sit up and take notice. Dan hooked 63.

This shoal, extending northeast and southwest 8 miles and nowhere more than a couple wide, is literally an angler's paradise during the months of July and August. Cobia, bonita, big amberjack, barracuda and even sailfish (there were 12 taken there last season) cruise its shoal water for the lush feeding. We expect this year to hear of white and possibly blue marlin being taken there. Because they haven't been before is only because no one fishes for them.

Washington anglers really never found this offshore fishing until late last season, but we believe they will make up for lost time this year.

The bluefish have finally shown up at Oregon Inlet. The first catches were made this past weekend, and run up to 30 to the boat. Averaging but 1 to 2 pounds, which leads us to believe these are the summer schools that usually come in under the shore and stay through September.

So if you have in mind the tackle-busters that in 1935 had the whole Atlantic Coast goggle-eyed, don't bother about this fishing, for you will be disappointed.

At Beaufort, trolling offshore, they are taking them larger. Several weighing close to 6 pounds. And at Topsail Inlet a few are being caught by surfmen.

Bonita are being caught everywhere, at Morehead and Beaufort—one Wrightsville Beach boat came in with 76, a record for the species.

The first barracuda of this season was caught during the past week off Southport, and weighed 17 pounds. Two Virginians were the lucky anglers. Others reported having them on around Frying Pan Shoals but being unable to land them.

going to fight Joe Louis a round, too? Haw. You think I want to get killed?

Dempsey wore no headgear, as did Godoy but his groin was covered by a large protector to ward off any blows that might land on the scar of his near-fatal appendix operation. He'll wear the same protector against Luttrell, whom he describes as a "mean old bum of 40 who cut my lip one time when the script didn't call for it."

May Fight Cedric Rasslers

"If I do all right against Luttrell I may fight a couple other rasslers for the Red Cross. Under the same rules—no holding-and-hitting and no grease or oil like those fellows put on themselves."

The old champ got his breath back after about 10 minutes in the press box during which time all the reporters, cameramen and spectators paid court to him, while Godoy boxed lonesomely in the ring against his sparring mates. Jack said he was going to cut down his cigar consumption to a dozen a day to get in shape for Luttrell and hopes to get in some road work to harden his white, soft legs. His last serious boxing engagement was in June of 1933, when he boxed a stiff round each against Max Baer and Max Schmeling before he promoted their match. He made a brief appearance in an exhibition in Buffalo in 1936 while stumping for Roosevelt.

Before getting into the ring with Godoy, Dempsey slapped a punching bag for 5 minutes—missing it a lot but, every now and then, measuring it and nearly digging it out by the roots with a winging left hook.

Judd Detweiler Lose

Washington Tobacco Co. softballers turned back Judd & Detweiler, 10 to 7, in a Northeast Commercial League game yesterday. Wilford Mills' seven-hit hurling was the feature.

Buying Wave Boosts Major Commodities

Cotton, Sugar, Cloth Surge Forward; Wheat Is Lower

By the Associated Press

A new surge of buying lifted major commodities yesterday. Wheat and rubber were the major holdouts against the advance.

A vigorous upward thrust in securities and the belief Allied war orders would offset losses elsewhere in export trade incited demand.

Cotton ran up 50 cents to $1.30 a bale at New York. Added to war factors was news of sudden expansion in cloth business. Wool tops, under domination of potentially large Government orders, added 1½ cents a pound. New speculative buying of sugar helped score gains of as much as .06½ of a cent a pound.

Wheat countered the main tide of prices with losses of ⅞ to 1⅝ cents a bushel. Depressants included sluggish foreign and domestic demand for cereals and favorable crop news.

Rubber, recently a top favorite in speculative circles, lost around ¾ of a cent a pound.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, advanced to 71.92 from 71.36 Tuesday.

Wheat Off ⅞ to 1⅝

Chicago, June 2 (AP).—The wheat market today gave up about half of the advance scored yesterday as buying enthusiasm waned and selling based on the international situation and improved domestic crop conditions expanded.

Wheat closed ⅞ to 1⅝ cents lower than yesterday, July 82⅛@82, September 82¾@82½, after having been 1@¾ cent higher in early dealings. Final prices were at the day's lows. Corn was ⅛@¼ lower, July 63⅝@63½, September 62⅛@62¼; oats unchanges to ⅛ off; rye 1⅜@1⅞ lower and lard 8@15 higher.

All rye contracts, except December, and July oats were back at the minimum levels. These minimums, established after the mid-May collapse of grain prices due to the impact of the German invasion of Western Europe, will be removed by board of trade order beginning Friday.

Wheat closed about 3½ to more than 4 cents above the minimums while corn was 2½ to almost 5 cents above.

There was more talk of possible spread of black rust. H. C. Donovan, crop expert, reported finding rust in all fields examined from Wichita to Enid, via Willington and Blackwell. Early wheat has not been damaged much, he said, but late fields some injury will be done. He found more smut than usual but damage is expected to be light.

Cotton Gains 10 to 26

New York, June 12 (AP).—Cotton futures stepped ahead with securities and most other commodities for rises of 10 to 26 points today.

Heavy short covering for foreign accounts and buying by trade and all Street interests lifted prices close to $2 a bale before profit taking intervened.

Cloth sales estimated to run to more than 30,000,000 yards were hailed a bullish influence.

Encouraging to local dealers was news free trading would be permitted in the Liverpool cotton market within daily established limits above set minimum prices starting Thursday.

No exports Tuesday; season so far 96,11 bales. Port receipts, 2,941; port stocks, 2,523,301.

Sugar Up 5 to 6½

New York, June 12 (AP).—World sugar futures jumped 5 to 6½ points today under influence of reports the French beet sugar crop would be sharply reduced.

New speculative demand also was encouraged by the bouyant action of securities. Sales totaled 6,350 tons, July 1.22½ bid, September 19½ bid.

Domestic futures advanced 1 to 2 points on sales of 26,650 tons. Principal factor was the advance in the raw market, where offerings were scarce.

Bonds Score Gains Ranging 1 to 6 Points

Government Liens Stage Sharp Rise; Corporates Strong

By the Associated Press

New York, June 12.—The bond market freed itself from war pessimism today in a vigorous advance that carried many lines up to 1 around 6 points.

A bolstering factor, dealers said, was the Tuesday comment of Secretary Morgenthau that recent behavior of security markets had been good enough to warrant a Treasury refunding program, involving an exchange of 1 per cent 3¼ year notes for maturing 3⅜ per cent Treasury bonds.

A few foreign ratings were held back by lack of support, but, taken broadly, this long battered division held fairly well in view of war events. Canada 4s pushed up more than 3 points, while some obligations of Italy, Uruguay, Columbia, Australia and Japan rose fractions to 1 or more. Weakest of the foreigns were loans of Denmark, Haiti, Norway and Argentina.

Still responsive to the favorable significance of the Treasury refunding plans, United States Governments scored their sharpest rise in many weeks. Treasury 2¾s of '60-'65 and '56-'59 each climbed about 1¼ points and the 2⅞s of '55-'60 added 1 1-32. Other Treasuries improved ⅛ to ⅞ of a point.

Corporates prominent in the forward drive included Canadian National Railways 4½s which closed at 82, up 6; Baltimore & Ohio first 4s of '48 at 59½, up 3; Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s at 42, up 2½; American & Foreign Power 5s at 49¾, up 2¼; Studebaker 6s at 91½, up 3; New York Central 4½s at 44⅜, up 3⅜, and Nickel Plate 4½s at 47¾, up 3¼.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, June 12 (AP). (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Trade was moderately active today on the Boston wool market. Sales of combing shorn domestic wools comprised largely original bag or country-packed offerings. Good French combing-length fine territory wools in original bags were brinsing around 85 cents, scoured basis. Country-packed three-eighths and one-quarter blood bright fleece wools offered for shipment direct from the country were selling mostly at 38@39 cents in the grease, delivered to users. Graded lots of these wools were receiving little demand.

Normal Auto Output Urged By Macauley

Nation Needs Taxes Borne by Industry, Says A. M. A. Head

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 12.—Alvan Macauley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, said today that "If this Nation is to be able to bear the taxes that will be required for the necessary defense program, normal production for sale to the domestic market must go forward at the largest possible rate."

Addressing the annual meting of the association here, Macauley, who is also board chairman of the Packard Motor Car Co., said:

"While we contribute what is needed to equip our defense establishment, we can do most to maintain the strength of this country by keeping up our normal business. Pay rolls and employment must be created, not only in factory cities, but everywhere that cars and trucks are sold and used."

The motor industry, Macauley said, is prepared to meet the challenge presented to private management by "emergency service to external defense," and the "domestic defense of national prosperity."

"We have to recognize that our capacity to produce, by comparison with that of certain foreign nations, is affected by the short working hours in this country. The fullest, patriotic cooperation of labor will be required for plant efficiency. There is every reason now, after the experiences of the past few years, for understanding and cooperating in the plant. The Government bears large responsibilities in this field."

C. E. Wilson, acting president of General Motors Corporation, and chairman of the association's manufacturers' committee, directed attention to the motor industry's comparative freedom from labor difficulties in 1940, as a "hopeful augury for the future."

He expressed confidence in the ability of the industry to meet all demands made upon its facilities without serious dislocation of normal automobile production.

Heavy Buying Brings Renewed General Rise; Individual Leaders Gain $1 to $6; Market Virtually on Cash Basis

New York, June 12.—The largest gain in the stock market since last September came today as virtually all securities and commodities continued the advance which started Monday after Italy's declaration of war. On the Big Board the bullish forces had things their own way and rolled out a volume of 1,357,190 shares, the greatest since May 23. The market's composite average advanced 1.92 points and among individual speculative leaders there were numerous gains of 1 to 6 points, with a few special cases of gains which exceeded that amount.

Steels, aviations and equipment shares held the spotlight but the advance was general. Of the 824 issues which appeared on the tape, only 35 carried minus signs at the close, and final prices were near or at the best of the session.

Franc Advances

Among the foreign exchanges the French franc advanced six points and sterling, although lower most of the day, came back to close at about its former level.

In analyzing the strength of the market since its abrupt turnabout at 1 o'clock Monday, when Mussolini put his country into the war, the street naturally reflects every type of opinion, but in the main it regards the present move as due to the improved technical position of the market and to the prospect of business being quickened by war orders.

With respect to the technical position, brokers report that the market was virtually on a cash basis. Weak accounts, and some of the stronger accounts, were liquidated out in the decline which culminated Monday. Those holders who were still in command of their own accounts were in a position to hold their stocks if they desired to. The selling showed signs of having reached a climax and on the other side of the market there was new buying from bargain hunters, who saw many leading issues selling at their best price-earnings ratio of recent months. Yields, and the relative safety of earnings, made a good portion of the list attractive to investors.

Stimulation Certain

As for the prospects of business, the general belief in the street is that no matter what taxes may be, business is certain to be stimulated by foreign and domestic war orders. Full payment may not be made by this generation, but in such a time of crisis the prospect of increasing the national debt is regarded as the lesser of two evils, the other one being unpreparedness.

The danger of a setback in securities if Paris falls is of course a possibility, and the Germans reached the outskirts of the city yesterday. The assumption in the financial district, however, is that the war is certain to be a long one and that even with that vital city lost, the French army and the Allied cause will be far from beaten. There was a rumor in the street yesterday that Russia had declared war on Italy, and while this may have contributed to some of the day's buying, the report was soon discredited and the list continued to maintain its strength.

Trade News Helpful

Midweek business figures helped confirm the expectation of a quickening of the pace in the heavy industries. Iron Age reported three steel districts are virtually at capacity operations, aided by the placing of tonnages by the Allies. The Copper Institute reported that deliveries of copper last month increased about 5,000 tons over April. There was, at the same time, an increase of more than 9,000 tons in refined stocks as production was increased. Electric power output came back sharply after the Memorial Day slump, being 5.1 per cent above that week and 8.7 per cent above a year ago.

The most active stock today was United States Steel, which closed up 3⅝. Bethlehem added 4 and Republic 1½ and Inland 4. Pressed Steel Car was a leader of the equipment division, advancing nearly a point, while American Car & Foundry was up 1¾. Baldwin a point and the two American Locomotive issues 1⅝ and 5¾ points respectively. Gains of active aviations included Curtiss Wright, ¾; Lockheed, 1⅜; United, 1; Glenn Martin, 1½; Grumman, 1½; and Douglas, 4¾. Chemicals were whirled higher. American Telephone, in the investment division, was a feature with a 6 points runup. All the paper shares reflected good support, being assured that Scandinavian competition is a thing of the past.

Exchange Market

New York, June 12 (AP).—The free British pound dipped 2½ cents today but the foreign money market seemed little disturbed by London cables, saying efforts were under way to eliminate the unit in the local money market.

Official steps were taken, it was said, to establish the official rate in New York.

Free sterling closed at $3.72½, against the official selling price of $4.03½.

The Canadian dollar jumped 1¾ cents to 90¼ U. S. cents after recently hovering near a record low price. The French franc was unchanged. The Swiss franc dipped .02 of a cent.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents).

Official Canadian control board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium; equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market, 19⅛ per cent discount, or 80.12½ U. S. cents.

If You Earn Money You Can Borrow Money Here
Our credit requirements are most reasonable. Loans here are based on your sense of responsibility and earning capacity. Therefore, you need not hesitate to apply for a loan in any amount from $10 to $300. You repay the loan a little at a time—out of income—and our E-q-u-a-l-i-z-e-d Payment Plan makes it easier for you to budget these sums. No co-signers. No furniture, no automobiles needed in most cases. No wage assignment. No extra fees. Fines, or insurance charges. Only charge is interest as set by the "Uniform Small Loan Law." Utmost privacy—no information to employer, friends or relatives. Money in one day—red tape cut. Come in or phone for more information—no obligation, of course. Plenty of free parking.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

Listen! with Slocum

Poor Paul White, the astute gentleman who directs the Columbia network's war coverage, is having more trouble with Dan'l Cupid than he is with the censors abroad. It seems little Fatso with the bow and arrow can't be blitzkrieged and as a result Paul has lost two of his better European reporters.

The most recent to sign up for the fireside league is Miss Mary Marvin Breckenridge. Miss Breckinridge has been bouncing all over Europe delivering some extremely fine broadcasts. The other day from Genoa came a cablegram which was an extremely lyrical (and expensive) severance of connections between C.B.S. and Miss Breckenridge.

Mary Marvin said she was pretty happy to state that the Columbia Broadcasting System had better get itself a new boy (in this case, girl) because she had met a gent in Berlin while working for C.B.S. and she'd be marrying him any minute now. In view of the fact that he was attached to the United States Embassy in Berlin it would be rather difficult to continue reporting.

The gentleman in question, incidentally, spent several years here on State Department duties. His name is Jefferson Patterson, and he is first Secretary at Berlin.

Thomas Grandin is another C.B.S. reporter who tossed in the towel to Mr. Cupid. Thomas was attached to the C.B.S. office in Paris and he and his brand-new bride were having quite a time until Hitler's boys got to dropping bombs in the Paris area. Grandin had previously proven a fine contempt for bombs, but he took one look at the planes overhead and another at his bride and said, in effect, "This is where I came in." So he, too, abondoned the C.B.S. service, and who can say he showed anything but the very best of taste.

Orphans in Love

By Marion White

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm, since both were children. After Peter becomes a public hero in a tenement fire, John Abbott, prominent attorney, gives Peter a job. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott decide if Peter married Millicent Abbott, they could return without publicity his property which they had administered since Jonathan Tucker died, without known heir. Ellen has been promoted to a dress designer. She and Peter return to the orphanage for Christmas, and later go to the old Tucker house. Ellen finds a letter from Paris dated 1913 in a Bible, and hides it. Later she reads the letter which reveals Jonathan Tucker's only heir, a grandson who was killed en route home from Europe, left a two-weeks old son. Ellen believes John Abbott knows where he is. Millicent announces to the Abbotts her engagement to Peter. He sees the real Millicent when he accidentally tears her formal gown. Comparing her with Ellen, he appreciates Ellen's fine qualities. Ellen sees the engagement announcement and since Peter is to be Abbott's son-in-law, she destroys the letter concerning the Tucker heir.

Chapter 38

THEY TRIED to out-wait each other, as the tiny clock slowly ticked away 60 seconds of another minute. Hulda's patience was first to give, because she had been urged to haste.

"Miss Millicent!" She patted the blue satin eiderdown puff, tapping slim legs to awakening. "Miss Millicent!"

The blond head moved on the pillow. The red lips yawned in open protest. "Go away, Hulda! Let me sleep."

"There's a young man outside to see you, Miss Millicent. I told him you were still sleeping. . ."

The blue eyes opened wide. "A young man? At this hour? Not Mr. Storm——"

"No, Miss. Mr. Hall, he said to tell you."

"Mr. Hall?"

Millicent pushed herself slowly up to a sitting position. Her mouth opened in gradually increasing amazement. "Mr. Hall!" She repeated the name on a rising note of incredulity, as if trying to force her mind to comprehend the significance of this unexpected visit. Then her eyes, still puffy with sleep, began to darken in mounting anger. Her lips clamped together in a thin, hard line.

"Tell Mr. Hall," she ordered severely, "that I am not at home. And furthermore that I never will be at home—to him!"

Hulda shook her head. "I don't think . . ."

"Never mind what you think, Hulda. Tell him what I said."

Maid Leaves

The maid departed, still shaking her head. If she was any judge at all, this Mr. Hall didn't look as if he intended taking "no" for an answer. Hadn't she told him already that Miss Millicent would not be disturbed?

A moment later she was back.

"He will not go, Miss Millicent," she stated positively. "He says he must see you and very quickly too. He's a very fresh young man, I'd say," she added boldly.

Millicent struck the bedcovers savagely. "And I say I won't see him!" Her voice rose shrilly, loud enough to be heard in the room beyond. "Where's Cooper? Where is my father?"

"Mr. Abbott left almost half an hour ago," Hulda informed her placidly. "Mrs. Abbott went with him."

She was trying to keep her face composed sedately, as befitted her position, but the corners of her mouth twitched, and the smirk which might have spread all over her fair evidenced itself only in tiny lines about her eyes.

She was thinking: "Now you're in for it. Whoever he is, he's going to see you, my fine lady, whether you like it or not. And from the look of him, he'll know how to handle you."

Won't See Him

Millicent bounced on the bed. "Tell Cooper to put him out. I will not see him. Do you understand, Hulda?"

"But, miss, I told him——"

"I don't care what you told him. Tell him again, so that he'll know there's no mistake about it. I will not see him!"

She did not hear the firm step in the hallway outside. She was unaware of the tall, well-knit figure which now lounged against the half-open door.

"Oh, yes you will, Pudgy!"

Pudgy! She sat up, startled, as the familiar, self-confident voice contradicted her; she pulled the bed-clothes tightly around her neck.

Hulda Smiles

Hulda spun about and faced the door. The smirk broke through her stony countenance, gathered force and confidence from that other voice beyond the threshold, and became a smile of triumph.

"Hurry up!" the voice ordered. "I'll give you 10 minutes to get up and dress. If you're not out by then, I'll be in after you."

Millicent shook her disordered head in rage. "Kenneth Hall, get out of this apartment; I have nothing to say to you!"

He laughed. "But I have something to say to you, my dear. I have plenty to say. And I came 3,000 miles to say it. Don't think you're going to put me off. Hurry now, you've got only nine minutes left. Eight minutes . . . are you up yet?"

There was the sound of bare feet striking the floor. The young man smiled at Hulda. "I'll wait in the living room," he promised. "And don't bother fixing up for me. Remember, Pudgy, I knew you when!"

Hall Relents

He relented only to the extent of allowing her 12 minutes instead of the threatened 10. Perhaps this was a consolation to himself, giving him time to finish the cigarette he was smoking.

He was grinding out the final flame in an ash tray as Millicent swept into the living room. Her eyes were angry, her mouth still set in the tight, uncompromising line.

But her blond curls were carefully, if hastily arranged, and she had made it a point to wear her newest negligee, a gracious, sweeping creation of ruby velvet and old lace. She faced him viciously.

"Well!"

"Hello, darling!" He smiled with provoking deliberation. His dark, confident eyes roved up and down appraisingly. "You're looking well," he admitted condescendingly.

No Compliments

"I want no compliments from you!" She strove to keep her voice frigid. "Say whatever you feel you must say, and let there be an end to this."

He walked over to her slowly, and his eyes never left her face. As he came closer, she caught her breath sharply, but she did not retreat.

Not even when she read the intention in his eyes, did she step back.

His arms were about her, surely and possessively; he kissed her squarely upon the lips with a stern, positive finality. The gesture was significant. It was as if by his kiss he planted his seal upon her, warning against trespass.

"You're wrong, dear," he said holding her close. "There'll never be an end to this."

Stops Struggling

For an instant she struggled to free herself, but when she realized the futility of her effort, she stopped. Her hands hung limply at her side. Only when he finally released her, did she raise them to her face.

She put her hand to her lips, the flat palm inward, as if she would rub away the mark he had put upon her, but something in his eyes stayed her. She did not complete the gesture.

"You've no right to do that!" she said savagely. "I'm engaged to be married!"

He laughed, making the announcement a trivial detail.

"So I heard. I read something to that effect in a New York newspaper I picked up in Paris last week. That's why I'm here. You didn't think I'd ever let you go through with it, did you?"

"You've nothing to say about it. My life is my own. If I happen to be in love with somebody else——"

"But you're not. You know that as well as I do. You're in love with me, just as much now as you were last year. And I love you. Nobody is coming between us, Millicent. You played a dirty trick on that fellow."

"I intend to marry him."

Searching Eyes

His eyes searched her face; he saw the quivering uncertainty of her lower lip. His voice softened.

"You're going to marry me, Pudgy."

Her eyes filled with tears as she looked up at him, but anger still controlled her.

"I'm not going to marry you. I hate you, Kenneth Hall. And you needn't talk of love to me now—not after the way you ran away . . . and . . ." Her voice broke.

To Be Continued.

Lorton Head Hits Measure to Bar Prison-Made Goods

Passage by the Senate of a House approved bill prohibiting the sale of Lorton and Occoquan products to the District would "completely undermine the program" at the penal institutions, seriously hamper rehabilitation of inmates and call for increased expenditures, it was charged yesterday by Supt. Ray. L. Huff of the District penal institutions.

The bill as originally introduced by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, and approved by the Commissioners, would permit the sale of prison-made products to the District and Federal governments. On Monday, Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee added an amendment banning the sale of such goods to the District government. This amendment faces a sharp fight.

Bars Use of Occoquan Brick

Use of bricks made at Occoquan for all District buildings brought out the amendment made by Chairman Randolph. He said the only purpose of his amendment was to prevent use of prison-made brick in municipal buildings in competition with private brickyards, several of which are located in nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Meanwhile, Robert E. Bondy, welfare director, stated the brickyard at the penal institution would not be the only industry effected by the House bill. He said the clothing shops, broom and brush factories, mattress shops, foundry and the machine and pattern division would also be curtailed in operation. Only the license tag plant and laundry, which serves all District as well as Federal institutions, would not be effected by the measures.

District officials plan to bring their objections to the bill to members of the Senate in an attempt to kill the bill.

The contract awards for the new National Guard Armory specifically states the firm must use Occoquan bricks both for exposed or unexposed brick work. The grade "A" brick cost the contractor $15 per thousand and the grade "B" $12 per thousand. Mention was made of this fact during the discussions on the House measure.

A memorandum concerning the effect of the prohibition was prepared yesterday by District officials. It states:

"The passage of the bill (H. R. 10011) would bring about a condition which would be inimical to safe custody, and would leave the Workhouse and Reformatory in a very serious condition. Changes would have to be made in present building structures in order to provide safe custody for prisoners, and provide more cells instead of dormitories. Increase would have to be made in the guard force and fences built around the entire institution. This because of the lack of work to keep the inmates busy. One-half of the inmate population is now engaged in industrial work. Passage of the bill would completely destroy the rehabilitative program at Lorton."

Last year the penal institutions made products which sold for $285,000.

The original intent of the bill was to prevent any convict products from selling on the open market in competition with private industry, it was stated.

Wire-Tapping Denied in War On Democrats

Joseph N. Pew, of Philadelphia, Republican party leader, told a Senate committee yesterday he launched a crusade to drive Democrats out of power in Pennsylvania, but denied he used "wire-tapping" private detective agencies in his campaign.

His only use of the Bielaski agency of New York, which is under investigation in the committee's inquiry into wire-tapping activities, was to investigate a city of Philadelphia tax transaction, Pew testified.

He said he had "nothing to do" with the agency's investigation of alleged political corruption in Pennsylvania, in which Frank B. Bielaski, head of the bureau, testified before the committee last week he had used record devices.

Denying heatedly in frequent clashes with Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, that he had employed the Bielaski agency to "spy on prominent Democrats," Pew told the committee he had hired Bielaski in 1939 "to work for me personally." The agency chief was employed, Pew said, to "watch" certain Philadelphia city officials who were reported considering abating a $1,000,000 tax bill of the Cramp Shipbuilding Corporation.

"But you did set out on a crusade to drive the Democrats out of Pennsylvania and the Nation?" Minton asked.

"Certainly," Pew replied, "but I would rather say that I undertook to drive them out of power. But not all Democrats—just some Democrats."

"I know," Minton said, "New Dealers—fellows like me."

"Yes, that's right," Pew retorted amid laughter.

Pew told the committee he had hired investigators "from time to time to keep in touch with what the Democrats were doing," but denied he had employed the Bielaski agency for any of these inquiries.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Million Markswomen to Fight Parachutists Aim of U. S. Group

With an army of 1,000,000 rifle-toting, sharpshooting women as the goal of the Women's National Rifle Association, the organization's Columbia Chapter planned yesterday to recruit 400 Washington women as its part of the national defense program.

The Columbia Chapter was organized Monday at the home of Mrs. Laura Wallace, 4710 Georgia avenue northwest, with Mrs. Sarah Carl, of Arlington, Va., as president and Mrs. Wallace as secretary-treasurer.

A call for "every loyal American woman over 18 years of age to join the organization" was issued. Twenty "captains" were appointed, each of them delegated to raise a squad of 20 women in the District.

When mobilization has been completed, the local branch of the army will be given instruction in marksmanship, first aid, canteen cookery, ambulance driving, knitting, military drill and physical culture at the National Rifle Range Association, 1600 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

"We believe," said Mrs. Virginia Nowell, of 1747 Church street northwest, president and founder of the national organization, "that 1,000,000 women, trained and equipped, would be of great service in combatting any form of parachute invasion, such as is being used in Europe today.

"Think of the havoc women could have played with the parachute invaders of the Netherlands if they had been trained and equipped."

Police to Be Honored

Members of the Metropolitan Police Department who have supervised school safety activities during the last term will be honored tomorrow night by the American Automobile Association at a dinner in the Willard Hotel. Senator Robert Reynolds, of North Carolina, will speak.

Jelleff's Displays Patriotic Dress

As a salute to Flag Day tomorrow, a red-white-and-blue patented dress, inspired by the Stars and Stripes, drew attention in a downtown show window yesterday.

The dress, said to be the only one yet made under the patent, will be displayed at Jelleff's until tomorrow night or Saturday morning. Its blue bodice is sprinkled with large white stars, while its white skirt has bands of red and a wide hem of blue.

The dress was patented by the New York dress designers, Eugeni Staber and Marguerite Beirden Richardson.
